Introduction

Welcome to Realms of Tirakan!

Realms of Tirakan is a role-playing game. The rules and all associated materials are sufficient to play adventures in the world of Realms of Tirakan. You can use these rules freely, and adventure with friends.

For a while they stood there, like men on the edge of a sleep where nightmare lurks, holding it off, though they know that they can only come to morning through the shadows.

J.R.R. Tolkien

This role-playing game can be played without a digital device. However, the focus of the system is to be played over an internet platform such as Discord, Teamspeak or similar. The associated platform <https://tirakans-reiche.de> offers all kinds of tools for managing characters and campaigns. In addition you can roll any check directly on your character page and optionally display the results in your Discord chat.

What is a role-playing game?

Here, we are of course referring to traditional pen-and-paper role-playing games, not video games. In a typical session, a small group of two to four players players and a game master gather to tell a story together using character sheets and dice. This collaborative narrative is constantly shaped and advanced by the decisions of all participants.

Players begin by creating unique characters for either a short adventure or a long-term campaign. The character sheet serves as a blueprint, describing the character's origins, personality, and skills. These skills are quantified as numerical values, because resolving actions in the game requires players to make checks or rolls. These are tests using dice that determine the success or failure of a character's attempt. For example:

Example

Tom has decided to join a role-playing group with Julia, the game leader. Julia has chosen an adventure in the Kingdom of Asgoran in the year 322.

So Tom decides to create his character Jamie, a noble knight from Thenon. He chooses the character templates "Knight" and "Aristocratic", and the lineage template "Asgoran". He adds up all the values of the templates and records them on his character sheet.

Due to the chosen background, Jamie has particularly high initial values in skills such as Hand to hand combat, Endurance and Deftness. However, in Nature or Performance his skills are rudimentary at best.

For more information on creating a character, see Chapter 3 and Chapter 4.

While each player creates a character for the game, the game master prepares a story. This is often called an adventure, plot or campaign. This story is not, as like a novel, written out to the last detail. Instead, it is a rough script consisting of a general setting, possible courses of events, the description of places and locations, as well as so-called non-player characters (NPC).

Once the game starts, everyone player acts in the role of their character. The game leader describes situations to the best of their ability and occasionally shows maps or drawings. The players speak for their characters in the first person ("I sneak up the stairs."). If the characters' actions have an uncertain outcome, checks are used and dice are rolled.

Example

Julia gathered her group to begin the session, starting with a description of the opening scene.

Julia: "It is the 2nd of Fogmoon 322. You are in a tavern in the tranquil town of Lindfield in the south of Asgoran. It is late in the evening, and outside a light drizzle has caused the blanket of snow from the last few days to be covered in a thin layer of ice. It's going to be cold tonight, and slippery. The tavern is well filled. With a creak, the front door opens and a cloud of fine rain enters the pub. Immediately followed by a figure in a far too tight tar rain jacket."

This is the prelude, and Tom decides that his character Jamie would like to have a look at the newcomer. He announces the actions for Jamie:

Tom: "I'm going to have a very close look at the stranger, I've already noticed this ill-fitting jacket."

Julia: "You notice that wet, black hair is falling from under the hood into the face of an old man. Why don't you do a perception check, to see what else is going on?"

Think of the game as a shared story that everyone helps write. The Game Master is the architect, designing a world in motion with a cast of characters, hidden motives, and an event that pulls your characters into the heart of the action. But from that moment on, the players are in the driver's seat.

Whether you uncover a dark conspiracy or prevent an impending catastrophe is unknown. The Game Master sets the scene, but the players' decisions determine where the story goes.

It's all about storytelling

If you think of computer role-playing games, the strategic development of the character is the most important point. He must be able to survive future battles and have the best possible stats for possible challenges. In pen and paper role-playing games, it is about the progress of the story, about shared experiences and memories. The best possible focus on "strong" characteristics (so-called power gaming) should not be in the foreground here. Because the story is always carried forward together, there are very flexible solutions for all challenges.

A thought on power gaming: The Realms of Tirakan rulebook deliberately does not prevent the possibility of pushing a relevant value (e.g. shooting) to astronomical heights. There should be agreement in the game group on what style of play you want to have. The rules deliberately allow these constructions in order to give you freedom in the creation of characters and adventures.

Also, the old role-playing rule comes into play here: The word of the game master always weighs more than the rules. Of course, it should normally be the case that the rules are applied as written, because it is the framework for the players to rely on. However, if there is an unclear rule, situation or case, the ruling of the game master decides the outcome.

Combat in the role-playing game

Even if the focus in pen and paper role-playing lies less on armed confrontation, combat still plays an important role. Not every situation can be resolved peacefully. A fight can quickly break out or maybe the characters plan to rob a trader.

Combat in role-playing is treated differently from free play. Time is compressed into combat rounds, and you usually visualise the situation with a map on the (virtual) table. Players take turns, the game leader controls the NPCs. Wounds, or hit points, indicate how well the characters are still doing. You can find more details on the course of the battle in Chapter 5.

In the game, free play and combat should be balanced. There may be adventures that consist of only one (epic) battle, but Realms of Tirakan is not a realistic battle simulation. The aim is to carry out a conflict in the most entertaining, cinematic and or exciting way possible.

When fighting in the Realms of Tirakan system, however, the following things should always be followed due to the special features (reactions, stealing actions, etc.):

- Always use a map. A basic map of the situation ensures that there are no misunderstandings in positioning, no matter how short the fight is. A map can be a pre-made, elaborate map, but a quickly drawn floor plan works just as well.

- Always use a scale. Characters have different movement ranges. To keep track of advantages and drawbacks make sure not to mix metric and imperial systems.
- Use an initiative tracker. Initiative determines the turn order in combat and visualizes it transparent for all players. In Realms of Tirakan, it is important for the players to know when it is their turn again (not just because they lose their unused actions).

Characteristics

Realms of Tirakan has different approaches compared to other role-playing systems. In part, these were designed to achieve flexibility in the scenarios possible. The system puts a lot of focus on being easily accessible while allowing the player to perform heroic actions in combat.

Standard six-sided dice are used for rolls and checks. Dice are rolled in the number of the respective value. Rolling a 5 or higher means success. Usually, a single success enough to pass a check.

Character templates

Realms of Tirakan is not just a numbers game. Characters are not created or enhanced by allocating points to skills, attributes or other stats. Instead, character templates are used. Each one represents a small stage in the character's life.

These templates are subdivided into the life aspects: lineage, occupation, education, character, talent and environment. While the templates in the first two categories carry many traits (i.e. a healer is conscientiousness, and has first aid and medicine skills), a template from the talent section can be, for example, "Good Speaker", which only buffs the communication skill.

Character templates "bought" with reputation points, which are similar to experience points that characters receive for completing adventures.

Special actions in combat

The combat is designed to make the action as impressive as possible, but the mechanics are kept simple. The usual turn order of players applies, but the process is a little more fluid. Players are able to use Reactions, that are built into the combat system. Every player can save one or more actions in their turn until the next round of combat. These can be used to react other players or NPC actions in their respective turns. An example:

Additionally, it is possible to spontaneously create your own actions in combat by spending bonus dice, which are obtained through templates. Or the player can even steal an action from opponents by spending a destiny die. Although destiny dice are very rare, it may be possible to steal the enemies fatal blow and turn it into the players own action. This may sound somewhat unrealistic, but it gives the battle very dynamic options and can often lead to epic cinematic situations that even the game master cannot foresee.

Weapons

Weapons are designed to be upgradeable in Realms of Tirakan. There is a list of weapon modifications. Different ammunition is also represented as a weapon modification.

You can find more information about the combat rules and weapon modifications in Chapter 5.

Eras and extensions

Realms of Tirakan is designed to be as flexible as possible. It can be used for many scenarios, whether it's fantasy, science fiction, horror or stories in the "real" world. It offers a basic set of ready-made weapons, character templates, items and armour, which are divided into earthly eras. In addition, it is of course possible for a game group to create and use its own content.

To ensure that every scenario is possible, Realms of Tirakan distinguishes between three types of extensions.

◆ The basic rules

Some elements are always and everywhere valid. They apply regardless of which era or extension is chosen. Many character templates such as “Conscientious”, “Gun nut”, “Tattletale”, but also weapons and items are always available regardless of era or extension.

◆ Era or Age

Eras or ages are earthly time periods that are the template for all scenarios (including fantasy). They provide a technological level for weapons and items and determine what is available to players. Earthly history is divided into 8 ages.

- Classical Antiquity - 800 BC-600 AD.
- Medieval Ages, Vikings and Crusades - 500-1500
- Victorian Age and the Wild West - 1700-1900
- Imperialism and World Wars - 1900-1950
- Cold War and the 80s - 1950-1990
- Modern Times - 1990 and beyond
- Science Fiction - a distant future

The content of the era is based on the earthly technology of the time. An adventure always takes place in one of the eras. In addition, the contents of the eras are kept as free as possible from specifically earthly elements so that they can also be used in a fantasy world of their own. Of course, the Modern Era, has well-known modern weapons, and the two-handed sword is also an earthly invention. However, it is kept as generic as possible so that it also fits into a scenario that is not set on Earth.

◆ Extensions

In addition to the eras, certain extensions can be chosen to add magic or the workings of gods to an adventure, for example. These extensions can be chosen at will by the game master and are optional.

- Magic - adds the magic resource “Arcana” for the characters and brings spells and artifacts.
- Horror - defines rules for dealing with horror elements, stress and quirks.
- Pantheon - provides rules for interacting with gods: invocations, prayers and grace.
- Body modifications - provides a catalog of biomechanical elements that can be integrated into the body according to specific rules.

Worlds

By combining eras and extensions, any scenario can be created. A Cthulhu story in the Wild West is just as possible as a magical world in the modern age. A classic fantasy world of your own creation could make use of the Middle Ages era and the “magic” extension.

Some existing worlds combine this combination of eras and extensions, and also give you the description of an entire world. They are available as a complete template and can be used directly.

◆ Realms of Tirakan

The world of Tirakan is a complete fantasy world that can be played at any time in a 1000-year history. An elaborate story of humans, elves, gnomes and many other peoples tells the struggle of civilisations against minotaurs, lizards and a nameless darkness.

The story of Department V of the NEXUS is set in the modern era. It is a fictional secret organisation founded to protect humanity from alien and paranormal threats. Players play agents of Department V of the NEXUS, and through the ability to time travel, experience adventures in all sorts of eras and worlds.

The Character

To enter the world of Realms of Tirakan, you need a character - a fictional person you breathe life into and whose destiny you guide. The character sheet is where all the stats and traits that make your hero unique are recorded.

This chapter provides an overview of a character's fundamental attributes. The process of character creation is described in detail in Chapter 3.

Persona

The Persona attributes refer to the mental characteristics of the character. Each value corresponds to a personality trait. Persona traits have their own value and are also the base for skills.

Education

Education measures a character's acquired general knowledge and their ability to recall learned information. A high value suggests a person who has read a lot, attended a good school, or possesses an insatiable curiosity. Consequently, such a character excels in all theoretical skills like Nature or History.

Logic

While Education represents a character's stored knowledge, Logic is their ability to apply that knowledge and draw new conclusions. Logic is always crucial when it comes to creating a coherent picture from existing clues or analyzing complex problems. A character with high Logic is therefore superior in skills like Investigation, to connect the crucial details at a crime scene, or in Mechanics, to see through the design of a trap and disarm it.

Conscientiousness

Conscientiousness describes a character's diligence, discipline, and reliability. A high value signifies a methodical approach and prevents careless mistakes, which is crucial for skills like First Aid or Stealth.

Willpower

Willpower is the mental fortitude and determination with which a character pursues their goals and resists adversity. It represents the inner toughness to not be swayed from one's path by external pressure or internal doubt. A high value is therefore the foundation for skills like Courage, to remain steadfast even in hopeless situations, or Intimidation, to project one's own will onto others.

Apprehension

Apprehension describes how quickly and precisely a character grasps and processes their surroundings with all senses. It is the measure of innate alertness and awareness of one's environment, from the smallest sound to the widest landscape. A high value is therefore the foundation for skills like Perception, to spot hidden details or dangers, and Orienteering, to avoid getting lost in unfamiliar terrain.

Charm

Charm is the ability to create a positive connection with others and win them over through choice of words, demeanor, and personality. In contrast to purely external Attractiveness, Charm is an attribute based on intuition. A high value in this area is the foundation for skills like Politics, to win allies and conduct negotiations, as well as Empathy, to understand and react to the moods of others.

Physis

All physical attributes describe the character's physical abilities. Each attribute has a value that indicates the number of dice rolled for that attribute.

Deftness

Deftness covers both a character's general physical control as well as their fine hand-eye coordination. It is the measure of reflexes, balance, and the ability to execute precise and controlled movements. A high value in this attribute allows a character to excel in skills like Acrobatics, to evade obstacles and maintain balance, as well as in Shooting, to reliably hit a target even at a great distance.

Strength

Strength is the measure of a character's raw muscle power and physical might. It represents the ability to exert overwhelming physical force, whether to move heavy objects or to inflict devastating damage in combat. A high Strength value is therefore crucial for Hand to hand combat, to smash through armor with powerful blows, as well as for Throwing, to hurl objects at a target with great force.

Attractiveness

Attractiveness measures the immediate impact of a character's physical appearance and presence on others. This value doesn't necessarily describe conventional beauty, but rather how memorable or captivating a person's appearance is - be it through graceful features, an intimidating stature, or striking characteristics. High Attractiveness ensures that a character stands out from the crowd and leaves a strong first impression before they have even spoken a word.

Endurance

Endurance describes a character's purely physical resilience and toughness. It determines how long someone can engage in strenuous activities like a forced march, a long run, or a fight before exhaustion sets in.

Resistance

Resistance is the body's innate toughness and constitution, allowing a character to withstand damage and hostile influences. It represents the ability to mitigate the effects of poisons, or endure the hardships of extreme heat and cold. A character with high Resistance fends off diseases and other harmful effects more effectively.

Quickness

Quickness measures both a character's pure movement velocity as well as their reaction time. It determines how rapidly a person can travel to cover distances, but also how quickly they can react to sudden events or dangers.

The minimum roll

The minimum roll is a central feature of the character. It specifies the result a die must have to represent a success. The minimum roll is defined by the lineage and is 5+ for most characters. The "Masterly Presence" template lowers the minimum roll by 1, otherwise it can only be changed by special events or rare items, and often only for a short time.

Evasion

Evasion is used in combat and allows you to avoid a melee attack. It is equal to the Evasion value of the lineage plus the average of Quickness and Deftness (rounded up). Armour and weapons reduce this stat. Character templates can change this value.

Protection

If a character has protection due to their lineage, this is called "innate protection". Unlike the other protection types, this protection does not deplete until the end of combat; it refreshes at the start of the player's combat round (see Chapter 5).

Additional dice

Each character can have a number of bonus dice, destiny dice or rerolls. All three have different uses (see Chapter 4), but always represent an advantage to the character that can be used during the game.

The character can regain used dice during the rest (see Chapter 7).

Skills

More complex actions or knowledge are described by skills. All characters have the same skills with different values, so the GM can be sure that a player can definitely roll a skill.

Each skill has a base attribute and a skill value. For example, the base attribute for the skill Intimidation is Apprehension.

The base attribute is added to the bonuses of the selected character templates.

Intimidation

The Intimidation skill is a measure of how well a character can intimidate others. This skill can be used to extract information from an opponent or to make them retreat from a fight.

Attribute: Apprehension

Empathy

Empathy is the ability to interpret a person's feelings and moods, and perhaps to recognise intentions. Thoughts cannot be read.

Attribute: Charm

Stealth

Stealth is the art of concealment. This skill is used both for stealthy movement (sneaking) and to check how secretive the character is. It can be used, for example, when the character is being interrogated or is tempted to divulge a secret.

Attribute: Conscientiousness

Magic Knowledge

Magic Knowledge is the theoretical and academic knowledge about the nature of magic. It allows a character to analyze the structure of a foreign spell, decipher arcane writings, or know the history and rituals of ancient magical cults. In direct contrast to the practical skill of Spell Casting, Magic Knowledge is the skill of understanding and identifying, not of applying.

Attribute: Charm

Orientation

This skill is used for orientation, both in the countryside and in confusing situations. It can be used in the confusing crowds of the city, but also when the character is whirled by a water vortex.

Attribute: Apprehension

Politics

Whenever it comes to assessing political action, this skill is used. This can be the case in real politics, but can also represent moving safely in aristocratic circles.

Attribute: Charm

Religion

This skill includes knowledge of religious teachings, as well as confidence in performing religious ceremonies.

Attribute: Conscientiousness

Courage

This skill comes into play whenever it is a question of how brave a character is. For example, it can be used to determine whether a character is brave enough to face a powerful opponent.

Attribute: Willpower

Deception

If the character wants to deceive an opponent, or, for example, cheat at the game, this skill can be rolled on.

Attribute: Charm

Persuasion

If the character wants to convince his counterpart argumentatively, this skill is used.

Attribute: Willpower

Investigation

This skill is used when the character wants to examine an object, a certain scene or an object for certain properties.

Attribute: Apprehension

Perception

Perception represents the character's ability to perceive things in his environment. This can be the search of an house, the search for the shadowy thief at the edge of the forest, or even a movement in the face of the opponent.

Attribute: Apprehension

Acrobatics

Acrobatics is the art of moving quickly and skillfully. Unlike athleticism, this skill is used when the character climbs over a ledge or makes a short sprint.

Attribute: Deftness

Performance

Performance is the artistic presentation. This can be acting, but also the musical performance of a piece. An impressive tall tale can also be told with the help of performance.

Attribute: Charm

First Aid

First aid must be carried out with sufficient dressing materials to be successful.

If the throw is successful, the person receiving first aid recovers wounds equal to half the successes (rounded up) of the throw.

First aid stops any bleeding.

Attribute: Conscientiousness

Driving

The Driving skill describes the driving of all kinds of vehicles. The skill applies to all mobile objects such as ships, vehicles or carriages.

Attribute: Deftness

History

History describes the character's knowledge of history and past events. Antiquities can also be assessed with this skill.

Attribute: Education

Communication

The ability to socialize is described by the skill Communication. It describes how skillfully the character behaves in conversations.

Mechanics

Mechanics includes all manual activities as well as the knowledge of mechanical processes. Working on a piece of wood or understanding a mechanical clock can be mapped with this skill.

Attribute: Logic

Hand To Hand Combat

The value of this skill is the basis for attacking with melee weapons. This skill is not usually rolled on directly.

Attribute: Strength

Nature

Nature describes the character's knowledge of all facets of nature. This skill can be used when the character is searching for plants, gathering wood in the forest, or judging the nature of an animal.

Attribute: Education

Shooting

The value of this skill is the basis for attacking with ranged weapons. This skill is not usually rolled on directly.

Attribute: Deftness

Throwing

This skill is used whenever the character throws objects. These can be simple objects like stones, but also incendiary charges or nets.

For exact rules on throwing items, see Chapter 5.

Attribute: Strength

Spell Casting

The spell casting skill is the measure of a character's mastery over raw magical energies and their ability to shape and direct them with purpose. It is used to cast powerful spells, engage in magical duels, or create artifacts. In crucial contrast to the purely theoretical Magic Knowledge, spell casting thus describes the active and practical application of magic.

Attribute: Willpower

Knowledge

Knowledge works in a similar way to skills, but the list is not predefined. Characters can have different knowledge skills based on their background, which they can use freely. Knowledge is always associated with a skill. The effective die roll value is the sum of the knowledge value and the skill value.

Knowledge is gained through character templates. The character templates indicate whether they bring this knowledge with them.

Shadows

A character can have special traits that affect them outside of their physical or mental attributes. Each shadow has its own description or rule. For example, a character may have a rival or be obedient to authority. Shadows do not have values, but can have their own rules.

Shadows are indicated on character templates. If a character template contains a written rule, it is a shadow.

Languages

The number of languages a character can learn is based on the sum of their Education and Logic attributes. These can be any languages from the character's world. If the sum of these attributes is 0 or less, the character has only a limited understanding of their native language.

The limit on the number of languages that can be learnt serves as a guideline for new characters. However, languages learned in the course of the game can exceed this limit.

Character templates or magical items can increase the number of languages that can be learnt.

Contacts

Contacts are connections that a character has with other people or beings that they can rely on. These are typically people outside the party, such as a noble, a government contact, or a doctor.

When creating a character, they can have a certain number of contacts, based on the sum of the Charm and Attractiveness attributes.

This number can be exceeded if new contacts are made during the game.

Creating a Character

To create a character, you select character templates that reflect their life stages, talents and interests (see Chapter A). Each template can alter the character's attributes and skills, as well as bringing knowledge and shadows.

Additionally, character templates can unlock game mechanics, such as performing the actions of a priest or learning magic spells.

Reputation

A character's reputation reflects their level of fame. Characters earn a certain amount of reputation for each adventure they complete. New characters usually start with 20 reputation points. However, the game master can determine this.

Reputation is used to add character templates. Each template costs a certain number of reputation points.

Character templates can have negative reputation costs. In this case, the player receives the points when they select the template. This applies to the Drunkard template, for example.

Selecting templates

A character template represents a specific stage in a character's life. Each template is assigned to one of the following categories: education, occupation, talent, interests, character or environment.

Each template alters a small number of the character's attributes and skills, either positively or negatively, and may bring with it knowledge or shadows. Additionally, templates may contain their own rules, which the character then adopts.

Scholar

Reputation:	10
Education	+4
Nature	+1
History	+2
Communication	+1

Each template is worth a certain amount of reputation. This is the number of reputation points that must be spent to incorporate the template into the character's career.

The list of templates can be found in Chapter A.

Base values

All of a character's attributes, skills and other values start with a uniform base value. Information from the character templates is then added to these values.

- Actions: 2
- Minimum roll: 5+
- Bonus, destiny, and re-rolls: 0
- Attributes: 1
- Skills: 0
- Innate protection: 0
- Maximum wounds: 10
- Arcana: 0
- Spell Points: 0

Lineage

First, during character creation, you choose your character's lineage. This origin not only describes the culture your character comes from, but also provides a lineage template that grants the typical strengths of a member of your people.

Only one lineage template may be chosen, and it does not cost any Reputation.

The available templates are listed in the Chapter A.

The chosen lineage is noted in the career and the specified modifications are added to the character's values.

Additional templates

You can now select as many additional templates as you wish until you have used up all your reputation. You can combine templates from all categories. This means that your character can have one or more occupations, or none at all.

The modifications specified for each template are added to the character's values. In addition, the knowledge, shadows and other rules of the template are added to the character sheet.

All values can also become negative (see Chapter 4).

Remaining reputation

Once the player is satisfied with the template, they can declare the character finished. Any remaining reputation that has not been spent will be added to the character's reputation (see Chapter 8). This means that no reputation is lost.

Contacts and languages

Once the character templates have been finalised, the character's languages and contacts can be determined.

Contacts

Contacts are acquaintances or connections that the character had before the start of the campaign. They are recorded with their names and descriptions, and can be imagined as desired.

The number of contacts a new character can have is determined by the sum of the attributes Charm and Attractiveness.

Contacts are recorded on the character sheet.

Languages

A new character can learn a certain number of languages based on the sum of their Education and Logic attributes. These can be any languages. If the sum of these attributes is 0 or less, the character has only a limited command of their native language.

Languages are recorded on the character sheet.

Equipment

Once the character's stats have been determined using the templates, the character can be equipped with gear. The game master sets a starting capital for the characters for the campaign or adventure.

The starting capital is usually 2,000 Gulden.

This starting capital can be used to purchase equipment such as weapons, armor, and items. For more details, see the Chapter 6 chapter.

Equipment

Chapter B, Chapter D and Chapter E can now be purchased with your starting capital. Any purchased items can be noted on the character sheet with their values, and the price can be deducted from your starting capital.

Assets

Any starting capital not spent on weapons, armor, and similar items becomes the character's assets.

Spells

Character templates offer spell points and allow the character to learn spells of a certain origin.

If the character has obtained both through the choice of character templates, they can use the spell points to choose spells that they have mastered.

Spells are acquired in a similar way to templates for points. Spell points are used for this purpose. Each spell has a specific cost for which it can be added to the character sheet (see Chapter F). Only spells of origins that the character has unlocked through character templates can be selected. More details can be found in the chapter ??.

Rolls and Checks

Whenever a character performs an action with an uncertain outcome, dice are rolled for a suitable value, which is usually determined by the game master. The outcome of the roll indicates whether and how well the action succeeded. This is called a roll or check.

All dice are rolled using six-sided dice. The number of dice is determined by the character's value in that attribute, plus any bonus or destiny dice.

A check is therefore a roll with a number of dice, where a minimum roll must be achieved, which can be modified by a level of difficulty. The elements are explained in more detail below.

This type of check is used everywhere outside of combat. In combat, there are special rules for determining hits and injuries.

The number of dice

The number of dice rolled for a check corresponds exactly to the Total Skill Value. This value is the sum of the skills's Base Attribute and any bonuses granted by Character Templates.

Example

A character with a Total Value of 4 in 'Intimidate' (e.g., Apprehension 1 + Template 3) rolls 4 six-sided dice.

Knowledge skills have a value that determines the number of dice rolled. However, an associated skill is also given, and its value is added to the knowledge value. For example, a character with the skill 'Communication' 2 and the knowledge 'Etiquette (Communication)' 3 has 5 'Etiquette' dice.

If the total value is 0 or negative, the character cannot make the check without further help, he is simply too bad at this skill. However, bonus dice or destiny dice can be used even if the value is negative.

The minimum roll

The minimum roll for a character is 5+. This can be altered by lineage, additional character templates or special circumstances.

Example

Hagen's player wants to use brute force to break down a door that stands between him and a suspected gang of thieves. The GM asks him to roll for strength.

Hagen has a value of 4, so he rolls 4 dice. Any die that comes up 5 or higher is a success. However, Hagen's player rolls 4 successes and immediately kicks the door in the first thief's face.

The minimum roll is in the form of "X+" to indicate that this is the minimum roll that must be achieved.

Levels of difficulty

The GM can modify the minimum roll for particularly easy or difficult checks. For hard checks, the modifier can be specified as a roll +, for easy checks as a roll -.

A +3 test means that the minimum roll is increased by 3, so usually 8+. This is where the fact that all dice are rolled further comes into play, i.e. they are exploding dice.

The usual difficulty levels are:

- -2: very easy
- -1: easy
- 0: normal
- +1: difficult
- +3: very difficult
- +6: extremely difficult
- +12: impossible

Example

There are two locks to pick, a simple padlock and a complex cylinder lock. Hagen has a picking skill of 3. The GM requires a -1 check for the padlock and a +6 check for the cylinder lock.

Hagen rolls 3 dice on 4+ for the padlock and 3 dice on 11+ for the cylinder lock.

Exploding Dice

In Realms of Tirakan, it is possible for the minimum rolls to be higher than 6+, sometimes significantly higher. The exploding dice rule applies to any roll.

Dice that result in a 6 after being rolled may be rolled again. The results are then added together. For example, a 9+ roll can be made by rolling a 6 and then at least a 3. A 14+ roll can only be made by rolling a 6, then another 6 and then at least a 2.

As no distinction is made between the individual dice in a roll of multiple dice, all sixes can be re-rolled at the same time if this is necessary to achieve a high minimum roll.

Example

Hagen's GM requires him to roll a +9 Courage check, as he is fighting alone against the band of robbers. He must therefore roll a 14 on at least one of his Courage roll dice. Fortunately, he has a Courage rating of 5, so he has 5 dice to roll.

On the first roll, he rolls 4,2,6,6,1, giving him two sixes, which he can keep rolling to try to get to 14. The second roll (with the two dice) shows a 6 and a 1.

Now he can only re-roll the remaining die, which shows a 6. Since the second roll shows a 1, even the strong courage does not help, and Hagen only gets a 13.

Critical successes

Similar to critical hits in combat, other rolls can result in critical successes. If a die shows a result of at least 11, this is a critical success. This is the equivalent of rolling another exploding die, which will again give a result of 5+. Changes to the character's minimum roll are not applied here.

Critical successes result in an additional success each time a 5+ is rolled. This results in the following limits for additional successes.

- Roll 5+: normal success
- Roll 11+: critical success - results in one additional success
- Roll 17+: megacritical success - results in two additional successes
- Roll 23+: megacritical success - gives three additional successes
- Roll 29+: megacritical success - gives four additional successes
- etc.

Bonus dice

A character can have a certain number of bonus dice. These are determined by the templates (see Chapter 3). Any number of bonus dice can be added to the dice of a roll. This can be done even if the actual roll has already failed. In this way, you can sacrifice one bonus die after another in order to achieve a success.

In this way, a check can be made when the number of dice is 0 or less.

The bonus dice are refreshed to their maximum at each rest.

Rerolls

The number of re-rolls a character has is a character trait that can be obtained through templates.

A complete roll can be re-rolled for each re-roll. It is not possible to pass a roll with a value of 0 or less.

Rerolls also refresh to their maximum at each rest.

Destiny dice

Destiny dice are usually given to the character as part of their career, but the GM can also award individual destiny dice for special actions or on special occasions.

Destiny dice can be used as bonus dice as well as for re-rolling. A result of 4+ on a destiny die is always a success, regardless of the difficulty of the check. If the destiny die is used as a reroll, this applies to all dice rolled in that check.

The Destiny dice must always be rolled separately from the normal dice to see if they have rolled a 4+.

Example

Looking at the previous example of Hagen's Courage roll (5 dice on 14+), a Fate roll would help him a lot here, as he would only need to roll a 4+.

Destiny dice refresh to their maximum at every rest.

Group rolls

Whenever the group as a whole needs to pass a check, group rolls are used. For example, instead of asking each player to make an Apprehension check, the GM can ask the whole group to make an Apprehension check. If the check is successful, the effect applies to all characters in the group.

A successful group roll always requires a certain number of successes. The GM decides how many successes are required for a group roll to be successful. Each player then rolls for the required attribute or skill.

All the successes of the characters are added up. If the required number of successes is reached, the check is successful.

In the case of a party roll, each party can use bonus, destiny, and reroll dice as usual. It is also possible to modify the minimum roll based on the severity of the check.

In a group roll, each participant can use Bonus and Destiny dice and Re-rolls as normal. It is also possible to change the minimum roll according to the difficulty of the check.

Concealment

A special roll is the Concealment Roll. This is used when a person is observing a character and is looking for certain conspicuous items of equipment. Each piece of equipment has a concealment value. The higher the value, the more noticeable the item will be.

If a person is observing a character or the whole group, the item with the highest concealment value is used for the concealment roll.

The person observing now rolls a number of dice equal to their Perception value plus the determined Conceal.

Combat

Start of combat

As soon as a conflict arises, time freezes and the group determines the order in which the combatants act.

Initiative

Each player rolls d6 according to the quickness value. The exploding dice rule applies here as well. The dice results are added up. The competitor with the highest score starts the fight, the others follow in the order of their results.

Example

A rogue with quickness 4 rolls on her speed and gets 4, 5, 1 and 17. Her result is 27.

If two combatants have the same result, the Quickness value decides first, and if this is also the same, the Deftness value.

Quick Reaction

Before the combat begins, each participant performs a apprehension check. This check symbolises the character's ability to react quickly to new threats. If successful, the competitor receives a "Quick Reaction", which allows them to react before their first round of combat begins. This Quick Reaction counts as a normal action (see below), but can only be used for reactions.

If this check fails, the participant does not receive their actions until the start of the first round of combat, and cannot act before then.

Once it is the player's turn, their actions are refreshed and the Quick Reaction expires.

Sequence of rounds

The combat is divided into combat rounds. These have the following order:

- Start of round
- The "Player Combat Round" is conducted for each participant in order of initiative.
 - Start of the Player Combat Round
 - The player's actions are refreshed
 - The player performs their actions
 - End of player combat round
- End of round

The participant may perform an action for each of his available actions (see Actors and Actions) or save the action for a reaction in his opponent's turn (see Reactions).

Once the last participant has acted, the next combat round begins with the first participant.

Both "Start of Round" and "End of Round" are phases in which reactions can be made. To do this, players must save actions and perceive the last actor directly. Some effects, such as spells, can also be carried out during these phases.

Actor and actions

When it is a participant's turn, they are the actor. The actor is the participant who is actively acting and can use or withhold their actions as they wish.

At the start of the player combat round, the player's Actions are refreshed. The number of actions a character has is determined by their character templates. The base value for every character is 2.

"Refresh" therefore means that all actions are available again. If the participant has already used up any actions, e.g. by actions taken in the previous round, the available actions will be reset to the maximum.

Once the actions are refreshed, the participant can act in combat. To do this, he performs actions one after another, each act taking a certain number of actions. Actions can be, among others, the following:

- To attack with a weapon
- Parry with a weapon or object.
- Reload a weapon
- Use an object
- Evade a melee attack.
- Aim with a melee weapon or when firing a single shot.
- Perform any action (see below)
- Hunker or lay on the ground (The “Hunkered” status effect is active, see Chapter 7).
- Stand Up
- Walk Quickness + 1 meter (while performing another action without consuming an action, but the minimum roll is increased by 1).
- Run Quickness + 5 meters
- Rob Quickness / 2 + 1 meters (rounded up), the character must be Hunkered. (see Chapter 7: Conditions of the character)

Actions should not be performed together, but always one after the other, because of possible reactions.

◆ Arbitrary actions

A character can also perform any action that is not on the list. In this case, the GM must decide whether the action requires one or more actions. An action that is not on the list should normally require one action. This could be anything, such as lighting a pipe, smashing two opponents’ heads together, or throwing an object. The GM decides which roll is required.

Reactions

When an actor acts in combat, all participants who directly perceive the actor may react to that action.

The following conditions must be met in order to respond to an action:

- The reacting participant must directly perceive the actor, i.e. he must hear, see or otherwise take note of his action.
- The reacting participant still has unused actions.

The reaction is announced and carried out immediately after the actor’s action. However, it takes place in the game time before the action. An action can only be followed by one reaction from a participant. Any number of players can react to the actor if they recognise his action. In practice, this means that the reacting player announces his reaction after the actor has performed his action and possibly rolled the dice. This may vary from situation to situation.

If more than one player reacts to an action, the order of reaction is determined by initiative. The player with the highest initiative reacts first, followed by the other players in descending order of initiative.

Each reaction reduces the available actions of the reacting participant by one.

Example

Hagen is involved in a fight with a robber. Hagen has attacked in his combat round, but has saved an action to be able to react. The robber’s combat round begins. The robber attacks. The GM rolls four dice and scores three hits. Hagen’s player decides that Hagen should react with a Shield Parry. He announces his reaction to the robber’s attack after the GM has made the attack. He can do this because he still has one action left and is directly aware of his opponent’s attack. The reaction now takes place in the game before the robber’s attack. The shield parry rule gives Hagen a cover roll of 5+ for his round shield. He rolls for each of the robber's three hits. He rolls a 5 twice, preventing two hits. The third hit hits him.

Bonus dice actions

Bonus and destiny dice can be used in combat to gain or steal actions.

To gain an additional action, a bonus die can be subtracted. The additional action is available immediately, even for a reaction.

If a destiny die is spent, an action can be stolen from an opponent. This is no longer available to the opponent in his current (or next, if it is not his turn) turn. The participant who spent the destiny die has the action immediately available, even as a reaction.

Spending dice for actions does not itself take an action.

Sequence of an attack

Attacks with weapons are handled exactly the same in melee and ranged combat. The only difference is that attacks with melee weapons are thrown at the Hand to Hand combat skill, attacks with firearms are thrown at the Shooting skill, and attacks with throwing weapons are thrown at the Throwing skill.

An attack has the following phases:

- The Hit Roll determines how many hits a character achieves in an attack with a weapon. Here, the dice are rolled on the respective weapon skill, and a distinction is made between critical hits and hits.
- The Cover roll is available to the attacked character if he has cover. Here it is possible to avert damage even before the hits hit the armor. Shields can provide cover.

- Converting hits into wounds taking into account protection, penetration and critical hits.

The hit roll

To carry out an attack, a roll is made with the appropriate skill (shooting, melee or throwing). The number of dice is increased by the weapon's damage potential. The minimum roll for this roll corresponds to the character's minimum roll.

The number of dice is initially equal to the character's respective skill value (shooting, hand to hand combat, throwing) plus the damage potential of the weapon.

Each success causes a hit to the target of the attack. How the target can prevent damage is described under Wounds and Pierce and Cover.

Critical hits

Hits caused during the hit roll become critical hits if they reach the value 11 during the roll. This is equivalent to an exploding die "thrown farther", which then shows a result of 5+ again. Changes to the character's minimum throw are not applied here.

If critical hits are achieved when attacking, they are announced separately from normal hits. A single shot from a bow could thus result in "2 crits, 3 normal hits".

Critical hits are treated as normal hits, but will always penetrate normal armour. Only armour of the type 'protection against critical hits' can protect against critical hits, all other types of armour protection cannot prevent critical hits.

If a cover roll occurs, critical hits must be treated separately from normal hits. So the attacked person rolls twice on his cover, once for the number of critical hits, and once for the number of normal hits.

Example

The mercenary Maragas rolls 4, 5, 5 and 14, giving him 2 normal hits and a critical hit. The critical hit penetrates the armour, the normal hits can be reduced by the protection of the person attacked.

♦ Megacritical hits

If critical hits occur, the exploding dice can be rolled further than 11. The roll continues until no 6 is reached on the respective die.

If a die reaches a 5 again after the second roll, it is a megacritical hit. These hits are treated as critical hits, but cause an additional wound if not prevented.

For each roll of a 5+, the number of wounds is increased. So one megacritical hit can cause a lot of wounds. The rule of 5+ results in the following limits for wounds:

- Roll 5+: normal hit.
- Roll 11+: critical hit - ignores armor
- Roll 17+: megacritical hit - ignores armor, +1 wound
- Roll 23+: megacritical hit - ignores armor, +2 wounds
- Roll 29+: megacritical hit - ignores armor, +3 wounds

♦ Aiming

It is possible to aim with ranged weapons as well as with melee weapons.

The character can invest actions to aim at his target more precisely. For every 1 action, the critical hit limit is reduced by 2 for the next attack. This bonus to critical hits may not exceed the character's perception value.

If the aiming character is hit while aiming, the accumulated aiming bonus is removed.

Incorrect distance

Each weapon has a specified distance at which it is effective. If the target's distance differs from that specified with the weapon, there is a penalty to the hit rolls.

If the real shooting distance is less than the specified distance of the weapon, the attack is performed normally. If the distance is increased up to the double of the weapon, the minimum roll of the hit roll is increased by 2.

If the target's distance is more than twice the weapon's range away, it is not possible to shoot or attack at the target.

Cover

If parts of the person being attacked are hidden from the attacker's view, the rule of cover applies. It depends on how much the attacked is hidden. The cover is classified into 3 levels:

- 4+ Cover: Most of the person being attacked is hidden.
- 5+ cover: The target is half hidden
- 6+ Cover: It is a bit harder to hit the target behind light cover. This effect is achieved among other things by the "hunkered" condition.

If the attacked has at least 6+ cover, he is allowed a cover roll after the hit roll. For this, he rolls as many dice as the attacker had hits. For each success (on the minimum roll according to the cover), one hit is removed.

If the attacker has scored critical hits, the Cover Roll must be made separately for critical and normal hits to determine which hits were prevented.

♦ Shields

Shields can be used when the character wields a one-handed weapon.

Shields can be used in two different ways.

- For Shield Block, the shield is readied in its own turn with two actions. In subsequent combat rounds, the shield provides the cover listed below for all attacks against the character. While the shield block is active, the character's movement range is halved. The Shield Block is active until the character cancels it, that is, lowers the shield.
- The Shield Parry can be used spontaneously as a reaction. It provides the below cover roll for a single attack and costs one action.

Unlike other armour, shields have a special value, the cover value. This is expressed in the form X+, meaning that shields provide this amount of cover. A round shield provides 5+ cover, so after an attack, the attacked can roll 5+ for each hit to avoid it before the application of Protection and Wounds. This is possible with both Shield Parry and Shield Block.

Protection and Piercing

Any success of the hit roll which was not prevented by cover is a hit on the target of the attack. Other circumstances can also cause hits, for example an explosion can cause "3 hits with 2 wounds each". Here, hits can be prevented by cover.

When a character takes a hit, they can use protection to avoid that hit. The character has a protection pool, which is a combination of all their armour and other effects. For each unit of protection used, one hit is prevented, possibly with additional effects (see Protection Pool).

Any hit not prevented by protection becomes as many wounds as the weapon or effect specifies. If nothing is specified, a hit causes one wound.

Protection Pool

Each character has a protection pool made up of all their armour. Each piece of armour has a certain amount of protection, which is expressed in protection units. You can find more information about armour in the Chapter 6 chapter.

When a character is attacked or otherwise hit, they can use protection from their protection pool to prevent these hits. Using protection does not cost an action, and you can use as many as you like.

The protection pool represents the armour a character wears in battle. During combat, the armour can shift, a strap can break, and a piece of armour can fall off. As a result, the pool gets smaller during the fight, which is represented by the amount of protection spent. After the battle, all the armour in the pool is restored.

The protection pool is only available during combat. When a character takes damage outside of combat, it is up to them and the GM to assess the potential damage reduction provided by armour.

Example

Hagen wears a linen tabard. It has a protection value of "N N B", meaning it provides twice the normal protection and protection against bleeding. His opponent strikes with a powerful war axe, dealing 6 normal hits and one critical hit.

Hagen's player decides to use the "N" protection to remove two of the normal hits. He removes the "N" protection from his protection pool for this fight and takes four more hits. He cannot prevent the critical hits, as neither "N" (normal protection) nor "B" (protection against bleeding) can prevent them.

Wounds

A wound is added directly to the wounds taken by the character. It can only be prevented if a template, equipment or other explicitly contains a rule that modifies wounds.

Weaponless melee

If the character attacks without a weapon, the player rolls hit dice equal to his hand-to-hand combat value. The minimum roll is equal to the character's minimum roll, which is usually 5+.

If the character's Strength value is higher than 2, the Melee melee attack has Piercing 1.

If the character's Quickness value is higher than 2, the character adds one die to the roll.

The range of an unarmed melee attack is 1 meter.

Dodge

The attacked character can dodge a melee attack as a reaction. This requires that the attacked character has an action available and can sense the attacker. Thus, an attack from behind cannot be dodged.

The value is equal to the dodge value of the character templates plus the average of speed and dexterity (rounded up). The load of armor and weapons reduces this value.

To dodge an attack, the character rolls a die to his value in Dodge. The minimum roll for this is increased by the number of hits the opponent scores. If the attacked person scores at least one success, he has completely dodged the attack.

Parry melee attacks

Melee attacks can be parried if the attacked has a suitable melee weapon ready and an action left.

To do this, you make a reaction roll as if you were attacking with a weapon. For each success on this roll, one of the attacker's hits is removed. Critical hits can only be prevented by critical successes on the parry roll.

Special Attacks

There are a number of special attacks that a character can use to refine or change their attack.

Accurate Attack

In the accurate attack, the character aims longer to land a better hit. The exchange ratio here is 1 action for reducing the minimum roll by 1. The exchange can also go over turns. The minimum roll can be reduced by a maximum of the character's Perception value, but cannot go below 2. No other action can be taken during this time. After that, a normal attack is made with the changed values.

Knockout Attack

The Knockout Attack has only the intention of knocking an opponent out, but without inflicting any damage. The attacker must wield a blunt weapon, or at least strike with a blunt object. If the attack is successful, the opponent roll a resistance check. If he does not achieve as many successes as there are hits, he is knocked out.

The attack does not inflict any wounds. Cover and armor are taken into account as usual.

Massive attack

In a massive attack, the character gathers all his strength to deliver a massive blow. For each additional action the character invests in this attack, the number of dice for this attack increases by 3, up to a maximum of the character's strength value.

Disarming attack

With a disarming attack, the attacker tries to knock the weapon out of the opponent's hand. To do this, he must succeed in an attack on the weapon's arm, with a minimum roll raised by 2. The attacked person must roll on his strength or deftness after the attack, and achieve at least as many successes as the attacker had hits.

If the attacked fails to do so, he has been disarmed. The disarming attack doesn't cause any wounds.

Two-handed fighting

If the character is particularly skilled in the use of a weapon, he can wield two weapons of the same type at the same time, i.e. ambidextrously. Two-handed fighting is only possible with one-handed weapons. Weapons that are wielded with both hands anyway (heavy axes, polearms, etc.) cannot be wielded in two-handed combat.

If a character wields two weapons of the same type at the same time, the character gets one more action per combat round. The weapon he wields with his secondary hand attacks with a minimum roll increased by 1.

Support weapon

If this is possible with the weapon being used (usually firearms except bows), the character can place the weapon on a suitable spot before using it. Supporting takes one action. If shooting with a supported weapon, the minimum roll is reduced by 1. It costs no action to pick up a propped weapon again.

Coup de grâce

A character can kill an opponent directly if the opponent is unconscious, sleeping, or dying. To do this, the player rolls a normal attack roll. If this roll succeeds with at least one success, the opponent receives the status dead with the level corresponding to the successes of the attack. If the opponent is already dying, the level of the state is increased by the number of wounds of the attack.

If the attack fails, a sleeping victim is likely to awaken.

Throwing objects

If an item, such as a throwing net, is thrown at a target, the character rolls to its throw value. The minimum roll is equal to the character's minimum roll, usually 5+.

If the roll results in at least one success, the character has hit his target.

Deviation

If the roll on throwing shows no success, then the roll has failed. In this case, a roll is made on the deviation.

First, a 2D6 is thrown to determine the direction of the deviation. The result of the throw gives the direction in the way of the "clock", seen by the throwing character looking at the target. A 3 thus deviates to the right of the target, as seen by the throwing character.

Then a D6 is thrown, which determines the distance of the deviation in meters.

The thrown object thus lands at the determined location.

Equipment and Gear

An essential part of the adventurer's life is the equipment. For a new character, the starting capital can be used to buy equipment. This section describes the different types of equipment, their characteristics and their values.

Items

The simplest form of equipment are items. These can be anything that the character accumulates in their life. Tents, torches and bandages are equipment items. Animals and carts also fall under equipment. If the character acquires or obtains an item, it is simply noted on the character sheet.

Items are sorted into the following categories:

- First aid
- Vehicles
- Containers
- Curiosities
- Lights
- Musical instruments
- Pet supplies
- Trekking equipment
- Potions
- Throwables
- Tools
- Ingredients
- Surveillance

Properties

Items can have various properties relevant to the game. All items have the following properties:

- Price: this is the average purchase price of the item when it is acquired. This price is expressed in Gulden .

- Rarity: Rarity describes how available the item is. It can be common, uncommon, rare, legendary or unique.

- Weight: the weight of the item. This is used to judge the carrying capacity of the character, although there is no rule for overloading here.

- Concealment: the concealment indicates how easy an item is to find if an observer is specifically looking for it. A higher value here represents an item that is easier to find.

Item rules

Some items have special rules that may also require a skill or attribute roll. These rules are listed with the item. For example, a bandage allows you to use your First Aid skill to heal a character.

Charges

Items can contain charges. If this is the case, a charge is removed if it is used successfully.

For example, a carafe of arcane potion has three charges.

If all charges are used up, the item can no longer be used according to its purpose until it is possibly refilled.

Weapons

Weapons are distinguished from everyday items, they have different game values and mechanics. Like items, weapons are recorded on the character sheet when they are purchased or obtained by other means.

Weapons are assigned to different types of weapons. In the game, only the difference between melee, ranged and throwing weapons is important, as the respective value (shooting, hand to hand combat, throwing) is rolled. There are the following types of weapons:

- Axes
- Blades
- Blunt Weapons
- Bows
- Polearms
- Slings
- Throwing Weapons

Properties

Weapons have the following properties:

- Price: As with items, this is the price for which the weapon can be purchased on average.
- Rarity: Rarity describes how available the weapon is. It can be common, uncommon, rare, legendary or unique.
- Weight: as with items, the weight of the weapon is used to give a rough idea of how much the character can carry.
- Concealment: The concealment of the weapon indicates how easy it is to detect when searching for it. A higher value means easier recognition of the weapon.
- Type: The type of the weapon indicates to which weapon class the weapon belongs.
- Damage potential: This value is indicated by a number of dice. The dice represent the potential of the weapon to do more damage and are added to the skill value on attack rolls.
- Piercing: Reduces the target's protection by the number of protection units specified. For the protection to have effect, the target must expend more protection units than the piercing of the weapon.

- Actions to ready: Weapons can take a different amount of time to ready. It usually takes one action to change or pick up a weapon. However, there are also very fast weapons that can be switched to without delay, and also very complex weapons.
- Range (metres): The range is given for all weapon types. For ranged and thrown weapons, it indicates the maximum range at which a target can be reasonably hit. Melee weapons with a range of more than one metre can be used at the indicated range, such as pole weapons.

Ranged weapons have the following additional properties:

- Capacity describes how much ammunition the weapon can hold at the same time, e.g. the magazine size in modern weapons.
- Reload actions indicates how many combat actions the character must invest to completely reload the weapon.

Rules

Weapons, like objects, can have special rules. These describe in detail what is to be observed when using the weapon.

In addition to formulated rules, there is also the specification of special caused conditions (see Chapter 7). As a rule, these are indicated with a value. This is the value that the hit adds to the corresponding condition when the weapon causes wounds. Possible conditions are:

- Bleeding X
- Poisoned X
- Shocked X
- Burning X

Example

Hagen is attacked by a cultist wielding a dagger with a roughened blade. This dagger inflicts Bleeding 1 when it causes wounds.

Hagen does not parry the attack and receives two wounds. Due to the dagger's effect, he also gains the "Bleeding 1" condition.

Weapon modifications

In addition to weapons, there is a list of weapon modifications. These allow weapons to be modified.

Weapon modifications are divided into the following categories:

- Blade: such as a hardened blade or a special engraving
- Ammunition: special types of ammunition, but also quivers
- Grips: leather-wrapped handles for swords and the like

Usually, these weapon modifications change one or more values of the weapon. However, they can also bring their own rules.

Characters can find or acquire already modified weapons in the game, but of course they can also commission a modification.

Armour

Armour items, like weapons, are noted separately from normal items on the character sheet. Armour provides protection which can prevent wounds in combat. In addition to wearable armour, this list also includes shields that can provide cover for the character.

Armour is divided into categories:

- Clothing
- Light armour
- Medium armour

- Heavy armour
- Shield

Properties

Armour items have the following game-relevant values:

- Type: the armour type, e.g. "Light Armour".
- Price: the average purchase price of the armour
- Weight: the weight of the armour
- Concealment: how hard is the armour to spot if an observer specifically looks for it?
- Encumbrance: Heavy armour hinders the character in physical actions. Encumbrance is subtracted from the character's evasion value.

Protection

Each piece of armour has a certain amount of protection units. These are shown as shields on the armour. These shields can be used in combat to prevent hits. There are the following types of armour:

- Normal protection (N): This protection can be used to prevent a normal hit.
- Critical protection (C): This protection can prevent a critical hit or a normal hit.
- Sticky Protection (H): Prevents a normal hit. The weapon gets stuck in the armour and must be released to perform an action.
- Bleeding Protection (B): Prevents a hit and an attack from causing the Bleeding condition.
- Poison Protection (P): Prevents you from being hit and an attack from causing Poisoned condition.

- Fire Protection (F): Prevents being hit and prevents an attack from causing the Burning condition.
- Reflecting Protection (R): Prevents a normal hit and causes the attacker to be hit.
- Shock Protection (S): Prevents being hit and prevents the attack from causing Shocked condition.
- Protection against demonic influence (D): Prevents one hit, or three hits of demonic origin.

The protection of all armour pieces is combined into a protection pool that can be used in combat. For more details, see Chapter 5.

Currency

The standard currency is the gulden, and all items are priced in this unit. One gulden is equal to 100 deut. You can buy one golden ounce for 250 gulden, and one ingot for 4 ounces.

A medieval scene set in a vast, open field under a dramatic, cloudy sky. On the left, a knight in full plate armor, including a surcoat and gauntlets, is kneeling. He is tending to the leg of another man who is also kneeling on the right. The man being treated is wearing a red cloak over a blue tunic and has a visible wound on his leg. The knight is using a cloth to bandage the wound. In the background, there are several tents, including a large one on the left and a smaller one on the right with smoke rising from it. The foreground is filled with small, orange and white flowers. The overall mood is somber and focused on the act of healing.

Wounds and Healing

The physical integrity of the character is represented in the form of possible wounds. A character can withstand a certain number of wounds without passing out.

Wounds and Boosts

If you look at the character sheet of an intact character, you will see a bar of filled hearts:

These 10 hearts represent the wounds a character can take without passing out. Each source of damage causes a certain number of wounds. This can be a fixed number of wounds, as with most weapons. However, a dice formula can also be used.

Hearts are crossed out or emptied as soon as the character takes wounds. Thus, after a hit with a weapon, the life meter may evolve as follows:

These empty hearts can be filled again through healing.

Boost

The situation is different with boosts. Some items give boosts when used. Boosts are represented as different colored hearts and can also absorb wounds when crossed out.

However, with boosts, these hearts are completely removed and cannot be restored by healing. Thus, a boost is a temporary improvement in condition.

If the character takes damage, it is always crossed out from the right. First the boosts are used up, then the still complete hearts. So in the following display, the boost occurred after the wounding (the empty hearts).

Fainting and Death

A character that has neither full hearts nor boosts faints and is considered dying. The condition below describes exactly how to proceed here.

Healing

Real healing of wounds is only possible over time and with medicine. First aid and the use of bandages and other aids only generate boosts.

Using the first aid skill without aids generates a boost. With aids the number varies, this is described in the items.

The rest

If the characters come to rest for at least 6 hours, this is considered a rest.

During a rest, the character has the opportunity to heal wounds. For this purpose, the values Resistance, Endurance and Willpower are added together. Dice are rolled according to the sum, for each success the character heals one wound.

All bonus dice, destiny dice and rerolls refresh, so are set to the character's maximum.

Boost expires at rest, all existing boosts are removed upon rest.

The character also rolls on the sum of the Charm, Conscientiousness, and Willpower stats. For each success, one arcana is restored.

Conditions

A character can have different conditions. These have different effects on the character's actions, but also effects over time. The conditions are noted on the character sheet with a counter.

Some conditions have saving throws that can be used to remove them. These throws are indicated in the description of the condition. All restrictions and difficulties caused by conditions do not apply to these saving throws.

Dying

This condition is caused when the character's wounds exceed the maximum wounds, so the hearts decrease to 0. At that moment, the value of this condition is set to 1.

If a character gets the Dying condition, all other conditions are removed.

If the value of the condition is one or higher, the character rolls for his Resistance at the beginning of each round. If this roll succeeds, nothing happens. If this roll fails, the value of the condition is raised by one.

If the value of the condition reaches 6, the character dies.

Stabilizing requires successes equal to the character's "Dying" value. This can be a roll on first aid, medicine, or something similarly helpful. If enough successes are achieved, the dying condition is removed.

When a character is attacked with the Dying condition, the Dying value is increased by the number of wounds inflicted (see Chapter 5).

Unconscious

The character is incapable of any action (his actions per turn are zero). The value of this condition indicates the depth of unconsciousness.

At the beginning of each round, the character can roll on his willpower. If the roll shows successes according to the value of this condition, the value is set to 0 and the character wakes up.

Shocked

For each roll, the character has as many dice less than the value of this condition.

At the beginning of each round, the character can roll on his Endurance. He can reduce the value of the condition by the number of successes. If the condition reaches a value of 0 in the process, it is removed.

Burning

The character's minimum roll is increased by the value of this condition for all rolls on perception and for all attacks.

This condition ends when the character is extinguished.

Bleeding

At the beginning of each round, the character rolls for Endurance. If the roll fails, the character takes one wound for each level of this condition.

This condition ends when the character is banded (e.g. by first aid).

Poisoned

The character's minimum roll is increased by the value of this condition for all rolls.

At the beginning of each round, the character can roll for his Resistance. He can reduce the value of this condition by the number of successes. If the condition reaches a value of 0 in the process, it is removed.

Hunkered

The character has a 6+ cover (see Chapter 5).

All actions involving manual work (physics attributes, attacks and skills) have a +1 minimum roll.

It takes an action to hunker down or stand up.

Character Advancement

Over time, the character gains experience and develops further. As with character creation, this development is based on character templates.

Reputation

A character's reputation reflects their level of recognition and life experience.

Reputation is divided into spent and earned reputation, separated by a slash. Earned reputation points are placed after the slash, and used reputation points are placed before the slash. Unused reputation points can be used to purchase character templates.

Gaining reputation

The character gains reputation for successful quests. Reputation is awarded by the GM and should be between 5 and 10 per session.

Reputation can also be awarded directly for individual actions. A successful action or scene in the game can result in the GM awarding a certain number of reputation points.

Developing the character

Further development takes place after each game session, enabling the character to be expanded with additional templates, even during an adventure.

Templates are selected in the same way as when creating a character and purchased using reputation. They are then applied. Any changes to values are calculated directly on the character sheet and take effect immediately.

New spells

If a character gains new spell points through character templates, they can immediately use these to learn new spells or choose spell modifications. There is no need to research a thesis in the game for this.

Magic

The magic of Tirakan is special in different ways. There is a level of magic in the world that affects the strength of spells. In addition, magic is always of a origin, and spells can cause side effects.

Magic level

The world of Tirakan has a magic level that evolves over the centuries. There are also special places, where the magic level differs from the usual.

- 1st century: Magic level 1
- 2nd century: Magic level 2
- 3rd century: Magic level 3
- 4th century: Magic level 4
- 5th century: Magic level 5
- 6th century: Magic level 4
- 7th century: Magic level 3
- 8th century: Magic level 2
- 9th century: Magic level 1
- 10th century: Magic level 0

The current magic level has an effect on the spell being cast. The spell description will usually give an indication of how the magic level is taken into account.

If the magic level is above 5, the magic cast is completely chaotic and unreliable. The GM decides exactly how a spell is cast. In addition, any spell cast with a magic level of 6 or higher will definitely have side effects.

Basic Attributes

The magic is based on two basic attributes, which characters have and which can be obtained through templates.

Arcana

Arcana reflects the amount of magic the character can combine and store. With Arcana, the character casts spells and performs rituals. Templates, such as “Arcane Tutor” increase the maximum arcana a character can have.

Arkana regenerates through a rest.

Spell Points

Spell points are used to learn spells. Spell points can also be obtained by the character through templates. For example, the “Arcane School” template gives 10 spell points.

Once spell points are spent on a spell, they are used up and cannot be used again. Unlike Arcana, this is not a value that refreshes by resting.

Skills

Two special skills focus on practising and understanding magic.

Spell Casting

The skill Spell Casting is used to perform spells and rituals. It is composed of the attributes Willpower and Charm and can be increased by templates.

Magic Knowledge

Magic Knowledge is used whenever knowledge of magical occurrences or artifacts is needed. Every character has this skill, which is composed of Education and Conscientiousness.

Learning spells

To learn a spell, a character needs two things: rest (a spell can only be learned between game sessions) and available spell points. In addition, he needs a thesis, a way to also get the knowledge about that spell. The latter is up to the campaign, or the game master.

Spell points are available when the number of Spell points spent is less than the Spell points obtained through templates. Each spell has a certain point cost. To learn it, the spell is noted on the character sheet as learned.

A spell can be learned multiple times. This is possible because spells can be modified by spell templates. For example, you can make an energy lightning spell once as an energy spell and once as a light spell.

Spell values

A spell has different values, which are taken into account in the game.

The spell casting attribute specifies which attribute (along with the spell value) is rolled on to cast the spell. It is shown at the spell.

The value under Arcana describes the cost of the spell when cast. To cast a spell with an arcana value of 2, the player must also have two arcana available and cross off when casting.

The strength of the spell describes how effective the spell is. For newly learned spells, the strength is usually 1, but can be increased by spell templates. In addition, the strength is increased by the successes of the spell casting when the spell is cast.

Each spell has a certain range. This is the maximum distance from the caster at which a spell can be cast. This is not to be confused with a possible area where the spell will work. This is mentioned in the spell description. If the range of a spell is 0, the spell only works at/on the caster himself.

The shape of the spell determines the area of effect. It can be a geometric shape, such as a line or a sphere, or no specific shape. The latter is the case if the spell requires touch or works directly on the caster.

The Actions of a spell indicate how many actions are required to cast the spell.

The Duration of a spell indicates how long the spell lasts. Some spells have an immediate effect, while others take effect over a period of time.

If a spell requires concentration, the caster must concentrate on the spell. While concentrating, the caster cannot cast any other spells. A spell that requires concentration ends when the caster takes damage.

Origin

Spells in Realms of Tirakan are assigned to different origins. In order to learn spells, the character must choose a character template that unlocks the corresponding origin.

For instance, the Ranger template enables the character to cast shamanic spells.

The origins of magic are:

- Wizardry
- White Magic
- Black Magic
- Elemental Magic
- Shamanism
- Sanguine Magic
- Necrology
- Mysticism
- Hermeticism
- Necromancy
- Demonology
- Astral Magic

- Lizard Folk Magic
- Chimerology
- Curses

Magic academies usually devote themselves to one or more of the origins and clearly distinguish themselves from others.

Lizard magic is practiced exclusively by the lizard people and despised everywhere else.

Spell templates

Spell templates change the values of a spell, and can also add effects or completely change the behavior of the spell. Spell templates are divided into four categories:

- Basic: basic adjustments to spells.
 - Powerful spell (3 spell points): The power of the spell is increased by one.
 - Easy to Perform (5 spell points): The spell requires 1 arcana less, but at least 1 arcana.
 - Twin spell (5 spell points): The spell affects one additional target. The effect is applied to all targets.
 - Long Range (2 spell points): The range of the spell is increased by 20 meters.
 - Fast Execution (3 spell points): The spell requires one less action, but at least 1 action.
- Affinity (1 spell point): The element of the spell is changed. This initially has no effect in the game mechanics, but it can turn an acid spell into a fire spell, for example.
- Shape (3 spell points): changes the shape of the spell, for example from a point to a sphere of certain diameter.

Spell templates can be added to any learned spell. To do this, note on the character sheet at the spell that it contains the special template, e.g. “Simple Healing (Powerful Spell)”.

Each spell template can also be added to a spell more than once.

Forgetting spells

Just like learning spells, it is possible to forget spells with the necessary peace of mind. To do this, the spell is removed from the character sheet, and the character can be credited again for the spell points used.

Cast a spell

A spell can be cast if the character still has at least the arcana specified with the spell available.

To cast a spell, the player casts on the Spell Casting value specified with the spell. This value is made up of the character’s Spell Casting skill and the attribute referred to by the spell.

If the roll achieves at least one success, the spell is successful. For each success achieved, the Power of the spell is now increased by one.

The effect of the spell occurs as indicated in the description. The specified arcana cost is deducted from the character, even if the spell failed.

Luta wants to cast a simple heal. Her Spell Casting value is 2, in the attribute Conscientiousness (which is the attribute of the spell) she has 4. She thus has 6 dice available for casting the spell.

She rolls a result of 3,4,5,5,3,1. Thus, she has achieved 2 successes, which are added to the Power of the spell. She thus heals 3 plus magic level wounds.

Side effects

Magic is unstable, and side effects can occur. Whenever a spell roll shows exactly two ones, side effects occur, regardless of whether the spell succeeds or fails.

- The exact effects on the spell are in the hands of the game master. There can be small deviations from the description, but also a complete reversal.
- Side effects affect magic storages. These have a chance to explode if there are side effects near them. If side effects occur in the immediate vicinity of a magic storage, a d6 is rolled for each arcana stored in the magic storage. The magic store loses one arcana for every 1 that is rolled. The explosion causes 3 hits of 2 wounds each and pierce 1 to all characters within 3 steps for each arcana. Cover and armor apply as usual.

Magic Duel

In some of the following rules, Magical Duel is a rule used. Mages may engage in a magical duel.

If the duel is initiated by a mage, the challenged mage must agree to the duel or it will not occur. There is no effect if a duel is refused. The duel takes place exclusively in the mind, no physical actions are required.

To adopt spells, no consent to a magical duel is required, the test is simply rolled.

To perform a magical duel, both opponents cast on their spellcasting ability. The contestant with the most successes wins the duel. The loser takes the difference in successes direct wounds. Protection and cover do not prevent wounds in this case.

Taking over other people's spells

If a spell is active, it can be taken over by a mage. To do this, a magic duel is performed, whereby the mage casts against the spellcasting value of the mage who performed the spell. If the duel is successful, the spell is now under control of the taker, and can be dropped, for example.

Redirecting spells

Own spells can be redirected as long as they are active. Redirecting a spell requires an action, and a roll on the casting skill. It costs 1 arcana to redirect a spell to another target. The target here must be a valid target for the spell. Thus, a spell with a range of 0 (touch) cannot be redirected to a distant target.

Magic and armor

Wearing armor does not directly hinder the casting of magic. Neither the material of the armor, nor the design of the armor type have any influence on the casting of spells. However, armor that greatly restricts the freedom of movement may cause difficulties in necessary gestures of execution.

Armor of the Heavy Armor type increases the minimum casting roll when casting spells by its encumbrance.

Magic artifacts

In addition to spells, the magic extension brings the possibility of magic items, weapons, armor or weapon modifications. In addition, artifacts can be created by the player.

For example, a Simple Healing Potion restores 1D3 wounds when used.

Creating Artifacts

The character who wants to create an artifact only needs the item into which the spell will be infused. To create an artifact, he performs the spell normally and binds it in the item. While doing this, he also specifies the action that will trigger the spell in the artifact. This can be a complex action or just a spoken word.

After normal execution of the spell, the number of successes determines how strong an artifact is. If the roll is unsuccessful, the creation of the artifact is also unsuccessful. If the roll succeeds, the artifact can be used as many times as the roll shows successes. The cost of creating an artifact is the arcana cost of the spell multiplied by the uses of the artifact. If these exceed the character's maximum arcana points, as many applications are bound into the artifact as the character can pay with his arcana.

Very rarely it can happen that an artifact has an unlimited number of active applications. What quality an artifact has is not determined by the character who creates the artifact, but only by fate itself. No mage can predict how strong an artifact he creates will become.

If a single success of the roll shows at least a value of 30, he has created an infinite artifact.

For an infinite artifact, the number of successes is doubled to determine the cost. If these exceed the character's available arcana, excess costs are covered by wounds.

When the artifact is created, the magic knowledge of the character creating the artifact is recorded in a value called the artifact level. This artifact level indicates how powerful the creator was at the time they created the artifact.

Using artifacts

To use an artifact it is sufficient to perform the described action. If a spell is bound in the item, it will be cast that way, and it will not cost the user any arcana. The effect of the spell occurs as if it had been cast directly by a mage.

To use an artifact, the magic knowledge of the person who wants to use the artifact must be equal to or higher than the artifact level of the artifact. If the user's magic knowledge is lower, he must pass a Spell Casting roll whose successes are at least equal to the difference between his magic knowledge and the artifact level.

Storing arcana

Magic is an element that is not easy to comprehend. But if a being is granted the ability to handle it (i.e., a character possesses arcana), the character can easily store it in all non-magical materials in order to access it again later. But this method is not without danger.

Create a magic storage

To create a magic storage, it is enough to touch the item in which Arcana is to be stored and simply let the power flow into the item. The procedure takes as many hours as the character wants Arcana to flow into the memory and is completely harmless. The arcana is then subtracted from the character's arcana and noted with the storage.

Magic storages, like artifacts, are assigned an artifact level equal to the magic knowledge of the creator.

Using magic storages

A character discharges a storage by touching it and absorbing the stored power. In doing so, he must not exceed his maximum arcana. He does not have to draw the entire arcana stored at once, the power can also be dosed.

A stranger can only use the magic storage if his magic knowledge is equal to or higher than the artifact level of the storage.

Dangers of the storages

Magic storages are unstable, they explode if there is magic instability near them. If a spell fails near a storage, the wearer of the storage casts on his magic knowledge. If he achieves at least as many successes as the memory has Arcana, an explosion is prevented. Otherwise, the storage explodes.

When a storage explodes, it causes twice as many hits within 2D6 meters as Arcana is stored in the storage. The explosion causes a bonus wound and both Burning 1 and Shocked 1.

The Aspects of Magic

Ever since magic has existed on Tirakan, aspects of magic have been used by the Gifted. Some of these aspects arose in the early ages and are still practiced in the centuries of play. Elementalism and Necronmancy are among the oldest aspects. Demonology arose in the Third Age, followed later by Hermeticism and wizardry.

Astral Magic

Astral Magic is the only school of magic that draws its power not from the realms of Tirakan, but from the constellations of a distant world. This magic originated with the arrival of the Travelers, and its connection to these alien, godlike beings is unmistakable. Many schools of Astral Magic are closely associated with the elves, and they honor the dragons and the Travelers.

Spells of this kind of magic always require elaborate preparation, but often produce considerable effects. Gifted people who follow the path of Astral Magic are called astrologers.

Chimerology

Chimerology teaches the joining of living beings into new, cruel creatures. It is a discipline of magical practice entirely in its own right, which arose as an offshoot of Necrology and Elementalism in the late Fourth Age.

Like necrologists, chimerologists are largely ostracized. Their spells are often lengthy and resemble rituals.

Demonology

Demonologists draw the power of their magic from a firm bond with a demon. This is usually one of the thirteen Archdemons, to whom they devote their powers and their lives. They can summon and bind lesser demons from the domain of their chosen Archdemon, as well as invoke the Archdemon's demon servants and ask them for a favor in "payment" for a service or similar offering.

Lizard Magic

The origin of this magic, like that of the lizard people themselves, is hidden. Its rituals and spells are grim and alien, impossible for humans or other Gifted people to learn. A lizard spell can never be cast or taken over by another being.

Many lizard spells resemble rituals, although some are used spontaneously in battle. Many lizard spells benefit from blood rituals or the offering of non-lizard sacrifices.

Elemental Magic

The sources of Elemental Magic are Tirakan's elements and plants themselves. Spells of Elemental Magic are often possible only when the elemental carries or has nearby a small amount of the relevant element. Elemental Magic is used, among others, by druids, elementalists, and rangers. It is practiced by mages close to nature, but is also popular among more academically trained mages.

Necromancy

Unlike Necrology, Necromancy is a form of magic that is not esteemed, but at least respected. Necromancers can communicate with the spirits of various beings of Tirakan and call them into the world. The spells are usually performed as longer rituals.

Hermeticism

Hermeticism is the high art of magic and thus the counterpart to wizardry. Mages who are Gifted in Hermeticism are usually respected people with long years of training behind them. Hermeticism assumes that magic can be mastered in every form, and so Hermetic spells are taught in academies and written down in books.

Mysticism

From the book of the wise Maharil, State Archive of Merid, manuscript from the third century EC:

“It is not the priest alone who is granted the privilege of entering into communicatio with the so-called higher beings. For above all, it is upon the path of magic that precisely these entities, be they Titan, Draco, or Daimon, have advanced furthest.

And since the child of man, should the powers of fate call him to be a Magus, is likewise granted the freedom to follow this path of his own will, he may, provided he lives a pure and virtuous life, wield powers that lie far beyond this new-fashioned academic magic and recall the truly god-veiled secrets of magic, the proto-magic of all being.

This new, as they call it, “scientific” magic with its spectacular effects cannot be compared with our path of Mystica, however often this must be stressed. The path of Mysticism begins with small changes, first in the Magus himself and then in his surroundings. Yet as he progresses further along the path, the Magus can, through intensive study, accomplish things that can truly show Resultati Profundi.”

Necrology

One of the darkest forms of magic is Necrology, the animation and alteration of dead beings. Its spells range from raising the dead to communicating with a dead person. Necrologists who practice this kind of magic are ostracized throughout much of Tirakan, although there are certain regions where Necrology is at least partly tolerated. Thus, Toran has had the Necrolarium for many centuries, reputedly the only Necrological academy.

Rune Magic

Another form of magic is the laying of magical runes. Spells are cast through certain rune formations. These spells usually fall within Necromancy, Elemental Magic, or Shamanism. Rune casters and rangers often master this kind of magic.

Sanguine Magic

Born from blood magic, which any Gifted person can master, some Gifted people strive for the perfection of this art. Through this specialization, the sanguine mage loses the ability to cast magic other than Sanguine Magic. Their motivations may vary greatly, from unraveling the secret of life itself to the veneration of vampirism.

Shamanism

The origins of Shamanism are as old as Tirakan itself. Since there have been living beings on Tirakan, there have also been people spiritually connected to them. The shaman and their totem, also called a spirit animal by academic mages, share a special bond that outsiders can scarcely grasp, much less understand. The totem that chooses the shaman determines the shaman’s ideals and behavior.

Black Magic

Black Magic originates with the demons and dark gods. According to myths and magical theorists, it was the dark god Dogan who confronted the Titaness Dilae in the war with the Titans and brought Black Magic into the world. Spells of Black Magic should serve the dark gods and are sometimes tied to sacrifices.

Curses

The casting of curses is a broad field. Curses are either spoken directly or conveyed through living beings, and have a direct influence on a person or an area. Only witches and warlocks can cast curses.

White Magic

The origin of White Magic is largely unknown, though it is directly attributed to the Titaness Dilae. The practice of White Magic has been known since the Second Age; its origins reach far back before the existence of magic schools or academies. White Magic knows only defensive or healing spells. It cannot cause damage, but it can banish undead and cast effective spells against the lizard people.

Wizardry

In the eyes of the other magical guilds, wizardry is the “lesser art of magic.” Its spells primarily fall into the categories of tricks and charlatanry: they can create powerful illusions, but exert only limited influence on the environment. With few exceptions, practicing wizardry requires little effort.

The Art of Synthesis and Brewing

Mixing chemicals, boiling tinctures, and creating experimental serums is precise and often dangerous work. To represent this process dynamically at the table, use a structured procedure in which circumstances, equipment, and missing components directly affect the crafting roll.

The procedure is resolved in the following steps:

- Determine bonuses and penalties: Determine the skill, the formula's difficulty, and any modifiers from the environment, equipment, and substituted components.
- Crafting roll: Roll the calculated dice pool against the resulting minimum roll.
- Evaluate successes: Check whether the required number of successes has been reached.
- Quality or mishap: Optionally resolve high quality, failures, and dangerous side effects.

The Skill

Creating substances is based on the skill that best fits the setting and the specific substance. Usually this is Chemistry or Alchemy.

In fantasy settings, a formula can often be created with Alchemy or Nature. In modern or futuristic settings, Chemistry, Nature, or Medicine are usually appropriate.

If a character lacks the primarily required expertise, they may use a related skill if the game master allows it. The character then suffers a penalty of -2 dice. The game master decides whether an alternative skill is logically applicable.

Example

The street doc Patch has no skill in Chemistry or Nature, but has a value of 5 in Medicine. He tries to build a makeshift smoke bomb from household materials to escape a corporate squad.

The game master allows Medicine, because Patch has a rudimentary understanding of chemical reactions. Since he is improvising outside his field, he suffers a penalty of -2 dice. Instead of rolling 5 dice, Patch rolls only 3 dice for this crafting roll.

Formulas and Recipes

Every project requires instructions: a recipe, a chemical formula, a blueprint, or comparable notes. If the requirements are not followed, failure is possible. All formulas are divided into difficulty levels that determine the minimum roll and the required successes.

Since the usual minimum roll in Realms of Tirakan is 5+, higher levels often require exploding dice and critical successes.

Level	MR	Successes
Easy	5+	1
Medium	8+	2
Hard	11+	4

Example

The agent Bettina attempts to synthesize a difficult truth serum. The table sets a minimum roll of 11+ and requires 4 successes.

Bettina rolls 5 dice. With normal rolls she can achieve no more than a 6. She therefore depends on several of her dice exploding to reach results of 11 or higher and collect the required successes.

Equipment and Environment

An expert is also defined by their surroundings and their tools. Equipment changes the minimum roll and sometimes the dice pool.

- High-end laboratory (-3 MR): State-of-the-art analysis, perfect tools, or a magical nexus.

This is where the impossible becomes possible.

- Standard laboratory (-2 MR): Solid stationary equipment, such as crucibles, centrifuges, or fume hoods.
- Mobile field kit (-1 MR): A compact case for agents, field researchers, or adventurers.
- Basic equipment (+/-0 MR): Mortar, small burner, or simple test tubes. The absolute minimum.
- Improvised (+1 MR, -2 dice): Makeshift jars, hollow tubes, bare hands. A sure recipe for disaster.

The environment changes the dice pool:

- Laboratory calm (+1 die): Absolute quiet, no time pressure.
- Normal conditions (+/-0 dice): Clean workplace, stable table.
- Adverse conditions (-1 die): Knee-deep in mud, in a moving getaway car, or in a hurry.
- Chaos (-2 dice): Active gunfire, collapsing ruins, or extreme time pressure.

Example

Toria hastily tries to mix an experimental antidote while enemies are already breaking down the barricaded door. She uses a mobile field kit and lowers the minimum roll by 1.

The game master treats the situation as chaos, however, and subtracts 2 dice from Toria's dice pool. A medium recipe (MR 8+, 2 successes) is therefore rolled at MR 7+ with a dice pool reduced by 2 dice.

Substitution

In the wilderness or on the run, perfectly stocked equipment is rare. If a required component is missing, the character can look for an alternative.

Every component in a formula serves a specific function and has one or more inherent effects. Typical effects include purification, binding, heating, or stabilization. Based on these effects, the game master and players decide how well an alternative ingredient fits into the process.

- Suitable substitute (+1 MR): The effects and properties of the substances match well. The process remains stable, and the minimum roll increases by only one point.
- Risky substitute (+2 MR): The alternative roughly serves the same purpose, but is volatile, unpredictable, or has disruptive side effects. The delicate balance is endangered.

The Law of Instability

As soon as three or more ingredients are substituted in a single recipe, the substance becomes unpredictable. On a failure under this condition, the roll is no longer treated as a simple failure. The game master automatically rolls on the failure and catastrophe table.

Example

The alchemist Kael needs sweet moonberries for a healing potion, because they have the brewing effect binding and neutralize toxic secondary herbs. Since he is trapped deep in the catacombs, he uses sour cave fungi instead.

The fungi also have the binding effect, but bring an unpredictable property with them. The game master treats this as a risky substitute. Kael's minimum roll increases by 2 points. Had he replaced three ingredients in total, the law of instability would have applied.

Quality and Mishaps

Creating substances is not sterile work. Small nuances decide between masterpieces, useless sludge, and deadly poisons.

High Quality

If the roll achieves at least twice as many successes as the difficulty level requires, roll a d6 to determine the masterpiece's special property:

- 1-2, Intensification: The effect lasts twice as long or is 50% more effective.
- 3-4, Purity: The substance has no side effects and does not strain the organism.
- 5, Efficiency: The effect occurs immediately and without delay.
- 6, Masterpiece: Maximum effect. The consumer also gains a permanent bonus of +1 die on their next relevant roll.

Failure and Catastrophe

If the roll shows more ones than actual successes, the check is a mishap, even if the required successes were technically reached. The game master rolls 1d6 to determine the extent of the failure:

- 1-2, Instability: The chemical or mystical bond dissolves. The substance loses its effect after 24 hours at the latest and becomes toxic or useless.
- 3-4, Side effect: Sloppy work. Emerging nausea causes a penalty of -1 die on all of the consumer's rolls for one hour.

- 5, Inversion: The substance has exactly the opposite effect. A healing serum causes wounds, or an explosive freezes the area.
- 6, Catastrophe: Explosive expansion. The container explodes immediately when filled or moved and causes damage in the immediate area, for example 1d6 damage.

Example

The survivalist Garik mixes a simple elixir (MR 5+, 1 success) and rolls 4 dice. The result shows a 5 and therefore one success. The remaining three dice, however, come up 1, 1, and 1.

Since Garik rolled three ones but only one success, the roll is a mishap. The game master rolls 1d6 on the mishap table and gets a 3. The potion is finished and works, but when opened it releases a caustic gas cloud that gives Garik a penalty of -1 die on all rolls for one hour.

The Golden Rule

All modifiers, tables, and substitution rules serve the atmosphere. They are optional. If a player's improvisation is brilliant, the game master can ignore the penalty. If a mishap makes no sense in the story, the experiment can simply fail harmlessly. Shared imagination always stands above the table.

Pantheon

The deity world of Tirakan is diverse and difficult for amateurs to keep track of. All cultures of the world have their own deities, which are more or less present. In general, gods on Tirakan are very approachable, many can be invoked directly. The peoples of Tirakan pray for certain weather, for personal luck, for success in battle, or for fellow humans.

These rules reflect the closeness of the peoples to the world of the gods.

Level of faith

Similar to magic, Tirakan's faith evolves over the centuries. While the churches pray for a long time in silent waiting for the return of the gods' work, the influence of the gods develops into a very strong, direct influence by the end of the age. This is represented by the faith level, which behaves similarly to the magic level and changes over the centuries.

- 1st century: Faith level 1
- 2nd century: Faith level 1
- 3rd century: Faith level 1
- 4th century: Faith level 1
- 5th century: Faith level 1
- 6th century: Faith level 2
- 7th century: Faith level 3
- 8th century: Faith level 4
- 9th century: Faith level 5
- 10th century: Faith level 6

Grace

As a value, grace represents the relationship between services of the priest and favors of the god. The value is 0 at the beginning and can become negative or positive.

The cost of the favors is subtracted from the grace. Grace points can be gained by the priest through godly actions in the game. It depends very much on the type of deity, with which the priest can rise in the deity's favor.

Relics

Relics have a special role in the churches. They strengthen the bond with the god and help the believer to continue on his path.

Common relics are objects from the possession of saints, but also bones of them. But even a simple object related to the deity can be a low level relic, such as a special stone for a deity of stone. The character can get to a relic in many different ways, but it always requires a consecration.

Relics always have a level, which can range from 1 to 6. A level 1 relic can be an object that a saint once touched, for example. A level 6 relic can be a holy weapon or the bones of a saint.

The forms of invocation

There are four forms of invocation to a god. Each of them is performed differently. Each has a different effort and requests a different favor from the deity.

Common to all forms of invocation is the influence of the environment, the priest's condition, as well as faith level of the world. Thus, the following modifications are added to the minimum roll of each invocation (there are invocations that require multiple rolls).

- Grace of the priest: $-(\text{grace}/2)$
- The intention of the character does not correspond to the virtues of the deity: +10
- Ceremonial design (candles, clean cloths, etc.) not present: +5

- The attitude of the priest is contrary to the deity: +15
- The request is not the first request of the day: +2
- Sacrifice is offered: -3
- The priest uses incense: -2
- The invocation is done in Doldag : -2
- The invocation is chanted (additional performance check): -5
- The prevailing level of faith: -faith level
- Additional priests at the invocation: -Number
- Relic present: -Level

Shock prayer

The least form of request is the Shock Prayer. In a short, pleading invocation of 3 seconds, the priest can gain a bonus to one of his attributes or skills. The bonus is equal to faith level points and lasts for faith level minutes.

A Shock Prayer requires a single Charm roll.

The Shock Prayer costs the priest 2 grace points.

Blessing

A blessing is able to break a divine curse (the work of a dark god, as indicated by the work in each case), but can also be transferred to an object to create a blessed weapon, holy water, or the like. To cast the blessing takes 5 minutes, and it lasts indefinitely.

A Blessing requires a Willpower and a Charm check.

The blessing costs the priest 5 grace points.

Lesser request

The Lesser Request invokes direct divine action. In it, the abilities of the character's deity and all of its servants that are classified as "minor" can be requested. The prayer for the low petition takes about 15 minutes. It can also be done as part of a ceremonial service.

A charm roll is required for the lesser request.

The grace cost of the favor depends on the request and ranges from 2 to 12 points.

Invocation

The invocation requests a deity's work that is classified as "higher". Again, both the deity of the character and its servants may be invoked. The invocation requires a larger ceremony and lasts at least 30 minutes. It can also be done as part of a ceremonial service.

The invocation requires 2 charm rolls and a willpower roll.

The grace cost of the invocation depends on the request and ranges from 10 to 25 points.

A word about the gods' work. The work of the gods is sometimes described with concrete rules. However, most descriptions remain rather vague. This is to reflect the fact that the nature and works of the gods are their own business. GMs and players should be open to spontaneous developments when a god or demon intervenes in world events.

Consecration

With the consecration, an item such as a weapon is given to a god. The divine power ensures that the item is improved (stats plus about 30-50%), however there is also a chance that the item will be ensouled after the consecration and have some life of its own.

A consecration is a two-hour ceremony during which the deity is invoked three times by means of a charm roll. In addition, a test of strength is required as the item is held for the entire period. Finally, a 50% chance of ensoulment is thrown.

The consecration costs the priest 7 grace points.

Silent prayer

Once per day, the priest may spend one hour in silent devotion to his deity. For this, he rolls a charm roll and adds one grace point for each success.

Ceremonial Service

Ceremonial service is a service to the deity to strengthen their work and spread their word. The service can be both a classical ceremony in memory of the deity and something like a ritual funeral or exorcism. Minor petitions or invocations may be made as part of the ceremonial service, but they do not have to be.

A ceremonial service earns the priest one grace point for each participant, up to the double faith level per service. If a petition or invocation is performed, this cost is deducted again.

The Gods

Once, eleven siblings awoke, who populated the world in an age long before humans, elves, and dwarves. They were daughters and sons of unknown parents, and they lived in unity until a great betrayal. Seven traitors among them broke away, leaving four gods on the side of light.

Chronar - God of Time

Chronar is the eldest of the siblings and watches over the flow of time. He is often depicted as the supreme god, and the largest temples and cathedrals are built for him.

Chronar is often portrayed as an old man with an hourglass, although there is no single canonical depiction. The greatest holy day associated with Chronar is the last day of the year, the Festival of the Turning of the Year.

Nadal - Guardian of Magic

Nadal, the youngest of the siblings, brought magic into the world and guards it to this day. All magic in the world flows through her hands and is guided by her, or so Nadal's priests and followers preach. Nadal's temples are places of study and the teaching of magic, where peace and seclusion are valued more highly than splendor and grand services.

Algor - Keeper of Light

Depictions of Algor as a god are very rare; he is more often represented as the symbol of the sun in writings and on temples. He is rarely pictured as a young man holding a crystal staff, and even more rarely sketched as an old man with a simple wooden staff. These depictions date chiefly from the period between the second and sixth centuries.

Algor is celebrated on the first day of the new year with the Festival of the New Year, which immediately follows the celebrations of the Turning of the Year.

Herbarin - The Fallen

Herbarin was the second-youngest of the eleven siblings, chosen by unknown parents to be the gods of the world of Tirakan. In the Third Age, he was mortally struck by the demon Brahmas and, dying, filled with hatred and bitterness, sank into the ice of the Plains of Kaal, where all trace of him was lost forever.

The Traitors

Seven siblings broke away from the gods in the First Age and turned against them and the beings that existed in the world. Envy and resentment led them down a dark path, and from then on they pursued their own dark interests.

Thzularn - Dark Goddess of Hatred

Thzularn is considered the instigator of the conflict between the gods. She led the dark gods and fanned the flames of hatred. She is regarded as unpredictable and unfathomably cruel, and her followers often sacrifice more than their lives to her. In return, she offers them great power over people, and still more if they are willing to give enough. Her brother and lover is Dogan, master of black magic.

Dogan - Dark God of Magic

Dogan, Thzularn's brother and lover, brought forth cruel, dark magic during the Demon Marches, multiplying the demons' powers and threatening the balance of the world. Though his powers are inferior to Nadal's, his strength is still present, and his followers know how to use it.

The higher arts of magic in particular tempt people to use Dogan's powers. Yet once a Gifted person has chosen to serve Dogan, he will likely never grant them freedom again.

Seth'Nra - Dark Goddess, Guardian of the Gate

Seth'Nra receives the dead should they choose the wrong path in the presence of Rhodd'hrom. The dead become her slaves forever, as well as slaves to the necrologists and Gifted who have chosen her path.

Old tales of terror often speak of Uhruk, Seth'Nra's driver of souls. Mercilessly, he drives those under his command to work and is said to take disobedient children into his ranks at night ...

Rhodd'hrom - Dark God of Cursed Souls

Long ago, when the demons had long since been driven into flight and peace was slowly returning to the world, Rhodd'hrom managed to take his place at the scales of souls, thereby determining the fate of the dead. This is the trial every person must face after death; if their soul cannot withstand the strength of the dark god, they become Seth'Nra's slave forever.

Ranorh - Dark God of the Damned Host

When the demons were driven into the Underworld, Ranorh's influence on the world also diminished. The god, who as leader of the demons is himself wont to take the form of a demon, has a considerable following among demonologists. To be Ranorh's servant promises loyal and powerful slaves, but also a certain eternity in the Underworld.

Ishaa'Nra - Dark Goddess of Seduction

Ishaa'Nra is not as powerful as her brother Chronar, and her attempts to permanently disrupt the fabric of time seem so far to have been in vain. Yet she offers her human worshippers the power to influence time, if only to a small degree.

Her arts of seduction are unsurpassed, and she also grants her followers a special charisma. Nughlhuu often appears as Ishaa’Nra’s messenger; he is considered the timeless herald, the proclaimer of unnatural, premature death.

Dhas’Garyll - The Fugitive

Dhas’Garyll’s whereabouts are an unsolved mystery that occupies scholars to this day. The dark god, once at the center of demonic influence, withdrew from the known planes before the demons’ final banishment. His current location or condition is unknown, but he is believed to continue to exist in the world. The form he inhabits appears to be a mortal body, allowing him to act unnoticed among mortals.

The Titans

After Ranorh created thirteen cruel demons to populate the world, the gods created the Titans to protect the world of Tirakan from them. The Titans are tangible to Tirakan’s people and creatures; they walk the world. They have often been observed in their deeds.

Ce-Nya - Titaness of Mist

Ce-Nya is perhaps the most mysterious of the Titanesses. There are many rumors about her, and much remains entirely unknown. No form is associated with her; only her servants, the wolves, are encountered very often. Ce-Nya holds dominion over death, sleep, and forgetfulness, and is the patron Titaness of thieves and rogues. Her temples are hidden and often difficult for strangers to a city to recognize.

Dilae - Titaness of Magic

After Ce-Nya, Dilae is the most mysterious of the Titans. She serves Nadal in matters of magic, and her temples, like Nadal’s, resemble libraries more than ceremonial places. Her servant creatures are perhaps the strangest beings in the world. Bolde come in every conceivable form and are unpredictable by nature. Dilae holds dominion over magic and is the patron Titaness of the Gifted.

Ginae - Titaness of Water

Ginae, Titaness of Water, was created by Chronar and imprisoned the Morgalas forever in the depths of the Schlund near the Plain of Jaar. Ginae is considered exceedingly capricious and changeable in her actions in the world. She is the patron Titaness of sailors and holds dominion over birth, new beginnings, and renewal.

Her servant creatures are the hydras, those many-headed beings that dwell in the depths of all Tirakan’s seas. Foremost among them is Hydonia, the legendary great hydra from the Felsenmeer.

Gronar - Titan of Earth

Little is known of Gronar as well. Gronar serves humus and earth, and is regarded as a gentle Titan devoted to humankind. His servants are the giants, and though people very rarely catch sight of them, there are likely more than one might assume. Gronar holds dominion over life itself and is the patron Titan of farmers.

Jogran - Titaness of Ice

Jogran stands for ice and winter. It is said that Jogran has an ice palace far in the north, in a land inhabited by cruel, great beings. It is also said to be the origin of her servants, the unicorns. She holds dominion over winter and ice and is the patron Titaness of hunters.

Nilan - Titan of Light

Nilan is the Titan of Light, and people build him great, bright temples similar to those of Algor.

He is served by winged serpents, native to the far reaches of the sea and only rarely seen over land. Nilan is associated with justice and law and is the patron Titan of all paladins.

Pailos - Titan of Air

Pailos, lord of air, weather, and winds, is considered a benevolent being who, in service to the gods, guides and stirs the world's winds. He holds dominion over weather and changes in weather and is the patron Titan of jesters, con artists, and charlatans. His servants are the pegasi, winged horses found on the great northern steppes.

Rogal - Titan of Ore

Rogal is the Titan of Ore and the patron Titan of smiths. The Minotaurs serve his son Taurus, humanoid beings with heads like those of bulls. The Minotaurs live deep beneath the surface, and are said to be the only beings in contact with the cursed Morgalas. Rogal is associated with steadfastness and loyalty.

Tador - Titan of Stone

The mighty Tador, patron Titan of miners, is the father of stone. He holds dominion over safety and protection. Tador's servant creatures are the mighty stone beings Tonarr and Astaron, who fell in the year 722 EC in battle against Telatoon during the true Storm of Hooves.

The earthly centaurs also serve him, great beings with the bodies of horses and the torsos and heads of humans. Like the Minotaurs, centaurs live mostly underground. They rarely venture to the surface. The entrances to their caves are hidden in the forests of the north.

Zyral - Titaness of Fire

Zyral brought fire to the beings of the world and armed them for battle. Created by Chronar, Zyral is the patron Titaness of warriors and fighting classes, and she holds dominion over weapons and success in battle.

Griffins serve Zyral at her command: great feathered beings with the bodies of lions and the heads of eagles. They follow Fessaal, the fire griffin from the Kemal Mountains. His mate is Phidia, the fire griffin. The Order of Phidia was founded in her honor, with the motto "Fire, Flame, Sword".

Archdemons

Created by Ranorh in the Second Age, the demons claimed the world for themselves for a long time. Only through Dhas'Garyll's actions were they driven into the demonic plane in the Third Age. These Titan-like beings now populate the Underworld.

Archdemons have direct servant creatures, usually found in their vicinity but also sent by them into the world.

Duglaraan - The Cursed Drowner - I

The first domain is the world of water, over which Duglaraan rules with utmost cruelty. Duglaraan, the cursed drowner and defiler of seafaring, takes the form of an immense sea serpent with seven heads and great horns along the backs of its vertebrae. His two servant creatures, Shuugai and Ganod, are no better than he is. They are his companions and have a very similar form, though they are much smaller.

Calysporn - The Cursed Ruler of Mist - II

Calysporn, the cursed ruler of mist and night, reigns over this domain. Calysporn has no fixed form and is accompanied by Dugai and Sarag'Roh, both of whom have humanoid forms, though their bodies consist only of mist.

Dugai appears male, while Sarag'Roh is likely his companion. They can slip beneath doors and through windows at night, and popular tales suspect them of killing children in their cradles. They can grant demonologists the gift of invisibility or a body of mist.

Gyral - The Cursed Igniter - III

The third domain is the world of fire. Gyral, also called Gyralph, rules this world with his terrible servants. Gyralph, a great figure like a troll, bears the head of an eagle. In place of a beak are three long trunks reaching to the ground. Gyralph always seems to burn; his skin resembles glowing black ash covered in countless fiery wounds. His servants, Nugshu and Tulhu, resemble griffins, but bear four horns on their backs and the same burning skin as their master.

Cthupheen - Death from the Earth - IV

Whoever encounters Cthupheen will never forget it for the rest of their life. The gigantic earthen worm measures many hundreds of paces, and its mouth bristles with thousands of shark-like teeth. Although his companions, Ijothu and Shoggu Hai, are much smaller, they still measure several paces in length and well over half a pace in diameter. The black worms are regarded as death from the earth and devour or strangle their victims.

Brahas - Father of Addiction - V

Brahas rules the fifth domain; he stoned the dying god Herbarin. He is called the father of addiction and the defiler of pleasures. Brahas's servants are Yoghas and Bhulu, two petrifying beings in the shape of trolls with dead, black eyes. In his vicinity, all living beings grow sluggish, lazy, and sleepy. Hardly any being, save priests and consecrated or holy animals, can escape it. Brahas's breath settles around those near him like the smoke of intoxicating poppies.

Despite their stony form and apparent lack of life, Yoghas and Bhulu are very powerful entities. They can place anyone they touch into an eternal, almost sleep-like intoxication, in which the victim is tormented by nightmares until death comes after several aeons. Yet no human has been able to document this, so the torment may last forever.

Lhugghu - The Cursed Lord of Catastrophes - VI

Lhugghu, who leads this domain, is the demonic lord of wind and storm, the creator of chaos and envy. Lhugghu takes the form of a faceless black cloud, and his servants, Zzibra and Cayogbaar, accompany him as malformed ravens without wings and with black skin.

Haiphen - The Cursed Bringer of Death by Steel - VII

The seventh domain is ruled by Haiphen, who has the human form of a warrior in black armor, but without a face. Haiphen, called the cursed lord of ore and bringer of death by steel, bears a blue-glowing sword and a burning mace with which he strikes mortal wounds. His companions are Ghyogh and Hasoo, the eyeless black bloodhounds. Many mercenaries, even those serving the Lizard Army or the Minotaurs, regard him as their patron.

Lothcam - The Cursed Master of Shadows - VIII

Lothcam, master of shadows and shadow creatures, takes the form of a giant amoeba or a giant worm. His servants are Thurgroth and Brasho. Lothcam follows his own plan. He desires nothing less than dominion over all Tirakan.

Nughlhuu - Ishaa'Nra's Messenger - IX

Nughlhuu is a quadruped resembling a unicorn. Black fluid constantly drips from his gaunt, almost starved body. It is said that anyone who looks into the light emanating from the horn on his head is turned to stone forever and must suffer demonic torment while Nycalhu and Nugaa slowly devour them. Nughlhuu's two companions take the form of skeletal birds, their rotting feathers hanging from pale bones.

Iiinyca - The Defiler of Magical Power - X

Iiinyca, the defiler of magical power, rules the tenth domain, the demonic world of magic. Iiinyca does not appear in person and can only be sensed as incredibly powerful demonic magic that disrupts all magic around it and is perceptible even to the ungifted. Iiinyca's companions, Tur Oggu and Yozzi, are dark, cruel Bolde who make formidable opponents for any righteous person with their sharp teeth and unholy magic.

Nycalha - The Cursed Mistress of Perverse Desire - XI

The eleventh domain is led by Nycalha, who brings demonic jealousy and perverse desire. Nycalha takes the form of a tall woman with pale, sickly skin and no hair on her head. Her companions, Bradhi and Flamer, appear as a pair of twins, both beautiful women: one with flaming red hair and pale skin, the other with full, sensual black hair and southern skin.

Nyphen - Lord of Cold Death - XII

Nyphen, the cursed lord of ice and cold death, is a crystalline, deep-blue figure with thousands of thorns and spikes. The gigantic, ice-cold entity is accompanied by Lhuu and Baarhai, black, toad-shaped demons. Their spikes, shot from their bodies, tear terrible wounds that never heal.

Wisgu - Master of the First Covenant - XIII

Wisgu, hater of elves and dwarves, master of the First Covenant, is an intangible figure of dust and pure energy. In the Third Age, Wisgu made a covenant with the Morgalas and enslaved them to everlasting service. His servants Turzzi and Ylvath take the form of earthen statues.

The Wayfarers

The gods had not yet become aware of themselves when four of these primeval beings appeared in the world. No one knew where they came from. Only they themselves could determine the purpose of their existence. The gods noticed them only late, after they had observed the world for some time.

They were four Wayfarers who came from afar. Their power equaled that of the gods, and they would decisively shape Tirakan's history in the ages to come.

Hagarun - She Who Bears the Love and Hatred of an Entire People

Hagarun is the Wayfarer of emotions, a being who absorbs the deepest feelings of mortals. Her appearance is mutable and reflects the souls of those who behold her. At times she appears as a radiant figure, at others as a shadowy one, depending on the emotions she carries within herself.

Her influence is subtle yet ever-present. She forges bonds between people, strengthens alliances, and kindles enmities. Many of Tirakan's wars and great love stories are attributed to her, as though she had guided the hearts of those involved. Her power lies not in direct manipulation, but in amplifying what already slumbers within mortals.

Irminar - He Who Is Stillness

Irminar embodies silence and immutability as a counterpoint to Modorde's constant movement. He is the Wayfarer of balance, whose presence is felt as an endless night. In the few accounts that describe him, he is portrayed as a silent being shrouded in mist, whose eyes seem to penetrate eternity.

His power lies in stabilizing and preserving. While Modorde initiates change, Irminar ensures that the foundation remains intact. His work is most evident in moments when chaos threatens to tear the world apart. Many see him as the invisible hand that keeps Tirakan in balance.

Modorde - He Who Ends and Recreates Being

Modorde is a Wayfarer of change, destruction, and rebirth. His nature is marked by a deep understanding of passing away and new beginnings. He often appears as a shadowy figure whose form changes constantly, a reflection of his nature. His presence is accompanied by a sense of ending that awakens fear and hope alike.

He is not a cruel destroyer, but an inexorable renewer. To Modorde, every end is the beginning of a new cycle. His influence is especially felt in times of great upheaval, when old structures collapse and make room for the new. Legend tells that Modorde himself ended the Age of Dragons to make room for the peoples.

Odovacar - He Who Brings Fire and Life from Afar

Odovacar is the Wayfarer of fire, an untamed spirit who brings both life and destruction. He is often described as a burning figure, a walking storm of flames and heat. Where he walks, both fertile soils and devastated regions arise, a symbol of his dual nature.

The Dragons

Born as the children of the Wayfarers, the dragons are perhaps Tirakan's most powerful independent beings. The Wayfarers came into the world at a time when the gods were not yet even aware of their own origin, and watched events without intervening in the struggles of primordial times. At the end of the First Age, the Wayfarers begot seven children to watch over the battles between Titans and demons. These children were henceforth called dragons. According to legend, four of these seven children still live on Tirakan today, although only a few unconfirmed accounts tell of them.

Tar - The Brave

Tar the Brave was the first child of the Wayfarers and thus the eldest of the seven siblings. Tar, who is also the mightiest of the dragons, still dwells mainly in the northern mountains. Worshipped as a demigod by the elven peoples, he occupies the place of the highest god among the Atiarel. A river flowing from the Atiarel Mountains through the Plains of Meridian to the Felsenmeer is also named after the dragon Tar.

Aspersia - The Fallen

During the battle at the Schlund, Aspersia was pulled down with the demons. Her fate is unknown. According to legend, however, Aspersia attempted to create a people of her own. Given the tragic circumstances and demonic surroundings, a terrible mistake must have occurred. Thus Aspersia created two peoples in her own image: one in humanoid form, the other resembling her own form. They were henceforth called the Sethlarn.

Derumir - The Red

Derumir, "the Red," is one of the seven primordial dragons created by the Wayfarers to watch over the world. His radiant red scales and the fiery aura surrounding him make him a symbol of elemental primal power.

He appears only in times of dire need, when the very foundations of Tirakan are threatened, and his appearance is seldom a blessing for mortals. Wherever he walks, fire follows as a sign of his inseparable bond with the world's volcanic and chaotic forces. His influence is usually indirect, but perceptible in the regions where he appears. He favors the vicinity of bubbling volcanoes and primordial lava flows, and his presence can transform entire regions.

Saranor - The Swift

Saranor the Swift withdrew from Tirakan's surface following a dispute with the Wayfarers.

Tedasiél

Tedasiél quarreled with Irminar during the Age of the Servant Creatures and was killed by him. Legends tell that his death was connected to the dragons' rebellion against the Wayfarers.

Samusa - The Mother

Hagarun's eldest daughter is the mother of the elven people. When the dragons betrayed their parents, she was the one who gave birth to the elves. Since then, Samusa's Hoard has been spoken of in connection with the rite, among other places in the Iana Alyaria.

Héroda - He Who Comes from the Night

Héroda is one of Tirakan's seven primordial dragons, created by the Wayfarers at the end of the First Age. Like his siblings, Héroda is a divine, immortal being who keeps apart from the world of mortals. He appears only in rare moments when the balance of creation itself is threatened. Unlike Tar the Brave or Aspersia, whose fall into the Schlund is legendary, Héroda avoids every form of direct intervention. His existence is a hidden constant, a silent watch over the shadowed side of the world.

Independent Entities

There are many independent entities of divine nature on Tirakan. Peoples such as the Quitaron or Xordai worship their own deities, unfamiliar to the realms, while entities such as Robärthrunius have a godlike status themselves, albeit without followers.

Argorin - The Creator

The Xordai differ in their faith from most peoples of Tirakan. The latter worship, in various forms, the four or seven gods whom humans likewise regard as the highest beings in the world. The Xordai, however, pray to the two gods Argorin and Dargumir.

Argorin is the reverent one, who respects life in all its forms. He is the Creator, who keeps the embers in the heart of the world alive. His deeds are wise, and he knows the path to a better world without the terrible Sethlarn.

Dargumir - The Fool

Dargumir is the Fool. He is Argorin's companion and accompanies him on the eternal quest. Unlike Argorin, he is far from inner peace. His actions are chaotic and his works sometimes cruel. He is hopelessness, but also represents life in the absolute present. Destruction and death are attributed to Dargumir.

Akhrosch - God of the Orcs

The first father was Akhrosch. Back then, shortly after the Allfather and Allmother separated light from darkness, he appeared on Tirakan. He was called the Unborn, for he had neither father nor mother. From himself and the clay of the earth, he created Kchtuh, his companion. Together they hunted the living beings of Tirakan in those days and bore many children.

... by Edis Elbenfreund, anthropologist of Yavon, c. 300 EC

Taxaros - Lord of Fire

Taxaros is a powerful fire elemental who was brought to Tirakan, to the Academy of Jaar, by Master Astrum Fabula, probably in the eighth century. It is unclear, however, how Fabula could have accomplished this, as he was a master of black magic in Jaar. It is assumed that he had help from an elemental in the ritual, which lasted several decades and was necessary to bind Taxaros.

Robärthrunius - Mystical Klabauter

Robärthrunius is a mythical king of the Klabauter who is said to sail the seas aboard an enchanted ship. Many call him godlike, but stories repeatedly suggest his mortality. Some accounts tell of wounds that even he could not heal immediately, or moments of weakness that made him pause briefly.

No one knows exactly why Robärthrunius roams the seas without rest or destination. Some say he is searching for something lost; others believe he is fleeing a great danger. Perhaps he shares more than a love of the sea with the storms; perhaps he is himself a part of them.

Hirrukh - He Who Holds the Wheel of Creation in His Hands

The goblins of the Asch-Ta-Khi worship the god-being Hirrukh, who in their eyes holds the Wheel of Creation in his hands. Hirrukh is worshipped differently by the various clans: sometimes as a healer and giver of life, sometimes as a wild warrior or vengeful destroyer.

Caltae - Minotaur Shamaness

Caltae is Taurus's companion. She was before the Minotaurs fell into lethargy for a thousand years, and she will be forever. Caltae lay with Taurus in the Chamber of Sleep, paralyzed and unable to move or feel emotions. When Taurus awoke in the year 0 EC, she awoke as well, and for the next 1,000 years she was to be Taurus's conscientious side.

The Chronicler

The Chronicler is a mythical figure of Tirakan who is said to record the history of the world in its entirety. Some speak of him as an entity beyond this world; others claim that he is Chronar himself, preserving history in his eternal book. Alongside the Chronicler, there is also the philosophical concept of a Narrator.

The people of Tirakan know nothing of the Chronicler. The figures of the Chronicler and the Narrator exist, at most, in magico-theoretical or religious works by great philosophers. They play no role whatsoever in the events of the first 950 years of the Fifth Age.

The Dreamer

He could scarcely hide his joy. He had waited a long time for this moment. For all those countless years, the Chronicler had believed him to be his son, but he knew better. He had not been born to be a Chronicler. No, he was a Dreamer.

While his “father” recorded the history of Tirakan as it happened, he looked over his shoulder and dreamed of how it might continue. How surprised he was when he discovered that, from time to time, one of his spiteful little ideas found its way from his dreams into the world of Tirakan. It happened quite rarely: a sacrilege here, a demonic pact there, trifles in his eyes. Yet it was a sign of his destiny.

Dive: An unarmed strike is possible during a dive. For every five metres of flight distance in the same combat round, the attack gains an additional die. However, for every 10 metres of flight distance in the same combat round, the Doldagor itself suffers a normal hit upon impact.

The character feels pronounced disgust for a particular subject and will stay away from it if possible.

Justice Fanatic 1 Rep ♦

The character is a militant justice fanatic. If he experiences a situation in the game that he feels is unjust, he can hardly control himself.

Empathy +1

Faithful

5 Rep ♦

The character is especially devout. All effects performed on him by clerics of the same alignment have double the effect. Clerics with this gift also receive more favor points when they perform a ceremonial service.

Greedy

4 Rep ♦

A greedy character always has his personal enrichment in mind first. This includes trying to collect gold or the rewards of his travel group for himself. It also means an almost magical attraction to gold and valuables of all kinds.

Logic +1
Deception +1

Irascible

-4 Rep ♦

A hot-tempered character is quick to fly off the handle and has a thin skin. On any occasion that is offensive to the character, the game master can ask for a roll on Logic. If this fails, at least the fists will probably fly.

Logic -1

Confused

-4 Rep ♦

A character with this trait is easily confused. In busy markets or crowds, the gamemaster may require a roll for Orientation to keep the character from panicking.

Orientation -2

Country bumpkin

-2 Rep ♦

The character comes from the countryside. Stand and education are not relevant, as soon as the character comes into a larger settlement (from 1000 inhabitants) he is confused. Rolls for orientation in larger settlements have a minimum roll increased by 1.

Addicted

-4 Rep ♦

The character is addicted to a certain substance, depending on the degree of addiction, the renunciation or the prospect of soon having to renounce can influence him in his actions.

Messenger of Death

-3 Rep ♦

The character attracts the mischief. If he enters a new region or society, he must roll a d6. If the roll shows a 5 or 6, a disaster, accident or similar happens.

The character may force a person in sight to use one of his rerolls for a recent roll. To do this, the character must spend a bonus or destiny die.

rerolls +1

Joker 10 Rep ♦

The character has the ability to profit from special rolls. Everytime the player rolls one of the following dice patterns (while not in combat) the stated effect applies.

* Three of a kind - The character gains one bonus die * Small Straight - The character gains one boost immediately * Full House - The character gains one destiny die * Large Straight - The character rediscovers an item in his backpack (the player chooses an item and adds it to his backpack) * Four of a kind - The character gains +1 actions in every round of the next combat * Five of a kind - The characters group gains one additional turn prior to the enemies in the next combat

In each case, the highest pattern to be achieved counts for a roll. So 5, 4, 3, 3, 2, 1 is a large straight, but not three of a kind.

As you know, madness is like gravity...all it takes is a little push.

The Joker

Well equipped 5 Rep ♦

The character may spend a wound to take any item from his backpack, even if he doesn't possess it. To do so, the character takes a wound and the player rolls a d6:

- 1-2: The desired item doesn't exist in the backpack - 3-5: A similar item could be found in the backpack - 6: The exact desired item could be found

With a little bit of imagination, anything is possible.

After ingesting the potion, the character feels their muscles harden and their senses sharpen. The number of dice rolled by the player is doubled. The potion lasts for 2D6 minutes. As soon as the effect wears off, the magic takes its toll: the character immediately suffers 2D6+6 rounds of exhaustion and is “dazed” during this period (+2 penalty on all minimum rolls).

To awaken from this near-comatose sleep, the character needs four successful rolls on Resistance in a row. Genesis Elixir

Restores the life of a deceased character, but triggers a horrific transformation process lasting several days.

As soon as the essence is administered to the deceased, the flesh liquefies completely and, within moments, disintegrates into a shimmering primordial soup. After a few minutes, the deceased reemerges from this organic mass as a helpless infant.

Over the next 7 days, the transformed character undergoes an extremely accelerated, painful process of physical and emotional maturation:

Primordial slime > Infant > Toddler > Adolescent > Original age

During this maturation phase, the character is extremely vulnerable both physically and mentally and is completely incapable of acting.

Physical Decay & Growth: His bones break and reform every day. His muscles grow amid excruciating pain.

Mental Confusion: At first, the transformed individual has almost no ability to speak. His memories and emotions return only in fragmented, often frightening bursts. Companions are usually recognized only vaguely by their scent or voice. Whether they are friend or foe often triggers shifting waves of primal trust or panic-stricken fear of loss in the maturing individual.

During these 7 days, the player should embody a protégé who must be protected, fed, and carried by the group while gradually regaining his personality.

Only after the 7 days have elapsed does the aging process stop exactly on the day of the original death.

The character is now fully restored: All hit points are regenerated, all old ailments, scars, or curses are healed, and the character regains all of his knowledge and memories without any gaps.

He feels, in the truest sense of the word, as if he were reborn.

The brew appears as a thick, opalescent essence with a deep-sea-blue sheen, brewed according to the forbidden maritime rites of the shamans and Sanguinics. It moves sluggishly within the vial and exudes an intense scent of fresh sea spray, ancient seaweed, and the sharp, metallic whiff of the Source. Ingesting this essence forcibly draws the fleeting spark of life back from the darkness of death, but in return demands the complete disintegration of the flesh down to the stage of the primordial soup.

The drinker’s skin instantly hardens into a bark-like texture. For the duration of 1W 6 + 2 combat rounds, the character gains a temporary protection pool of N N K (two normal hits and protection against critical hits). Due to the stiffening of the skin, all Acrobatics and Physical Agility checks are made +1 more difficult for the duration of the effect.

A thick, deep-brown liquid that smells of bitter resin, damp oak bark, and forest floor. When shaken, it moves sluggishly like liquid pitch. Drinking it feels like swallowing liquid wood.

In addition, penalties due to natural darkness or light fog are reduced by 1. Likewise, drinking the elixir immediately cures the “shocked” condition, as mental clarity returns instantly.

A slightly viscous, emerald-green elixir that reveals fine, golden veins when exposed to light. This brew combines the academic knowledge of Hermetic human alchemy with the traditional botany of the elves of the Alchemical Pact. It tastes of damp moss and wild raspberries and has a sharp, resinous aftertaste. When ingested, it dilates the pupils like a cat’s and makes the contours of the world appear razor-sharp.

Panthomeic pick-me-up

Temporarily eliminates sleep deprivation. The user ignores all penalties due to fatigue and also receives a hefty bonus of +2 dice to Perception and Alertness for 1d6 hours. However, as soon as the effect wears off, the body inevitably falls into a deep, dreamless sleep.

A deep green, viscous substance in which fine, silvery streaks seem to float. The scent is reminiscent of the tart aroma of wet coniferous wood after a summer thunderstorm, paired with an almost pungent sharpness. Anyone who drinks this potion feels an icy tingle spreading from the nape of the neck to the fingertips, simply burning away even the deepest exhaustion for a while.

Strength potion

Increases the Strength physical attribute by +2 points for a duration equal to Endurance in hours.

This thick, muddy, earthy potion exudes an aroma of soot, wild garlic, and bitter yarrow. Invented by Rurik Kohlschlepper, a legendary dwarf miner from the shadowy foothills of Asgoran's Iron Mountains. Rurik realized that finely grinding rock troll claws releases the creature's petrified primal memory. Anyone who swallows this thick brew feels a burning tear in their flesh as their muscles swell like thick anchor ropes.

Linya's Deep Sleep

If the essence is ingested or injected into the bloodstream via a weapon with a poison channel, the victim instantly falls into an unconscious state. The victim must roll for Willpower at the start of each of its combat rounds. Only when the number of successes (rolls of 5+; exploding 6s allowed) reaches exactly 5 does the creature awaken. External stimuli such as shaking or noise have no effect; only actual damage suffered grants an immediate bonus of +2 dice to the saving throw.

A viscous, almost oily essence of the deepest violet-black. When the lead vial is uncorked, a heavy, sweet, numbing scent escapes, reminiscent of withered autumn leaves and cold earth. Extracted from the black petals of the true death poppy, which thrives only on the barren cliffs of the Asgorian island of Linya, bathed in the salty, spray-laden wind. No scientific alchemy can fully replicate this natural sleep.

A deep red, gently shimmering distillate stored in a cut-glass vial. When shaken, it reveals a fine, golden swirl of suspended particles—the Tanium. A heavy, slightly sweet scent of sunflowers and potent bloodwort rises as soon as the stopper is removed. In the markets of Tirakan, this elixir is prized by experienced field alchemists and infirmary masters alike for its ability to close even gaping slash wounds in seconds.

Titanic Strength

The Strength attribute is increased by a phenomenal +6 points for a duration of Resistance $\times$ 2 rounds in combat. Unarmed attacks (punches, kicks) automatically gain the Penetration 2 trait. At the same time, the user gains +4 units of Normal Protection (N) for their protection pool. Once the effect wears off, the user suffers from poisoning. For 10 minutes, they lose 1D3 wounds each round. No antidote is effective.

A thick, red-gold shimmering essence in a heavy vial, the glass of which has turned slightly milky from the intense heat of the distillation process. It exudes a heavy scent of reduced red wine, melted amber, and the distinctive, animalistic musk of rock troll claws. Even through the sealed vessel, one can sense a subtle, feverish vibration—an unmistakable sign of the raw, unbridled primal power slumbering within this alchemical brew.

Applying it to a blade requires mixing it with a small amount of grease or oil and takes 2 actions in combat. Grants a bladed weapon +1 damage potential, +1 penetration, and immunity to structural damage to the blade for 1 combat duration (or a maximum of 1 hour).

This deep black, sooty concoction exudes the sharp, acrid scent of wood vinegar and mineral heaviness. Once developed by the ancient masters of bygone eras, it is highly prized by mercenaries and battle-hardened warriors who fortify their blades against the cruelties of the wilderness. An alchemical masterpiece woven from the pulverized dust of night slate and obsidian, it transforms any blade into a relentless blade of destruction.

Beet schnapps

Beet schnapps is a typical product of human farmland in the more temperate zones of Tirakan, especially in the western and central kingdoms of the humans.

It is made from fermented and distilled sugar beets.

It is a cheap but high-proof spirit. In alchemy, it is used solely as a solvent and heat source to extract the aggressive or volatile properties of other substances (such as the bile of the flying lizard). Due to its purity and lack of complex ingredients, it is ideal as a simple base for mass carriers.

Beet schnapps is usually clear or slightly yellowish-cloudy and has a pungent smell of ethanol and a subtle, earthy sweetness. It burns when drunk and leaves a strong, unpleasant aftertaste.

Beet schnapps symbolizes the endurance and pragmatism of the people of Tirakan. While the elves have their "living water" and the dwarves their deep salt, humans rely on simple, readily available solutions.

It is a mass-produced item and an important commodity in the border regions and mercenary camps. A large part of the price of simple potions is accounted for by distillation and transport, not the ingredient itself.

For the high-ranking alchemists in the academies, beet schnapps is a sign of amateurism; they prefer more refined, less aggressive solvents. Village alchemists, on the other hand, use it because of its efficiency and availability.

Chickpeas (Gigglepea)

This small, yellow-green bean is a truly wonderful food.

Apart from its alchemical use as a base for laughing potions, it is an excellent food for weary travelers.

It is often found in the rich markets in and around Al Bah Ji Ra. However, its popularity is slowly spreading throughout Tirakan.

Eating a handful of roasted chickpeas dispels gloomy thoughts and briefly lifts the “shadow” from the mind. This is especially true when seasoned with spices such as garlic, cumin, or pepper.

Even on their own, they are rich in protein and complex fiber, making them a nutritious addition to any diet.

“If the stew tastes too bitter and life weighs too heavily, throw in a handful of chickpeas. Your stomach will thank you with a gurgle.” — Master chef Alar al-Din of the “Tent of Seven Veils” in El Kurru

Honey

In cultivated regions, honey is produced by hard-working beekeepers, who often set up their hives near herb gardens.

This honey is clear, stable, and has a delicate taste of thyme or lavender. It usually costs about 2 guilders per 5 oth and is a reliable staple for any alchemist who wants to soften the bitterness of herbal extracts.

Those who are more adventurous search the forests for wild bee nests. This honey is darker, thicker, and often mixed with pollen or small pieces of wax. It has a strong, almost earthy flavor. It is said that wild honey from the primeval forests has a stronger regenerative power for the voice. Ideal for bards who need to lubricate their throats after a long night in the tavern.

Wild berries

Wild berries are the sweet-and-tart, deep red to bluish fruits that thrive in the dense undergrowth of Tirakan’s untamed forests. They are particularly common in shady forests or on the outskirts of the rugged wilderness. They grow in the moist humus beneath old ferns and in the shade of mighty oaks.

Garlic (Allium toranum)

A pungent-smelling bulblet that brings tears to the eyes of alchemists.

In alchemy, it serves as a cleansing agent. It clears mucus from the lungs, disinfects wounds, and—thanks to its stench—keeps vermin and sensitive elves at a safe distance.

It grows on every honest farm in Toran and Hade-wald and can be bought from any shopkeeper for a few Deut.

Holy Symbol of Ravenkind

Holy Symbol of Ravenkind Wondrous item, legendary (requires attunement by a cleric or paladin of good alignment)

The Holy Symbol of Ravenkind is a unique holy symbol sacred to the good-hearted faithful of Barovia. It predates the establishment of any church in Barovia. According to legend, it was delivered to a paladin named Lugdana by a giant raven—or an angel in the form of a giant raven. Lugdana used the holy symbol to root out and destroy nests of vampires until her death. The high priests of Ravenloft kept and wore the holy symbol after Lugdana's passing.

The holy symbol is a platinum amulet shaped like the sun, with a large crystal embedded in its center. The holy symbol has 10 charges for the following properties. It regains 1d6 + 4 charges daily at dawn.

Hold Vampires. As an action, you can expend 1 charge and present the holy symbol to make it flare with holy power. Mint

Mint is widespread in Tirakan, but among those who study herbal medicine, it is considered an indispensable staple for the mind and body.

Occurrence & growth: Mint is usually found in damp, semi-shaded locations. It grows rampantly on the banks of streams, in enchanted forest clearings, or in the herb gardens of wise healers.

It is considered to be soothing for the stomach, has a cooling effect, and relieves sore throats. It is used in ointments, tinctures, and teas. It is also often used to soften the strong taste of game meat or to give cheap thin beer a fresh note.

Gildenkraut (Vigilia mercatoris)

Gildherb is a tough, almost inconspicuous plant that only catches the trained eye of an expert.

It is characterized by jagged, leathery leaves of a deep green color, whose thick veins have a slight reddish sheen. Its flowers are tiny, pale yellow, and close immediately once the sun passes its zenith.

The herb is entirely mundane and possesses not the slightest spark of the arcane. Its value lies rather in its extremely high, natural concentration of alkaloids, particularly pure caffeine. When the tough leaves are crushed between the fingers, they give off a sharp, earthy scent reminiscent of heavily roasted nuts.

Location and Habitat: This plant is relatively rare, as it requires very specific, adverse conditions to produce its stimulating sap. It thrives exclusively in barren, mineral-rich soils and avoids the damp moss of deep forests.

Gildherb is found primarily in the rocky crevices of ancient trade routes, in the crumbling stone mortar of abandoned guild outposts, or on the steep, sun-baked slopes of the Toran Highlands. It needs hard rock and plenty of wind to prevent it from withering away.

Silberorchidee

The silver orchid is considered the undisputed and deceptive "queen of southern flora." It is a botanical marvel that is as beautiful as it is deadly to those who are fooled by its splendor.

Its leaves are not green, but have a dark gray, almost metallic color that shines like polished silver in the moonlight. The veins pulsate faintly in a pale violet when magic is nearby. The flower itself is large and cup-shaped, with snow-white petals that are razor-sharp at the edges. But the most disturbing thing about it is not its beauty, but its mobility: the plant stretches upward on exposed, muscular roots, which enable it to crawl slowly across the ground.

The silver orchid is found almost exclusively in the deep south of Tirakan, beyond the Iron Mountains. It can be found in the vast green steppes and along riverbanks, often camouflaged in the shade of the local flora. It often grows in disturbing proximity to the giant stone creatures that dwell in the passes.

When you approach the plant, it emits a glittering cloud of fine, silver dust. This is not harmless pollen, but a deadly attack. Anyone who inhales the dust is seized by severe coughing and shortness of breath. Within moments, black pockmarks form on the skin, and the victim falls into a deep, death-like unconsciousness. Once the victim is defenseless, the plant secretes a corrosive substance from its roots to slowly decompose and absorb its prey.

Despite these dangers, it is hunted because it is a powerful potentiator. In alchemy, the extracted nectar is used to increase the effects of other potions to the extreme. But processing it is risky: a mistake in distillation causes the magical energy to overload the body (similar to “silver death”), which is often fatal.

Ancient legends say that silver orchids came into being when the blood of a fallen star god dripped onto the earth in the First Age. The elves, on the other hand, call the flower “traitor’s jewelry” and believe that it grows where reality has cracked and chaos seeps into the world.

“It looks like jewelry, crawls like a spider, and is worth more than my house. But be careful, boy: when you see the glitter, hold your breath and run. Before you realize you’re getting sick, you’ll already be its fertilizer.” – Marginal note in the records of the herb collector “Three-Finger Hannes”

Common Bloodweed

Bloodweed is a ground-level plant that is particularly striking due to its fleshy, deep red leaves.

The fine veins on the leaf surface glow in a rich scarlet red, almost as if real blood were pulsing through them. When a leaf is crushed, a sticky, sweet-smelling sap emerges that stains the fingers for days. It is not a magical plant in the classic sense. It draws its power from the iron-rich soil and the pale light of the dense forests.

You will usually find bloodweed in shady, damp places. It prefers the foot of old oak trees or the immediate vicinity of rotting undergrowth in deep forests. An inattentive traveler often mistakes it for common purple sorrel, but a trained alchemist will notice the small, pearl-like dewdrops that always collect at the edges of the leaves.

It is best harvested in the early morning hours, before the sun breaks through the canopy. Only the outer leaves are cut to preserve the root.

Rock troll claws (Lithocrinus tirakanis)

The claws of a rock troll are not claws in the biological sense, but mineralized growths made of hardened keratin and concentrated ores.

They reflect the unbridled physical regenerative power of the trolls, whose skin has entered into a symbiosis with the rock of the Shadow Rocks.

A single, intact claw is about the size of a short sword. Their color ranges from deep gray to obsidian black, often with layers reminiscent of slate.

They are so hard that they spark when they hit metal. Ordinary blades usually dull immediately when used on them.

In alchemy, the entire claw is almost never used, but rather a processed form. The claw must be laboriously worked with diamond files or hardened steel chisels.

Finely grated shavings or dust are used as ingredients. This dust is heavy, ash-colored, and glitters when exposed to light. The dust must be extremely fine. Chips that are too coarse will not dissolve in the potion and can seriously injure the user's esophagus when consumed. Alternatively, it is advisable to strain the liquid through a sieve after brewing.

Moonlight Lily (Lilium lunaris)

The moonlight lily is a rare, night-blooming plant of wondrous beauty. Its flawless, narrow petals have a silvery-white hue and seem to emit a soft, cool glow even in the deepest darkness.

While it remains tightly closed during the day and looks like an inconspicuous, withered bud, it only fully opens its flower after dusk. A fine, silvery pollen gathers around the central stigma, leaving glittering trails in the air at the slightest touch. The plant exudes a slightly sweet, cool fragrance reminiscent of fresh evening dew and delicate mint.

It thrives exclusively in shady, damp places. It is found primarily on the mossy shores of abandoned forest lakes, near the mist from mountain waterfalls, or in clearings deep within the thickets of the gorge mountains. The Moonlight Lily never grows in large clusters, but always as a rare solitary bloom sheltered by old tree roots.

Schiller whale oil

The blubber, the fatty tissue under the skin, is the reason why these majestic animals are hunted. It is no ordinary fat, but a storehouse of magical energy.

In its raw state, blubber is a tough, jelly-like mass that glows faintly blue. After refinement (melting and filtering), it becomes a clear, oily elixir that streaks like liquid mother-of-pearl. Unlike the rancid blubber of ordinary whales, the blubber of the Schiller whale smells fresh, salty, and slightly metallic (like the air before a thunderstorm).

It is the best known means of binding volatile magic in potions (see Elixir of the Elven Watch).

When burned in lamps, it gives off a light that never produces soot and can make the invisible visible. Weapon oils made from this oil can injure spirits.

Since hunting them is extremely dangerous (iridescent whales rarely defend themselves, but are often protected by sea elementals or mermaids) and the animals are rare, the price is enormous.

The Ancatir consider hunting iridescent whales a sacrilege. They only use oil that comes from whales that have washed ashore naturally ("gift of the tides"). Alchemists who use "bloody oil" are often expelled from the city in elven enclaves.

The Schiller whale is one of the most fascinating and peace-loving giants of the seas around Tirakan. It is not just an animal, but a living anomaly closely connected to the magical currents of the oceans.

The iridescent whale resembles an earthly blue whale in shape, but is slimmer and has longer, almost wing-like side fins. What makes it special is its skin: it is not gray, but has a pearlescent, semi-transparent surface. Depending on the incidence of light and the magical saturation of the environment, its skin refracts light into all colors of the spectrum. Hence the name. When a iridescent whale breaks the surface, it looks like a living rainbow rising out of the water. Scholars believe that these whales not only feed on krill, but also absorb the light of the moon and stars when they come to the surface at night.

Iridescent whales avoid shallow coastal waters. They travel through the deep oceans, far away from the routes of merchant ships.

They are most often sighted in the Southern Ocean, in the cold currents far from the heat of the jungle, or in the mystical waters around abandoned island archives.

They travel in small family groups (pods). It is said that their song can calm storms or drive madness in those who listen to it for too long.

We saw it at new moon. It glowed beneath the keel like a sunken city. When we threw the harpoons, the beast did not scream. It began to sing. A sound so deep that the wood of my ship splintered and two of my men simply jumped into the water, smiling. We killed it, yes. But the oil... it burns in the lamps of my cabin, and I swear I see the faces of those who jumped in the shadows.*

Rock Moss

Tirakan moss, often called “shadow flora” or “shadow velvet” by mountain peoples, usually grows near mountain wyvern colonies. It can be found in rock crevices and small caves. It is said that it may purify air in narrow caves.

The moss grows in dense, sponge-like cushions. Its color is a deep, almost unnatural dark purple that glows in a soft, pulsating indigo when touched or exposed to air currents (bioluminescence). When touched, it leaves a slightly sticky, metallic-smelling film on the skin.

Its main function in potions is grounding. It prevents energies or raw forces from dissipating.

When chewed raw, it has a strong pain-relieving and fever-reducing effect, but an overdose can lead to a dangerous slowing of the heartbeat.

The elders claim that the moss absorbs the whispers of the mountains. If you press your ear against a moss cushion long enough, you can hear the voices of your ancestors or the mountain growling with hunger.

Mountain Wyvern Bile

Bile is a highly viscous, bright golden yellow to poison green liquid stored in the gallbladder of mountain wyverns.

It has a pungent, sulfurous odor with a hint of burnt copper. Even inhaling the pure vapors can burn the nasal mucous membranes.

In Tiraka, it is believed that bile contains the “essence of unquenched hunger.” In alchemy, it is used as a catalyst to forcibly fuse other ingredients that would normally repel each other.

Extracting bile is a difficult undertaking for an alchemist, as it requires the utmost precision under adverse conditions.

The bile must be extracted within 1D6 hours after the creature’s death. After that, the gallbladder begins to decompose and the liquid loses its alchemical potency.

Surgical instruments made of hardened steel or special ceramic knives are required. Simple iron would be corroded by the acid within seconds.

The procedure is as follows: The carcass must be secured on its back. A deep cut below the sternum exposes the liver. The gallbladder is a bulging, pulsating sac. It must be clamped at the top before being carefully cut out. A successful Dexterity (or Medicine) roll against DC 8 is required.

If the sac bursts, the harvester immediately suffers 1D6 damage from chemical burns, and the ingredient is irretrievably lost.

Wyvern bile cannot be stored in normal glass vials, as it will eventually “blind” the glass and cause it to become brittle. Experienced adventurers use lead-lined clay jugs or pure quartz vessels to safely transport the substance home.

Wine (alchemical base)

A fermented grape juice. Available in red or white. Due to its alcohol and acid content, it is often used as a reliable carrier liquid for alchemical raw materials.

It serves as a mild solvent. The alcohol extracts the active ingredients from dried herbs, berries, or roots, while the acid stabilizes the brew in the cauldron.

It is available by the barrel or in jugs at every tavern, winery, or general store throughout Tirakan.

Alcohol

In the laboratories of alchemists and the huts of herbalists, alcohol is rarely stored for pleasure. It is considered a solvent capable of unleashing the essence of plants and minerals.

It is obtained from fermented grain or fruit through multiple distillations. It is a distillate with a pungent, sharp smell that is so strong that it tickles the nose when inhaled and evaporates immediately on the skin, leaving a cooling sensation.

Moonthorn Berry

The moonthorn berry is a gift from the deepest night. It grows as a ground-covering shrub whose delicate tendrils and deep green leaves are protected by striking, short thorns.

It is found exclusively in places that rarely see the light of the sun, usually deep in ancient forests or near damp grotto and cave entrances. It only reveals its true splendor under the light of the full moon, when its small, berry-like fruits glow in a mysterious, dull blue, almost as if they had swallowed the light of the celestial sphere itself.

The berry is notorious for its strong sedative effect. In small doses, it has a calming effect, but when concentrated in a potion, its essence can numb the mind and put the body into a state of deep, dreamless stillness. Gathering them is risky, as their thorns can cause temporary itching when touched.

Frost Lichen

A tough plant that thrives exclusively in the northern steppes and the coldest regions of the Tirakan Mountains.

It prefers to grow at the tree line and on barren, windswept rocky outcrops, where temperatures rarely rise above freezing even in summer. It is well known to dwarf prospectors from the north.

The lichen itself has no magic of its own, but it has an extreme cold-binding property. It absorbs the arctic cold of its surroundings and stores it for up to 3 days if the ambient temperature does not rise above 30°C. Within this period, the temperature of the plant remains that of its last location.

In alchemy, it therefore serves as a catalyst for stabilization, putting strong, volatile substances (such as blood or high-proof alcohol) into a state of "cold shock."

Frost lichen appears as an inconspicuous, dense network in deep blue or white-gray. It lies like a crusted carpet on the stones and, at first glance, is hardly distinguishable from ice-covered rocks or frozen moss. It has no leaves and no flowers.

It is often traded in the southern kingdoms of men, as it does not grow there but is essential for simple healing and strengthening potions.

Pine Resin

The protective blood of the tree. When the rough bark of a pine tree is damaged, whether by the bite of a wild animal or the clumsy axe of a lumberjack, this tough, golden-yellow liquid oozes out.

It flows slowly, almost sluggishly, filling the air with its distinctive, tart scent.

It is used to seal brittle corks, give torches a strong flame, or thicken simple wound ointments.

Once it dries in the air, it becomes rock hard and closes the tree's wound like a natural plug.

Obsidian (Dust)

Obsidianstaub ist ein mundaner, mineralischer alchemistischer Grundstoff, der aus vulkanischem Glas gewonnen wird.

Er besitzt keinerlei innewohnende magische Kraft, ist jedoch aufgrund seiner extremen Härte, seiner scharfen Kanten im mikroskopischen Bereich und seiner enormen Hitzebeständigkeit ein unschätzbare mechanischer Katalysator.

In der Alchemie wird er genutzt, um Unreinheiten und Bitterstoffe aus kochenden Suden zu binden und feine Pflanzenessenzen zu zwingen, sich abzusetzen.

Obsidian entsteht dort, wo feurige Magma rasch an der frischen Luft oder durch Wasser abkühlt. Man findet das vulkanische Glas in den tiefen, erstarrten Lavaseen der Unterwelt oder an den rauen, vulkanischen Bruchstellen des Hochlands. Er kann in schweren Mörsern zu einem mehlfeinen, grauen Staub zerstoßen werden.

Die unangefochtenen Hauptlieferanten für den besten Obsidianstaub in Tirakan sind die Zwerge der Xordai. Insbesondere die Kolonie Kor-Vamak, die direkt in einem erstarrten Lavasee errichtet wurde, hat sich auf den Abbau und die Verarbeitung dieses Materials spezialisiert.

Das dort ansässige Syndikat exportiert den Staub über ihre gut bewachten Handelskarawanen bis an die Oberfläche.

Scale of a river nymph

The river nymph is an extremely shy creature, which, according to rumors in alchemical circles, no mortal being in Tirakan has ever truly seen. The only tangible proof of its existence are its scales.

They are occasionally found on muddy riverbanks, on rocks washed by spray, or in the darkness of underground lakes.

At dusk, these scales often appear simply greenish-brown, almost like ordinary horn or dried leaves. But as soon as the sun of Tirakan kisses the surface, they come to life and shimmer in all the colors of mother-of-pearl. They often reach the size of a proud palm and resemble the scales of a large fish in texture.

Fortunately, this magical ingredient is not a rare sight in the markets of the empire, especially on the trade routes between Toran and Yavon down to Meridian. Since they are found regularly, their value remains manageable, making them an honest ingredient. They are so common that it is hardly worthwhile for counterfeiters to produce inferior copies. But a word of warning from me: always look for the characteristic shimmer!

According to an old legend, on lonely nights, river nymphs sit enthroned on mossy rocks and comb their endless, water-colored hair with combs made of bone and old driftwood. Their faces are said to be marked by a peaceful melancholy as they hum quiet songs whose deeper meaning is known only to the flowing water.

The caster focuses on the desired object in his mental eye, reaches into an object from a certain element (it is possible for him to simply slide his hand into the object during the spell) and pulls out the desired object.

The caster pulls an object of his choice from another object. Swords made of ice, drinking vessels made of wood, shields made of rock or water, etc. are possible. There are no limits to the caster's creativity, but he can only pull out one object at a time, which makes the creation of chains, for example, very time-consuming.

The item has its typical properties, plus the elemental component, so a sword made of fire inflicts fire damage on the victim, a sword made of wood receives no damage bonus. Only the caster does not receive this possible elemental damage. A drinking goblet of ice is very pleasant if one likes to enjoy very strongly chilled drinks, but it could freeze to the fingers and or lips of everyone else except the creator.

The spell can be dropped by the caster at any time. If the caster does not return the item to its place of origin when dropping the spell (e.g. does not put the wooden shield back into the tree) he receives a wound on the hand, possibly a few burn or frost blisters and the item dissolves.

Aevum

Spell points:	80
Arcana cost:	1000
Range:	0
Actions:	1000
Needs concentration:	Nein
Type:	Transmutation
Variant:	Mind

The ritual requires extensive preparation. Thus, the most precise preparation of the hermeticist as well as that of the target person is required.

The hermeticist activates the spell at the very beginning of the ritual. Over the whole time he has to maintain this spell, which devours a considerable amount of magic. Every single day he has to spend two hours of meditation, working on the painting. The painting must be created solely by the Hermeticist.

The target needs no preparation other than the realisation to become fleshless. For this purpose, he should torture himself with all kinds of burning, poisoning and the like to facilitate the completion of the ritual.

At the time of performance, the hermeticist only has to maintain the sphere with his concentration and control the arms. Scenery as well as atmosphere are irrelevant, as in most hermetic acts.

During the time of the creation of the image, the hermeticist binds the spirit and soul of the target person to it. At the time of execution, a sphere of pure magic is created not far from the painting, which mostly floats in the air in a semi-transparent matt white. This sphere forms arms which glide like hoses over the heads of the victims to be provided. With a continuous humming sound, the sphere collects the innards of the victims and then condenses them into the image.

The hermeticist thus creates a firm bond between the spirit and soul of the target person and the painting. The spirit in the painting is able to enter any person in the immediate vicinity of the painting at any time within one second. The target person then lives on in this person until his or her death or an exorcism, and then enters the painting again. It completely dominates the person, feels their feelings and lives completely in them. This process of dominating and regressing only comes to an end once the image is destroyed or the target person has returned to the image four times. After that, he remains in the image.

The created image is itself almost indestructible. It is considered an artefact of the Hermeticist level and requires the same effort to destroy as any other artefact of that level. Only immense magical influence or divine work can destroy the object.

The target can enter the image power+magic level times before being trapped inside.

Range:	0
Actions:	4
Duration:	Power minutes
Needs concentration:	Nein
Type:	Transmutation
Variant:	Demonic

The demonologist crouches down, cuts his flesh with the Ritual Weapon and drips the blood onto the element attached to the Archdemon (For mist, water is enough, magic implies a Magical Artefact).

The demonologist transforms into the form of one of the servants of his bonded archdemon. In doing so, he partially assumes the demon's abilities, though the body is just as vulnerable as in his human form. In addition, the demonologist gains only the demon's physical abilities at its normal human size, and no magical abilities at all.

The transformation lasts power minutes. He receives a bonus of magic level points on an appropriate attribute.

Call demon

Spell points:	10
Arcana cost:	4
Range:	0
Actions:	10
Needs concentration:	Nein
Type:	Conjuration
Variant:	Demonic

The rules for invoking a demon are as varied as they are controversial. It has been proven that the invocation benefits from the provision of various paraphernalia. There are also some peculiarities in the action that have a positive effect on its success. In general, it can be said that the invocation should take place in a suitable atmosphere and is a direct calling of the demon on the part of the demonologist. So it is also possible to make an invocation without any preparation only with the verse.

The following paraphernalia have an effect on the minimum roll of the Invocation :

* Magic level: -magic level * Suitable environment, silence: -1 * Heptagram drawn: -1 * Heptagram is made of blood: -2 * Sigil drawn: -1 * Player draws sigil from hand: -10 * 7 candles: -1 * Each additional demonologist: -1 * The stars are right: -10 * Animal Sacrifice (each): -4 * Human sacrifice (each): -10 * Ban circle drawn: obligatory * Temple nearby: 20 * day: 5 * Priest nearby: 10 * Holy water nearby: 5 * A sacrifice begins to pray: 2 (each). * Lesser demon is summoned: -1 * Higher demon is summoned: 5 * Servant of an Archdemon is summoned: 30 * Arch demon is summoned: 100

Calling a demonic being does not include binding the demon.

Bind demonic being

Spell points:	7
Arcana cost:	1
Range:	0
Actions:	1
Needs concentration:	Nein
Type:	Control
Variant:	Demonic

The demonologist has to look into the eyes (if any) of the being he wants to bind and has to face its will.

If the spell succeeds, the demonologist gains control over a demon. If the demon is unbound, the mere casting of the spell is enough to bind it. However, if the demon has already been controlled by another demonologist, it is necessary to first (before casting the spell) perform a magical comparison (comparison roll spell casting) against the controlling caster. If this fails, the demon remains under the dominion of its original master. If the spell fails after a won magic comparison, the demon is no longer subject to any master.

The minimum roll of the spell is modified according to the being to be bound:

* Lower Demon: -2 * Higher Demon: 2 * Servant of an Archdemon: 20 * Arch Demon: 100

The minimum roll is reduced by the magic level.

Pact

Spell points:	30
Arcana cost:	12
Range:	0
Actions:	100
Needs concentration:	Nein
Type:	Transmutation
Variant:	Demonic

Only a few who have made a pact with an archdemon have reported how the pact took place, but some facts are known, the demonologist must make contact through one of the servants. Demonologists have an easier time of it, as they are able to summon them. Other alignments must go to one of the demon's places of worship.

Once a caster has made contact, the demon takes control, usually for this purpose the demon opens a portal into its globe of the demon sphere, only those who can cross this threshold without perishing have any chance of a pact.

What exactly happens in the demon sphere is uncertain, but there are reports of cruel trials that the gifted have to endure, even the strongest usually return broken.

If the pact is successfully concluded, the demonologists return as other beings. Mostly only the appearance reminds of the one who entered the portal.

In any case, the pactors are now subordinates of the demon, disobedience is punished, immediately and from within, it does not matter where the pactor is. The pact binds demon and demonologist across all spheres and ailments.

At the beginning, some particularly powerful demonologists are still able to resist and even assert their own will against the demon, but sooner or later all pactors are subordinate to their master.

With the conclusion of a pact, not only is one's life committed to the demon, but also any existence after death. The demonologist only dies when the demon allows it, otherwise he is merely drawn into the demon sphere to be released again by the demon at will.

It is said that there are demons who withdraw the pact from pactors, which would be the only possibility for a pactor to return to a halfway normal life, but most of them prefer to kill the demonologist or make him a lowly subordinate if he resists.

„Als wir in den Wald stürmten stand da nur diese junge Frau. Unser Hauptmann lachte. Das sollte alles sein, was uns diese Menschen hier entgegen werfen? Eine Hexe? Unser Hauptmann stürmte ihr entgegen, doch die Hexe erhob nur ihre Hände. Im gleichen Moment wurde der erhobene Schwertarm unseres Hauptmanns von dunklen nebligen Tentakeln zurück gerissen mit einem gräßlichen Geräusch. Er schrie. Als die Hexe erneut ihre dämonische Geste vollführte, kamen weitere Tentakel und rissen ihm den ganzen Arm am Gelenk aus! Wir konnten grade noch fliehen!”

– Totschläger-Arne, Räuber

The ‘Shadow Split’ is a powerful and cruel spell that summons the dark forces of the Demon Sphere to tear apart an opponent’s joints with unimaginable force. The caster summons dark, tentacle-like shadows that wrap themselves around the target’s limbs and pull the joints apart with an eerie crack. In the worst case, this can lead to the complete loss of the affected limb.

If the target is wearing special armour such as bracers or greaves on the affected joints, the number of protection points will be deducted from the successes.

Target: A single living creature within the caster’s line of sight.

Effect: The target suffers severe damage to the joints, resulting in considerable movement restrictions. With a particularly powerful cast, a limb can be completely severed. The damage is strength plus magic level.

Duration: Immediate effect, with continued movement restrictions until the target is healed.

Side effects: Using this spell may attract the attention of dark forces that may haunt the caster in the future.

Shortly after the cursing, the victim starts to feel the first effects. The cursed person feels weakened, which, in addition to the unpleasant feeling, is manifested in the reduction of the values for strength, willpower, reaction, speed and perception by 1.

As long as the curse is active, these values decrease every day by another point. If one of the attributes reaches the value 0, the victim becomes bedridden and can no longer get up by himself.

At 40%, the cursed is already weakened to the point that all attribute values are halved. From a fluid loss of 70% (now the skin seems to resemble a dry piece of leather) it is hardly possible for the cursed to stand up. Everything around him becomes blurred, and he has no way to take care of himself. Only when all liquid has escaped from the body, the cursed dies. Until that time, the fox keeps him alive.

Recipes

Potions and Tinctures

Strength Potion

Difficulty: medium
Yield: 2

Preparation: Use a heavy iron cauldron over hot coals. Grind the rock troll claw in a granite mortar into ash-gray dust (Caution: Do not inhale the dust!). Bring the water to a boil and stir in the claw powder steadily in a clockwise direction until the mixture thickens. Add the yarrow, followed by the crushed garlic.

Preparation time: 4 hours of active boiling, followed by a 12-hour resting period in the dying embers. Yield: 2 doses (2x150 Oth of liquid, total weight 300 Oth without the container).

Effect: Increases the Strength attribute by +2 points for a duration equal to the number of hours of Endurance.

Ingredients

- Rock troll claws (Lithocrinus tirakanis) (50 oth), Components. The claws of a rock troll are not claws in the biological sense, but mineralized growths made of hardened keratin and concentrated ores. They reflect the unbridled physical regenerative power of the trolls, whose skin has entered into a symbiosis with the rock of the Shadow Rocks. A single, intact claw is about the size of a short sword. Their color ranges from deep gray to obsidian black, often with layers reminiscent of slate. They are so hard that they spark when they hit metal. Ordinary blades usually dull immediately when used on them. In alchemy, the entire claw is almost never used, but rather a processed form. The claw must be laboriously worked with diamond files or hardened steel chisels. Finely grated shavings or dust are used as ingredients. This dust is heavy, ash-colored, and glitters when exposed to light. The dust must be extremely fine. Chips that are too coarse will not dissolve in the potion and can seriously injure the user's esophagus when consumed. Alternatively, it is advisable to strain the liquid through a sieve after brewing.

- Yarrows (Achillea millefolium) (50 oth), Components. Yarrow is used for its hemostatic effect. The flowers and the leaves contain tannins, bitter and mineral substances. The essential oil of the plant has anti-inflammatory and antispasmodic effect.
- Garlic (Allium toranum) (2 Piece), Food / Provisions. A pungent-smelling bulblet that brings tears to the eyes of alchemists.

In alchemy, it serves as a cleansing agent. It clears mucus from the lungs, disinfects wounds, and—thanks to its stench—keeps vermin and sensitive elves at a safe distance.

It grows on every honest farm in Toran and Hade-wald and can be bought from any shopkeeper for a few Deut.

- Water (350 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Elixir of elven power

Difficulty: medium
Yield: 2

Preparation: The oil from the Schiller whale is slowly heated to body temperature together with the water in a glass bowl. It must never boil, otherwise the “shimmer” (the magical essence) will evaporate. The rock salt is sprinkled in until the liquid becomes milky. The silver orchid leaves are then placed in the warm oil (maceration). They must rest there for 11 hours and slowly release their juices into the oil. Finally, the elixir is filtered through a silk cloth. The remaining liquid should now have taken on the characteristic pearly glow of the whale.

Preparation time: 1 hour of active time (for precise temperature control) and 11 hours of resting time.

Quantity: 2 applications, 2x25 Oth liquid, 2x25 Oth weight

Effect: The player adds 2D6 to their dice pool for a duration of 2D6 minutes. After this time, the character suffers the “shocked” 2 condition and is stunned for 2D6 minutes as their metabolism abruptly slows down after the highly potent oil wears off. Elven characters do not suffer this side effect.

Ingredients

- Silberorchidee (3 Petals), Components. The silver orchid is considered the undisputed and deceptive “queen of southern flora.” It is a botanical marvel that is as beautiful as it is deadly to those who are fooled by its splendor.

Its leaves are not green, but have a dark gray, almost metallic color that shines like polished silver in the moonlight. The veins pulsate faintly in a pale violet when magic is nearby. The flower itself is large and cup-shaped, with snow-white petals that are razor-sharp at the edges. But the most disturbing thing about it is not its beauty, but its mobility: the plant stretches upward on exposed, muscular roots, which enable it to crawl slowly across the ground.

The silver orchid is found almost exclusively in the deep south of Tirakan, beyond the Iron Mountains. It can be found in the vast green steppes and along riverbanks, often camouflaged in the shade of the local flora. It often grows in disturbing proximity to the giant stone creatures that dwell in the passes.

When you approach the plant, it emits a glittering cloud of fine, silver dust. This is not harmless pollen, but a deadly attack. Anyone who inhales the dust is seized by severe coughing and shortness of breath. Within moments, black pockmarks form on the skin, and the victim falls into a deep, death-like unconsciousness. Once the victim is defenseless, the plant secretes a corrosive substance from its roots to slowly decompose and absorb its prey.

Despite these dangers, it is hunted because it is a powerful potentiator. In alchemy, the extracted nectar is used to increase the effects of other potions to the extreme. But processing it is risky: a mistake in distillation causes the magical energy to overload the body (similar to “silver death”), which is often fatal.

Ancient legends say that silver orchids came into being when the blood of a fallen star god dripped onto the earth in the First Age. The elves, on the other hand, call the flower “traitor’s jewelry” and believe that it grows where reality has cracked and chaos seeps into the world.

“It looks like jewelry, crawls like a spider, and is worth more than my house. But be careful, boy: when you see the glitter, hold your breath and run. Before you realize you’re getting sick, you’ll already be its fertilizer.” – Marginal note in the records of the herb collector ‘Three-Finger Hannes’

- Schiller whale oil (1 Vial), Components. The blubber, the fatty tissue under the skin, is the reason why these majestic animals are hunted. It is no ordinary fat, but a storehouse of magical energy. In its raw state, blubber is a tough, jelly-like mass that glows faintly blue. After refinement (melting and filtering), it becomes a clear, oily elixir that streaks like liquid mother-of-pearl. Unlike the rancid blubber of ordinary whales, the blubber of the Schiller whale smells fresh, salty, and slightly metallic (like the air before a thunderstorm).

It is the best known means of binding volatile magic in potions (see Elixir of the Elven Watch). When burned in lamps, it gives off a light that never produces soot and can make the invisible visible. Weapon oils made from this oil can injure spirits. Since hunting them is extremely dangerous (iridescent whales rarely defend themselves, but are often protected by sea elementals or mermaids) and the animals are rare, the price is enormous.

The Ancatir consider hunting iridescent whales a sacrilege. They only use oil that comes from whales that have washed ashore naturally (“gift of the tides”). Alchemists who use “bloody oil” are often expelled from the city in elven enclaves.

The Schiller whale is one of the most fascinating and peace-loving giants of the seas around Tirakan. It is not just an animal, but a living anomaly closely connected to the magical currents of the oceans.

The iridescent whale resembles an earthly blue whale in shape, but is slimmer and has longer, almost wing-like side fins. What makes it special is its skin: it is not gray, but has a pearlescent, semi-transparent surface. Depending on the incidence of light and the magical saturation of the environment, its skin refracts light into all colors of the spectrum. Hence the name. When a iridescent whale breaks the surface, it looks like a living rainbow rising out of the water. Scholars believe that these whales not only feed on krill, but also absorb the light of the moon and stars when they come to the surface at night.

Iridescent whales avoid shallow coastal waters. They travel through the deep oceans, far away from the routes of merchant ships.

They are most often sighted in the Southern Ocean, in the cold currents far from the heat of the jungle, or in the mystical waters around abandoned island archives.

They travel in small family groups (pods). It is said that their song can calm storms or drive madness in those who listen to it for too long.

We saw it at new moon. It glowed beneath the keel like a sunken city. When we threw the harpoons, the beast did not scream. It began to sing. A sound so deep that the wood of my ship splintered and two of my men simply jumped into the water, smiling. We killed it, yes. But the oil... it burns in the lamps of my cabin, and I swear I see the faces of those who jumped in the shadows.*

Laughing Potion

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 1

Preparation: First, bring the spring water to a boil in a copper kettle until it bubbles gently. Add the crushed comfrey, which forms the physical basis and ensures that the laugh muscles remain supple.

Now comes the crucial moment: the "giggle pea" must be crushed in a mortar while telling a (really!) bad joke out loud. The flatter the joke, the more sparkling the potion! Stir the mixture three times counterclockwise while giggling quietly. Finally, stir in the honey to dispel the bitterness of the world.

Preparation time: 30 minutes of active stirring and joke telling, followed by 1 hour of resting time to "settle."

Quantity: 1 application, approx. 50 Oth liquid, weight: 50 Oth.

Effect: The consumer must laugh loudly at every little incident at the next opportunity (duration: 2D6 minutes). In terms of game mechanics, this grants a bonus die on all "Performance" or 'Communication' checks, but makes all "Stealth" checks +3 more difficult (SG Medium).

Exhaustion: After the effect expires, -1 point on all dice rolls for 30 minutes (laughing is exhausting!).

Ingredients

- Water (60 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Comfrey (Symphytum officinale) (10 oth), Components. Comfrey stimulates blood circulation, bruises, hematomas and sprains disappear faster. Comfrey accelerates the regeneration of cells.
- Chickpeas (Gigglepea) (1 Piece), Food / Provisions. This small, yellow-green bean is a truly wonderful food.

Apart from its alchemical use as a base for laughing potions, it is an excellent food for weary travelers. It is often found in the rich markets in and around Al Bah Ji Ra. However, its popularity is slowly spreading throughout Tirakan.

Eating a handful of roasted chickpeas dispels gloomy thoughts and briefly lifts the "shadow" from the mind. This is especially true when seasoned with spices such as garlic, cumin, or pepper. Even on their own, they are rich in protein and complex fiber, making them a nutritious addition to any diet.

"If the stew tastes too bitter and life weighs too heavily, throw in a handful of chickpeas. Your stomach will thank you with a gurgle." — Master chef Alar al-Din of the "Tent of Seven Veils" in El Kurru

- Honey (5 oth), Food / Provisions. In cultivated regions, honey is produced by hard-working beekeepers, who often set up their hives near herb gardens.

This honey is clear, stable, and has a delicate taste of thyme or lavender. It usually costs about 2 guilders per 5 oth and is a reliable staple for any alchemist who wants to soften the bitterness of herbal extracts.

Those who are more adventurous search the forests for wild bee nests. This honey is darker, thicker, and often mixed with pollen or small pieces of wax. It has a strong, almost earthy flavor. It is said that wild honey from the primeval forests has a stronger regenerative power for the voice. Ideal for bards who need to lubricate their throats after a long night in the tavern.

Titanic Strength

Difficulty: difficult

Yield: 1

Preparation: Reduce the red wine until a dark paste forms. Be careful not to let it burn. Heat the wine reduction in a crucible. Then, while stirring, gradually add water (dripping it in carefully) to completely dissolve the finely ground amber until a reddish-golden haze forms.

Now add two portions of the finest Rock Troll Claw Powder and the Kinstarchel Bone Powder. Add arnica to mitigate the toxicity of the troll powder.

The reaction transforms the mixture into a thin, liquid broth. It is highly explosive and tends to foam. Stir exactly against the path of the Daymoon to contain the pressure. Not too fast, not too slow. Use a flask to collect the pale golden-yellow distillate until the broth has almost completely evaporated.

(If you mess up, you don't roll on the failure table. It just explodes. BOOM!)

Preparation time: 20 minutes of preparation, 2 hours of careful simmering, 12 hours of continuous distillation, followed by 3 days of aging in complete darkness.

Quantity: 1 dose (150 Oth of highly concentrated essence).

Effect: The Strength attribute is increased by +6 points for a duration of Resistance × 2 rounds in combat. Unarmed attacks (punches, kicks) automatically gain the Penetration 2 property. At the same time, the user gains +4 units of Normal Protection (N) for their protection pool. Once the effect ends, the user suffers from Poison. For 10 minutes, they lose 1D3 Wounds each round. No antidote is effective.

Ingredients

- Rock troll claws (Lithocrinus tirakanis) (100 oth), Components. The claws of a rock troll are not claws in the biological sense, but mineralized growths made of hardened keratin and concentrated ores.

They reflect the unbridled physical regenerative power of the trolls, whose skin has entered into a symbiosis with the rock of the Shadow Rocks.

A single, intact claw is about the size of a short sword. Their color ranges from deep gray to obsidian black, often with layers reminiscent of slate.

They are so hard that they spark when they hit metal. Ordinary blades usually dull immediately when used on them.

In alchemy, the entire claw is almost never used, but rather a processed form. The claw must be laboriously worked with diamond files or hardened steel chisels.

Finely grated shavings or dust are used as ingredients. This dust is heavy, ash-colored, and glitters when exposed to light. The dust must be extremely fine. Chips that are too coarse will not dissolve in the potion and can seriously injure the user's esophagus when consumed. Alternatively, it is advisable to strain the liquid through a sieve after brewing.

- Amber (100 oth), Components. A smooth, oval-shaped amber with a warm golden hue. Its polished surface is slightly transparent and reflects light in a fascinating way. The hand-sized stone looks like a natural talisman due to its curved shape.

- Water (50 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

- Kinstarchel Bone (10 oth), Components. Bones of a deceased Kinstarchel. An explosive secretion can be extracted from the marrow of the bones.

- Wine (alchemical base) (1 stone), Components. A fermented grape juice. Available in red or white. Due to its alcohol and acid content, it is often used as a reliable carrier liquid for alchemical raw materials.

It serves as a mild solvent. The alcohol extracts the active ingredients from dried herbs, berries, or roots, while the acid stabilizes the brew in the cauldron.

It is available by the barrel or in jugs at every tavern, winery, or general store throughout Tirakan.

Lachsunder Seemagen

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 3

Preparation: Take your small cauldron and fill it with clear spring water. Crush the dried mugwort and seaweed with a mortar and pestle until a coarse paste forms. Now add freshly grated ginger. Bring the mixture to a brief boil, then simmer over moderate heat until the liquid turns dark green. Strain the decoction through a linen cloth and pour it into a vial.

Preparation time: 20 minutes of active brewing time; no resting time required.

Quantity: 3 doses (liquid: 30 Oth, total weight 90 Oth).

Effect: Instantly heals all ailments caused by seasickness (can also be taken preventively up to 2 hours before a sea voyage) and heals a wound after 2 hours.

Ingredients

- Mugwort (Artemisia vulgaris) (1 Bunch), Components. A mugwort plant. The tops of the sprout are used to revive the digestion.

- Seaweed from Lachsund (Alga asgorania) (10 oth), Components. Eine zähe, dunkelgrüne bis bräunliche Meeresalge mit breiten, ledrigen Blättern, die an den Küsten von Lachsund im kalten Meerwasser gedeiht.

Sie schmeckt extrem salzig und verströmt einen intensiven Duft nach frischer Gischt und Jod.

In der alchemistischen Naturkunde dient er als Stabilisator für den Magen. Seine Inhaltsstoffe beruhigen den Gleichgewichtssinn und binden Giftstoffe im Verdauungstrakt. Für den alltäglichen Verzehr ist er nicht geeignet.

Das Gewächs wird in großen Mengen an den felsigen Küsten von Asgoran angespült oder gezielt von den maritimen Sammlern der Siederei Falke aus dem Meer gefischt, getrocknet und verarbeitet. Auf den Fischmärkten von Lachsund ist er körbeweise erhältlich.

- Lemon Ginger (Zingiber meridionale) (5 oth), Components. A tuberous, fibrous root of light brown color, whose juicy, yellow flesh releases a burning pungency and an intensely fresh citrus aroma when cut open.

In alchemy, it is considered a fiery vitalizer that stimulates blood circulation. It is used to stimulate the body's vital fluids, alleviate stomach ailments, and drastically accelerate the absorption of healing elixirs into the bloodstream.

The plant thrives in warm, humid conditions and grows magnificently in the fertile, river-rich lands of O'grut, or is imported to Meridian from the southern oases via the humans' extensive trade networks.

- Water (90 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Elixir of Chronos

Difficulty: difficult

Yield: 1

Preparation: Bring the pure spring water to a boil in a heavy iron cauldron. Add the obsidian dust and stir continuously until the water takes on a cloudy, gray color. Now add the dried guild herb and the valerian. The dust binds the plant fibers and slowly settles to the bottom during the three-hour, vigorous boil, releasing the concentrated alkaloids into the liquid.

The mixture must be filtered through a triple layer of linen cloth. If obsidian dust remains in the potion, it weighs heavily on the consumer's gut, causing 1D6 hours of exhaustion. All checks are made with a +1 penalty during this time.

Preparation time: 3 hours of active, highly concentrated work. 12 hours of rest in absolute darkness and silence.

Quantity: 1 dose (approx. 15 Oth of pure essence, total weight 15 Oth).

Effect: For the next 6 hours, the consumer enters a state of absolute, supernatural hyper-focus. The character gains a permanent bonus of +2 dice on all checks requiring Logic, Diligence, Perception, or Knowledge.

Additionally, for the duration of the effect, the character becomes completely immune to the Dazed condition as well as to all attempts at mental influence or sleep spells (since the brain is simply working too fast).

As soon as the 6 hours elapse, the nervous system collapses abruptly. The character instantly falls into a comatose deep sleep for 1D6+2 hours, from which they cannot be awakened under any circumstances (not even damage will wake them). They awaken afterward somewhat confused and cannot remember what happened during the 6-hour duration.

However, the deep sleep allows the character to make a Rest roll.

Ingredients

- Gildenkraut (Vigilia mercatoris) (30 oth), Components. Gildherb is a tough, almost inconspicuous plant that only catches the trained eye of an expert.

It is characterized by jagged, leathery leaves of a deep green color, whose thick veins have a slight reddish sheen. Its flowers are tiny, pale yellow, and close immediately once the sun passes its zenith. The herb is entirely mundane and possesses not the slightest spark of the arcane. Its value lies rather in its extremely high, natural concentration of alkaloids, particularly pure caffeine. When the tough leaves are crushed between the fingers, they give off a sharp, earthy scent reminiscent of heavily roasted nuts.

Location and Habitat: This plant is relatively rare, as it requires very specific, adverse conditions to produce its stimulating sap. It thrives exclusively in barren, mineral-rich soils and avoids the damp moss of deep forests.

Gildherb is found primarily in the rocky crevices of ancient trade routes, in the crumbling stone mortar of abandoned guild outposts, or on the steep, sun-baked slopes of the Toran Highlands. It needs hard rock and plenty of wind to prevent it from withering away.

- Valeriana (Valeriana officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. Valerian helps with insomnia and restlessness. Hops and lemon balm increase the effect of valerian and improve the taste.

- Obsidian (Dust) (5 oth), Components. Obsidianstaub ist ein mundaner, mineralischer alchemistischer Grundstoff, der aus vulkanischem Glas gewonnen wird.

Er besitzt keinerlei innewohnende magische Kraft, ist jedoch aufgrund seiner extremen Härte, seiner scharfen Kanten im mikroskopischen Bereich und seiner enormen Hitzebeständigkeit ein unschätzbare mechanischer Katalysator.

In der Alchemie wird er genutzt, um Unreinheiten und Bitterstoffe aus kochenden Suden zu binden und feine Pflanzenessenzen zu zwingen, sich abzusetzen.

Obsidian entsteht dort, wo feurige Magma rasch an der frischen Luft oder durch Wasser abkühlt. Man findet das vulkanische Glas in den tiefen, erstarrten Lavaseen der Unterwelt oder an den rauen, vulkanischen Bruchstellen des Hochlands. Er kann in schweren Mörsern zu einem mehlfeinen, grauen Staub zerstoßen werden.

Die unangefochtenen Hauptlieferanten für den besten Obsidianstaub in Tirakan sind die Zwerge der Xordai. Insbesondere die Kolonie Kor-Vamak, die direkt in einem erstarrten Lavasee errichtet wurde, hat sich auf den Abbau und die Verarbeitung dieses Materials spezialisiert.

Das dort ansässige Syndikat exportiert den Staub über ihre gut bewachten Handelskarawanen bis an die Oberfläche.

Felsenfeuer Distillate

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 1

Preparation: The preparation requires meridian-like precision. First, the marshmallow root is steeped in cold water and left to steep for exactly two hours before the liquid is strained and heated. In the meantime, comfrey and chamomile are ground into a fine powder in a mortar. The heated marshmallow liquid is mixed with the powder and distilled several times until a clear essence is obtained.

Preparation time: 2 hours of steeping time for the cold extraction of the marshmallow root, followed by 1 hour of active time at the distillation apparatus.

Quantity: 1 application. Approx. 200 Oth of liquid, total weight 800 Oth (including ceramic bottle).

Effect: The concentrated active ingredients accelerate cell regeneration and heal 1W3 wounds.

Ingredients

- Water (200 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Camomile (Matricaria recutita) (50 oth), Components. Chamomile is one of the oldest medicinal plants and was already used in the Middle Ages. The flowers have a healing and soothing effect. Externally, chamomile can be used for inflammation of the gums, skin or mucous membrane. Taken internally, it is effective for gastrointestinal disorders. Rinsing and inhalation are also widely used.
- Comfrey (Symphytum officinale) (50 oth), Components. Comfrey stimulates blood circulation, bruises, hematomas and sprains disappear faster. Comfrey accelerates the regeneration of cells.
- Marshmallow (Althaea officinalis) (100 oth), Components. The root of this medicinal plant is used. This is prepared cold and must infuse for about two hours. Only after infusion, the liquid is strained and then heated. The substances provide protection for the mucous membranes and have an anti-irritant effect. A helpful medicinal plant for gastrointestinal problems and a cough.

Genesis Elixir

Difficulty: difficult
Yield: 1

Preparation: Bring the ocean water to a boil in a cauldron made of pure silver. Add the ground amber and obsidian dust to condense the liquid's arcane matrix.

While stirring constantly against the sun's path, incorporate the Kinstarchel secretion. Beware of the fumes! When the solution bubbles up a deep blue, add the butterfly dragon secretion, which induces a state of primal sleep in the spirit.

Finally, you must toss in the ground claw of the Sethlarn, which serves as a temporal anchor. The brew must now simmer over a gentle ember for exactly three days, until the mixture has condensed into a viscous, shimmering essence.

Preparation time: 6 hours of active brewing time, 72 hours of resting and aging time over embers.

Quantity: 1 application (approx. 50 Oth of pure essence, total weight 50 Oth).

Effect: Restores the life of a deceased character, but entails a horrific transformation process lasting several days. As soon as the essence is administered to the deceased, the flesh liquefies completely and disintegrates within moments into a shimmering primordial soup. After a few minutes, the deceased reemerges from this organic mass as a helpless infant.

Over the following 7 days, the transformed individual undergoes an extremely accelerated, painful physical and emotional maturation process:

Primordial Slime > Infant > Toddler > Adolescent > Primordial Age

During this maturation phase, the character is extremely vulnerable—both physically and mentally—and completely incapable of acting on their own. Physical Decay & Growth: Their bones break and reform every day. Their muscles grow amid excruciating pain. Mental Confusion: At first, the Transformed One has almost no ability to speak. Their memories and emotions return only in fragmented, often frightening bursts. Companions are usually recognized only vaguely by their scent or voice. Whether they are friend or foe often triggers shifting waves of primal trust or panic.

stricken fear of loss in the maturing individual. During these 7 days, the player should embody a protégé who must be protected, fed, and carried by the group while gradually regaining his personality. Only after the 7 days have elapsed does the aging process stop exactly on the day of the original death. The character is now fully restored: all hit points are regenerated, all old ailments, scars, or curses are healed, and the character regains their full knowledge and all their memories without any gaps. They feel, in the truest sense of the word, as if they have been reborn.

Ingredients

- Water (50 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Butterfly dragon secretion (10 oth), Components. If one is careful, butterfly dragons can be milked. They secrete a very strange secretion, which immediately makes the person who consumes it fall into a sleep with fascinating dreams. If the potion is administered or taken, the person consuming it will sleep soundly for at least eight hours. Double rest is applied for this time. The sleeper is at most to be awakened by real pain.
- Kinstarchel Secretion (10 oth), Components. A highly reactive liquid produced from the bones of the adorable Kinstarchel.
- Talisman of a Sethlarn (1 Piece), Oddities. Claw of a Sethlarn on a leather thong. It exudes an enormous magical power. It stops the aging process of the wearer. When it is removed, time catches up with the wearer.
- Amber (5 oth), Components. A smooth, oval-shaped amber with a warm golden hue. Its polished surface is slightly transparent and reflects light in a fascinating way. The hand-sized stone looks like a natural talisman due to its curved shape.
- Obsidian (Dust) (5 oth), Components. Obsidianstaub ist ein mundaner, mineralischer alchemistischer Grundstoff, der aus vulkanischem Glas gewonnen wird. Panthomeic Pick-Me-Up

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: First, you must grind the hard Panthomean pine cones into a fine powder using a mortar. Bring this powder to a boil in clear water over a blue, extremely hot flame until the water turns emerald green. Now you must add fresh bloodwort to neutralize the bitter compounds in the cones. The chamomile, lightly crushed, gives the potion its energizing effect.

Preparation time: 2 hours of intense boiling, followed by half a night of steeping in a cool cellar.

Quantity: 2 doses. 200 Oth of liquid, total weight 200 Oth.

Effect: Temporarily eliminates sleep deprivation. The user ignores all penalties due to fatigue and also receives a substantial bonus of +2 dice to Perception and Alertness for 1W6 hours. However, as soon as the effect wears off, the body inevitably falls into a deep, dreamless sleep.

Ingredients

- Panthomic pine cones (2 Piece), Components. Panthomean pine cones are the woody, resin-rich fruit clusters of the rare Panthomean mountain pine.

These cones are covered by a hard, almost metallic-looking layer of scales that encloses a deep-purple, highly sticky balsam inside. They possess no inherent magical energy, but are known in alchemy for their powerful preservative, structure-strengthening, and heat-generating properties.

These cones grow exclusively in the icy, storm-lashed heights of the Panthomean peaks, far above the tree line in the rugged highlands.

Harvesting them is arduous, as the cones can only be harvested by hunters or the Hil-JabalJarh.

Occasionally, dwarven mountain caravans bring isolated specimens to markets throughout Tirakan.

- Common Bloodweed (20 oth), Components. Bloodweed is a ground-level plant that is particularly striking due to its fleshy, deep red leaves. The fine veins on the leaf surface glow in a rich scarlet red, almost as if real blood were pulsing through them. When a leaf is crushed, a sticky, sweet-smelling sap emerges that stains the fingers for days. It is not a magical plant in the classic sense. It draws its power from the iron-rich soil and the pale light of the dense forests.

You will usually find bloodweed in shady, damp places. It prefers the foot of old oak trees or the immediate vicinity of rotting undergrowth in deep forests. An inattentive traveler often mistakes it for common purple sorrel, but a trained alchemist will notice the small, pearl-like dewdrops that always collect at the edges of the leaves.

It is best harvested in the early morning hours, before the sun breaks through the canopy. Only the outer leaves are cut to preserve the root.

- Camomile (Matricaria recutita) (1 Bunch), Components. Chamomile is one of the oldest medicinal plants and was already used in the Middle Ages. The flowers have a healing and soothing effect. Externally, chamomile can be used for inflammation of the gums, skin or mucous membrane. Taken internally, it is effective for gastrointestinal disorders. Rinsing and inhalation are also widely used.

- Water (130 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Goblin Stomach-Strangler

Difficulty: medium

Preparation: Carefully grind the celandine in a mortar, then simmer it with the water over low heat until a clear, odorless decoction forms.

While stirring constantly (preferably in a counter-clockwise direction), add the lizard bile extract drop by drop. The steam will briefly smell like rotten eggs. That is the moment when you must add the finely ground amber dust.

Let the potion rest overnight. After straining, you'll obtain a clear, slightly bluish tincture that is completely tasteless and will blend seamlessly into any drink!

Preparation time: 3 hours of active brewing time, 12 hours of resting time.

Quantity: 3 doses (200 Oth of liquid, total 600 Oth).

Effect: Administered in food or drink (even when heavily diluted). The victim must immediately make a Resistance check (+1) and needs 2 successes.

Failure: The victim is immediately overcome by intense nausea and must vomit uncontrollably for the next 1D6 minutes (no actions possible; considered Crouching).

Success: The victim still suffers from severe stomach cramps and is considered Dazed for 10 minutes.

Ingredients

- Greater celandine (Chelidonium majus) (2 Bunch), Components. In the Middle Ages, celandine was used for skin rashes, impaired vision or jaundice. The alkaloids of the plant have an antispasmodic effect. They help with digestive problems and stimulate the flow of bile.

• Marsh Lizard Bile (10 oth), Components. A thick, dark green, and foul-smelling liquid extracted fresh from the gallbladder of the massive swamp lizard. It is corrosive and contains a paralyzing toxin.

Since the swamp lizard lives hidden in the warm, humid swamp areas and on the borders of the O'grut lands, obtaining it is a laborious process.

• Amber (10 oth), Components. A smooth, oval-shaped amber with a warm golden hue. Its polished surface is slightly transparent and reflects light in a fascinating way. The hand-sized stone looks like a natural talisman due to its curved shape.

• Water (600 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Snakeoil

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 1

Preparation: First, melt the fat (any kind, as long as it's fatty!) in a small iron pot over moderate heat. Make sure it doesn't burn. Once the fat is liquid, stir in the mint decoction. This serves solely to mask the pungent smell of the fat and give the tincture a "medicinal" green color. A dash of beet schnapps ensures that the mixture burns in your throat. But what burns also helps. Finally, shake the emulsion vigorously until it looks cloudy and mysterious.

Preparation time: 30 minutes of active stirring, 1 hour to cool and settle.

Quantity: 1 application (liquid: 5 Oth / weight: 6 Oth including bottle).

Effect: Immediately heals 1 wound when applied. The patient feels briefly invigorated but suffers from the terrible aftertaste.

Ingredients

• Lard (10 oth), Components. It is fat. Of plant or animal origin. It is used for frying, refining food, or lubricating.

• Mint (1 Bunch), Components. Mint is widespread in Tirakan, but among those who study herbal medicine, it is considered an indispensable staple for the mind and body.

Occurrence & growth: Mint is usually found in damp, semi-shaded locations. It grows rampantly on the banks of streams, in enchanted forest clearings, or in the herb gardens of wise healers.

It is considered to be soothing for the stomach, has a cooling effect, and relieves sore throats. It is used in ointments, tinctures, and teas. It is also often used to soften the strong taste of game meat or to give cheap thin beer a fresh note.

• Water (10 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Brew of Uncontrolled Zeal (Goblin Variant)

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 1

Preparation: Roughly tear the dried leaves of the guild herb with your fingers and toss them into an uncleaned iron cauldron along with cheap beet schnapps. While clapping loudly and rhythmically, bring the mixture to a brief, vigorous boil until a pungent, nutty steam rises. Immediately remove from the heat and pour the warm liquid into a leather wineskin.

Preparation time: 15 minutes of active work (no resting time).

Quantity: 1 dose (10 Oth of liquid, weight 12 Oth).

Effect: This brew affects only members of the goblin races. If another creature drinks this potion, it feels slightly more energetic and is full of drive.

The goblin, however, falls into a work frenzy for 1d6×10 minutes. It gains +2 dice on all craft or physical skill checks (e.g., Mechanics, Mining, Climbing). However, all dexterity or logic checks (Logic, Deception, and Cheating) are made +3 more difficult during this time, as their mind jumps back and forth completely uncoordinated. They cannot control themselves and can hardly be stopped, except by strong arms or restraints.

Ingredients

- Gildenkraut (Vigilia mercatoris) (5 oth), Components. Gildherb is a tough, almost inconspicuous plant that only catches the trained eye of an expert. It is characterized by jagged, leathery leaves of a deep green color, whose thick veins have a slight reddish sheen. Its flowers are tiny, pale yellow, and close immediately once the sun passes its zenith. The herb is entirely mundane and possesses not the slightest spark of the arcane. Gildherb is found primarily in the rocky crevices of ancient trade routes, in the crumbling stone mortar of abandoned guild outposts, or on the steep, sun-baked slopes of the Toran Highlands. It needs hard rock and plenty of wind to prevent it from withering away.

- Beet schnapps (10 oth), Food / Provisions. Beet schnapps is a typical product of human farmland in the more temperate zones of Tirakan, especially in the western and central kingdoms of the humans.

It is made from fermented and distilled sugar beets. It is a cheap but high-proof spirit. In alchemy, it is used solely as a solvent and heat source to extract the aggressive or volatile properties of other substances (such as the bile of the flying lizard). Due to its purity and lack of complex ingredients, it is ideal as a simple base for mass carriers.

Beet schnapps is usually clear or slightly yellowish-cloudy and has a pungent smell of ethanol and a subtle, earthy sweetness. It burns when drunk and leaves a strong, unpleasant aftertaste.

Beet schnapps symbolizes the endurance and pragmatism of the people of Tirakan. While the elves have their “living water” and the dwarves their deep salt, humans rely on simple, readily available solutions.

It is a mass-produced item and an important commodity in the border regions and mercenary camps. A large part of the price of simple potions is accounted for by distillation and transport, not the ingredient itself.

For the high-ranking alchemists in the academies, beet schnapps is a sign of amateurism; they prefer more refined, less aggressive solvents. Village alchemists, on the other hand, use it because of its efficiency and availability.

Kinstarchel Secretion

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 1

Preparation: First, the bones of a freshly deceased (or at least not too weathered) Kinstarchel must be carefully cleaned and crushed to extract the deep black marrow. This is heated over a low flame in pure alcohol. It must not be allowed to boil! As soon as an oily, slightly shimmering layer forms on the surface, it must be skimmed off with a silver pipette. The secretion is then mixed directly with a ready-made potion or poison. The mixture is highly unstable; a violent shock (such as the impact of a vial) is enough to suddenly release the energy it contains.

Preparation time: 1,5 hours of active extraction, after which the mixture must rest for 1 hour in a cool, dark container before it is stable enough for transport.

Quantity: 1 application (approx. 10 Oth secretion), sufficient to prepare one vial (50-100 Oth) of another potion.

Effect: The secretion gives a potion the property “Explosive.” When the container is broken (Dexterity check required), the mixture explodes within a radius of 1D3 meters. Every creature in this area is treated as if it had directly ingested the potion or poison.

Note: The secretion itself does not cause any damage; it merely serves as a rapid carrier for the effect of the mixed potion.

Ingredients

- Alcohol (300 oth), Components. In the laboratories of alchemists and the huts of herbalists, alcohol is rarely stored for pleasure. It is considered a solvent capable of unleashing the essence of plants and minerals.

It is obtained from fermented grain or fruit through multiple distillations. It is a distillate with a pungent, sharp smell that is so strong that it tickles the nose when inhaled and evaporates immediately on the skin, leaving a cooling sensation.

- Kinstarchel Bone (2 stone), Components. Bones of a deceased Kinstarchel. An explosive secretion can be extracted from the marrow of the bones.

Vespera's Flawlessness

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: Add the silver shavings and the crushed moonlight lily blossoms to the pure spring water and bring the mixture to a boil over low heat. Stir with a silver spatula in a precise clockwise motion until a uniform, silvery-shimmering liquid forms. Now add the opium poppy. The elixir must then rest overnight in complete darkness. If the resting period is interrupted or the mixture is exposed to sunlight, the delicate active ingredients will break down and the essence will resinify, rendering it ineffective.

Preparation time: 4 hours of active, highly concentrated brewing time. 12 hours of resting time in absolute darkness.

Quantity: 2 doses (approx. 15 Oth of pure essence, total weight 15 Oth; 7.5 Oth per dose).

Effect: For the next 4 hours, the user receives a bonus of +3 dice on all checks for Charm, Attractiveness, and Persuasion. However, as soon as the character fails a check for Communication, Politics, Etiquette, or Rhetoric (i.e., does not roll a success) during the duration of the effect, the effect immediately reverses: The bonus to Charm and Persuasion expires instantly and turns into a -3 die penalty for the remainder of the duration, as the character appears extremely arrogant, conceited, and vain.

Ingredients

- silver shavings (10 oth), Components. In Tiraka, silver shavings are usually obtained as a by-product in forges or during the manufacture of jewelry.

For alchemical purposes, they are often purified in fire to stabilize the magical currents in potions as purified silver. Silver shavings serve as an energetic anchor. They prevent the unstable components from “tearing apart” the potion during the brewing process.

- Moonlight Lily (Lilium lunaris) (2 Piece), Components. The moonlight lily is a rare, night-blooming plant of wondrous beauty. Its flawless, narrow petals have a silvery-white hue and seem to emit a soft, cool glow even in the deepest darkness. While it remains tightly closed during the day and looks like an inconspicuous, withered bud, it only fully opens its flower after dusk. A fine, silvery pollen gathers around the central stigma, leaving glittering trails in the air at the slightest touch. The plant exudes a slightly sweet, cool fragrance reminiscent of fresh evening dew and delicate mint.

It thrives exclusively in shady, damp places. It is found primarily on the mossy shores of abandoned forest lakes, near the mist from mountain waterfalls, or in clearings deep within the thickets of the gorge mountains. The Moonlight Lily never grows in large clusters, but always as a rare solitary bloom sheltered by old tree roots.

- Opium Poppy (Papaver somniferum) (15 oth), Components. The opium poppy (Papaver somniferum) belongs to the poppy family and has a long history as one of our oldest medicinal plants. However, it is not only of interest for medicinal purposes: its seeds are valued in cooking as a foodstuff or pressed to produce high-quality edible oil. What is special about the opium poppy is that almost all parts of the plant contain alkaloids such as morphine. These active ingredients are concentrated mainly in the white milky sap that runs through the entire plant via a fine channel system

– this network is particularly dense in the wall of the capsule fruit. To obtain these substances, the unripe capsules are lightly scored so that the sap can escape. When this milky sap dries in the air, it produces the well-known narcotic opium. Incidentally, the name is derived from Greek and simply means “little sap.”

- Water (20 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Cheer-me-up

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 3

Preparation: Take a small cast-iron pot and bring the water to a boil. Coarsely crush the wild berries. As soon as the lemon balm is added, the characteristic sweet scent will emerge. Then slowly drizzle in the honey. Remove from the heat, then stir the liquid clockwise while stirring constantly until it has cooled almost completely.

Preparation time: 5 minutes boiling, 20 minutes active stirring time

Quantity: 3 applications of liquid: 90 Oth

Effect: Instantly dispels all worries and sadness. Immediately clears the mind of acute stress (and its effects on Dice-Mali).

Ingredients

- Lemon balm (Melissa officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. Lemon balm has always been used as a medicinal herb in medicine. It is effective against headaches, nervousness, insomnia and gastrointestinal complaints. In addition, an infusion with lemon balm brings relaxation.

- Wild berries (20 oth), Food / Provisions. Wild berries are the sweet-and-tart, deep red to bluish fruits that thrive in the dense undergrowth of Tirakan’s untamed forests. They are particularly common in shady forests or on the outskirts of the rugged wilderness. They grow in the moist humus beneath old ferns and in the shade of mighty oaks.

- Honey (20 oth), Food / Provisions. In cultivated regions, honey is produced by hard-working beekeepers, who often set up their hives near herb gardens.

This honey is clear, stable, and has a delicate taste of thyme or lavender. It usually costs about 2 guilders per 5 oth and is a reliable staple for any alchemist who wants to soften the bitterness of herbal extracts.

Those who are more adventurous search the forests for wild bee nests. This honey is darker, thicker, and often mixed with pollen or small pieces of wax. It has a strong, almost earthy flavor. It is said that wild honey from the primeval forests has a stronger regenerative power for the voice. Ideal for bards who need to lubricate their throats after a long night in the tavern.

- Water (60 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Farnauge’s gaze

Difficulty: medium

Preparation: Use clear, boiled spring water as a base and bring it to a gentle boil in a fine glass flask apparatus. First, add the finely ground, dried ribwort plantain, which binds the essence and forms the basis for absorption by the mucous membranes. Next, stir in the powdered amber; melted over gentle heat without solvents, the amber binds the light within the potion. In a separate mortar, crush fresh eyebright flowers with three drops of cold-pressed lemon balm oil into a deep-green paste-like essence. Carefully drip this paste into the boiling flask while stirring constantly in a clockwise direction. The liquid changes from a murky brown to a luminous emerald green. After cooling, the brew must be filtered through a double layer of velvet cloth to remove any hard resin and amber residues.

Preparation time: 2 hours of active brewing time; 4 hours of resting time in dim light.

Quantity: 2 doses (approx. 150 Oth of pure essence total; 75 Oth per dose).

Effect: The user gains sharp, crystal-clear vision for the next 4 hours. The character gains a bonus of +2 dice on all Perception, Search, and Orientation checks.

Additionally, penalties due to natural darkness or light fog are reduced by 1.

Furthermore, drinking the elixir immediately removes the “Shocked” condition, as mental clarity returns instantly.

Ingredients

- Water (50 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Ribwort plantain (Plantago lanceolata) (15 oth), Components. The pointed, narrow leaves of ribwort plantain are used as a syrup or also as a tea for colds. Ribwort can also be crushed and ground and applied to wounds or insect bites, where it has a cooling effect. The plant is also used for diarrhea.
- Amber (10 oth), Components. A smooth, oval-shaped amber with a warm golden hue. Its polished surface is slightly transparent and reflects light in a fascinating way. The hand-sized stone looks like a natural talisman due to its curved shape.
- Eyebright (1 Bunch), Components. Eyebright is a delicate but highly prized herb that grows primarily in sunny clearings and along dusty roadsides. In alchemy, the plant is primarily used fresh, as its delicate flowers quickly lose their potency when exposed to adverse conditions. The herb is considered an excellent potency enhancer for elixirs that promote sharpness, perception, and mental clarity, which is why it is often used to make eye ointments to combat glare or potions to sharpen the senses.
- Oil (Base) (5 oth), Components. In Tirakan, oil serves as the fundamental binder, solvent, and fuel for alchemical potions, ointments, and incendiary agents. Made from plants: Pressed from seeds, nuts, or bark. Thin in consistency and quickly absorbed; ideal as a base for healing elixirs, medicine, and fine mechanical lubricants. From animal sources: Extracted from boiled wild animals or fish. Thick, has a rancid odor, and is highly adhesive; perfect for long-lasting weapon poisons and incendiary weapons that are difficult to extinguish.

Falk's Tran Ointment

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: Take a small iron cauldron and heat the Schillerwal oil over moderate heat until it becomes completely liquid and clear.

While stirring constantly and rhythmically, add the dried and finely ground ribwort plantain to give the ointment its wound-healing and skin-tightening properties. As soon as the mixture takes on a slight bluish sheen, remove the cauldron from the coals and stir in the purified fat while slowly pouring the mixture into earthenware pots, where it will solidify into a thick paste.

Preparation time: 1 hour of active simmering and stirring, 3 hours of resting time to allow it to solidify.

Quantity: 2 applications, 70 Oth of pure ointment mixture.

Effect: Application takes 1 minute. Grants the user 1 point of wound healing (heals any wound) for the next 2 hours, as well as the protection units N (Normal Protection) and B (Bleeding Protection) for the next battle. Additionally, the user is immune to the effects of natural cold during this time.

Ingredients

- Schiller whale oil (50 oth), Components. The blubber, the fatty tissue under the skin, is the reason why these majestic animals are hunted. It is no ordinary fat, but a storehouse of magical energy. In its raw state, blubber is a tough, jelly-like mass that glows faintly blue. After refinement (melting and filtering), it becomes a clear, oily elixir that streaks like liquid mother-of-pearl. Unlike the rancid blubber of ordinary whales, the blubber of the Schiller whale smells fresh, salty, and slightly metallic (like the air before a thunderstorm). It is the best known means of binding volatile magic in potions (see Elixir of the Elven Watch). When burned in lamps, it gives off a light that never produces soot and can make the invisible visible.

Weapon oils made from this oil can injure spirits. Since hunting them is extremely dangerous (iridescent whales rarely defend themselves, but are often protected by sea elementals or mermaids) and the animals are rare, the price is enormous.

The Ancatir consider hunting iridescent whales a sacrilege. They only use oil that comes from whales that have washed ashore naturally ("gift of the tides"). Alchemists who use "bloody oil" are often expelled from the city in elven enclaves.

The Schiller whale is one of the most fascinating and peace-loving giants of the seas around Tirakan. It is not just an animal, but a living anomaly closely connected to the magical currents of the oceans.

The iridescent whale resembles an earthly blue whale in shape, but is slimmer and has longer, almost wing-like side fins. What makes it special is its skin: it is not gray, but has a pearlescent, semi-transparent surface. Depending on the incidence of light and the magical saturation of the environment, its skin refracts light into all colors of the spectrum. Hence the name. When a iridescent whale breaks the surface, it looks like a living rainbow rising out of the water. Scholars believe that these whales not only feed on krill, but also absorb the light of the moon and stars when they come to the surface at night.

Irdescent whales avoid shallow coastal waters. They travel through the deep oceans, far away from the routes of merchant ships.

They are most often sighted in the Southern Ocean, in the cold currents far from the heat of the jungle, or in the mystical waters around abandoned island archives.

They travel in small family groups (pods). It is said that their song can calm storms or drive madness in those who listen to it for too long.

We saw it at new moon. It glowed beneath the keel like a sunken city. When we threw the harpoons, the beast did not scream. It began to sing. A sound so deep that the wood of my ship splintered and two of my men simply jumped into the water, smiling. We killed it, yes. But the oil... it burns in the lamps of my cabin, and I swear I see the faces of those who jumped in the shadows.*

From the logbook of the whaler 'Haken-Ulf'

- Ribwort plantain (Plantago lanceolata) (1

Bunch), Components. The pointed, narrow leaves of ribwort plantain are used as a syrup or also as a tea for colds. Ribwort can also be crushed and ground and applied to wounds or insect bites, where it has a cooling effect. The plant is also used for diarrhea.

- Lard (20 oth), Components. It is fat. Of plant or animal origin. It is used for frying, refining food, or lubricating.

Fly Repellent

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 3

Preparation: Place the fresh chamomile blossoms from the House of Eternal Blossom, along with the lavender, into a container with the finest nut oil. Extract the mixture over low heat for two hours, taking care not to overcook the blossoms. Finally, finely ground resin is added to permanently bind the volatile aromatic compounds. After straining, a thick, golden-yellow oil is obtained.

Preparation time: 2 hours of active cooking time, 4 hours of cooling time.

Yield: 3 applications (approx. 150 Oth of aromatic oil, total weight 150 Oth).

Effect: One application is sufficient to keep a person or a small resting place completely free of biting insects for 6 hours. If hunters or beasts attempt to pick up the scent trail of the person or place treated with this oil, their tracking check is made +3 more difficult.

Ingredients

- Camomile (Matricaria recutita) (50 oth), Components. Chamomile is one of the oldest medicinal plants and was already used in the Middle Ages. The flowers have a healing and soothing effect. Externally, chamomile can be used for inflammation of the gums, skin or mucous membrane. Taken internally, it is effective for gastrointestinal disorders. Rinsing and inhalation are also widely used.

• Lavender (Lavandula officinalis) (2 Bunch), Components. In the eleventh century, lavender was settled by monks in central europe. In medicine, lavender was said to be effective for insect bites and burns. A lavender tea helps with colds and headaches.

• Pine Resin (10), Components. The protective blood of the tree. When the rough bark of a pine tree is damaged, whether by the bite of a wild animal or the clumsy axe of a lumberjack, this tough, golden-yellow liquid oozes out.

It flows slowly, almost sluggishly, filling the air with its distinctive, tart scent.

It is used to seal brittle corks, give torches a strong flame, or thicken simple wound ointments.

Once it dries in the air, it becomes rock hard and closes the tree's wound like a natural plug.

Once you get this stuff on your hands, the only way to get rid of the glue is with a lot of grease or a lot of patience.

• Oil (Base) (130), Components. In Tirakan, oil serves as the fundamental binder, solvent, and fuel for alchemical potions, ointments, and incendiary agents.

Made from plants: Pressed from seeds, nuts, or bark. Thin in consistency and quickly absorbed; ideal as a base for healing elixirs, medicine, and fine mechanical lubricants.

From animal sources: Extracted from boiled wild animals or fish. Thick, has a rancid odor, and is highly adhesive; perfect for long-lasting weapon poisons and incendiary weapons that are difficult to extinguish.

Potion of Protection

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 1

Preparation: First, bring the spring water to a boil in a copper kettle until the steam fogs up the windows. Add the dried mugwort leaves. As soon as the water turns a deep green color, stir in the pine resin. Be careful here: stir slowly and always in a clockwise direction, otherwise the resin will clump and you will end up with sticky slime instead of liquid protection! Finally, finely crush the elecampane root and add it to bind the vitality. Filter the mixture through a fine linen cloth into a vial.

Preparation time: 45 minutes of active brewing time, followed by 1 hours of resting time to cool and bind the essences.

Quantity: 1 application (approx. 8 Oth liquid, weight of vial including contents: 10 Oth).

Effect: When applied, the character receives a 1D3 boost to their armor. Each of these boosts can be used as Normal Protection (N). This means that a boost can be used to completely prevent a normal hit.

Ingredients

• Water (50 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

• Mugwort (Artemisia vulgaris) (1 Bunch), Components. A mugwort plant. The tops of the sprout are used to revive the digestion.

• Inula (Inula helenium) (1 Bunch), Components. This medicinal plant from the Middle Ages is no longer widely used in modern times. Its application improves digestion, and it is believed to have a preventive effect against colon cancer.

• Pine Resin (10 oth), Components. The protective blood of the tree. When the rough bark of a pine tree is damaged, whether by the bite of a wild animal or the clumsy axe of a lumberjack, this tough, golden-yellow liquid oozes out.

It flows slowly, almost sluggishly, filling the air with its distinctive, tart scent.

It is used to seal brittle corks, give torches a strong flame, or thicken simple wound ointments.

Once it dries in the air, it becomes rock hard and closes the tree's wound like a natural plug.

Jesbechea's Magical Garden

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 3

Preparation: Bring the pure spring water to a gentle simmer in a small brass kettle over moderate heat. First, add the finely ground amber, which slowly dissolves in the water as you stir constantly, giving the liquid a warm, golden hue. Next, add the crushed ribwort plantain and the dried lemon balm leaves to infuse the brew with the revitalizing life force of the plants. Crush the cowslip blossoms in a mortar and stir them in as the final step, as soon as the kettle is removed from the heat. Add the Tanium Spähe to the pot and let everything cool. The mixture must then be carefully filtered through a fine linen cloth to remove plant residues, as these would impair its shelf life.

Preparation time: 1 hour of active preparation and cooling, 2 hours of resting time.

Quantity: 3 applications (approx. 100 Oth of pure essence, total weight 100 Oth; approx. 33 Oth per application).

Effect: If a charge (approx. 33 Oth) is poured or sprayed onto the ground, a blooming, densely overgrown oasis of berry bushes, wildflowers, and edible roots sprouts up within 1D6 minutes over an area of up to 10 square meters—even on bare rock or dry desert sand. The plants immediately bear ripe fruits and berries, which provide provisions for up to 4 people for an entire day (and also heal $1W3$ wounds when consumed as fresh food). If the environment is extremely hostile (e.g., freezing cold or toxic soil), the plants will survive for at least 24 hours before slowly withering away.

Ingredients

- Taniumdust (5 oth), Components. Tanium is a dark, crystalline element of exceptional hardness. In its raw state, it is often found as deep black veins in ancient rock, mostly in areas with high concentrations of natural magic. It is so hard that conventional mortars break when used on it; only tools made of hardened diamond or magically reinforced grinding mechanisms can grind it into fine dust. Tanium acts as a perfect storage medium for arcane energy. But beware: it has no saturation point! If it becomes saturated with too much magic or unstable due to impure alchemy, it will discharge in a magical explosion.

- Cowslip (Primula veris) (15 oth), Components. Cowslip was known in the as a fertility and protective medicine. Today, the root tea helps against colds. Sage and fennel enhance the effect.
- Lemon balm (Melissa officinalis) (15 oth), Components. Lemon balm has always been used as a medicinal herb in medicine. It is effective against headaches, nervousness, insomnia and gastrointestinal complaints. In addition, an infusion with lemon balm brings relaxation.
- Ribwort plantain (Plantago lanceolata) (10 oth), Components. The pointed, narrow leaves of ribwort plantain are used as a syrup or also as a tea for colds. Ribwort can also be crushed and ground and applied to wounds or insect bites, where it has a cooling effect. The plant is also used for diarrhea.
- Amber (10 oth), Components. A smooth, oval-shaped amber with a warm golden hue. Its polished surface is slightly transparent and reflects light in a fascinating way. The hand-sized stone looks like a natural talisman due to its curved shape.
- Water (100 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Guild Elixir

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 3

Preparation: First, heat the pure spring water—do not bring it to a boil, just let it simmer! Finely chop the waxwort and add it to the hot water along with the honey.

Let the mixture steep until the honey has completely dissolved and the water takes on the golden color of the herbs. Then strain the mixture through a fine linen cloth into the vial.

Quantity: 3 doses. 200 Oth of liquid, total weight 250 Oth (including glass vial).

Effect: Taking one dose immediately alleviates existing exhaustion. Additionally, the user gains a +1 die bonus for the next 1W6 hours on all checks that require concentration or alertness.

Ingredients

- Honey (20 oth), Food / Provisions. In cultivated regions, honey is produced by hard-working beekeepers, who often set up their hives near herb gardens.

This honey is clear, stable, and has a delicate taste of thyme or lavender. It usually costs about 2 guilders per 5 oth and is a reliable staple for any alchemist who wants to soften the bitterness of herbal extracts.

Those who are more adventurous search the forests for wild bee nests. This honey is darker, thicker, and often mixed with pollen or small pieces of wax. It has a strong, almost earthy flavor. It is said that wild honey from the primeval forests has a stronger regenerative power for the voice. Ideal for bards who need to lubricate their throats after a long night in the tavern.

- Water (130 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Gildenkraut (Vigilia mercatoris) (1 Bunch), Components. Gildherb is a tough, almost inconspicuous plant that only catches the trained eye of an expert.

It is characterized by jagged, leathery leaves of a deep green color, whose thick veins have a slight reddish sheen. Its flowers are tiny, pale yellow, and close immediately once the sun passes its zenith. The herb is entirely mundane and possesses not the slightest spark of the arcane. Its value lies rather in its extremely high, natural concentration of alkaloids, particularly pure caffeine. When the tough leaves are crushed between the fingers, they give off a sharp, earthy scent reminiscent of heavily roasted nuts.

Location and Habitat: This plant is relatively rare, as it requires very specific, adverse conditions to produce its stimulating sap. It thrives exclusively in barren, mineral-rich soils and avoids the damp moss of deep forests.

Gildherb is found primarily in the rocky crevices of ancient trade routes, in the crumbling stone mortar of abandoned guild outposts, or on the steep, sun-baked slopes of the Toran Highlands. It needs hard rock and plenty of wind to prevent it from withering away.

- Wachkraut (Meridian Sharp-Leaf) (1 Bunch), Components. The Meridian Sharpleaf (often called “Wachkraut” for short) grows in the parched rock crevices of southern regions.

Its lance-shaped, red-veined leaves give off a sharp scent of resin and pepper. When eaten raw, it tastes sharply bitter and leaves a fiery tingling sensation on the tongue.

In alchemy, the plant is valued above all for its fiery, stimulating nature.

White Essence

Difficulty: difficult

Yield: 2

Preparation: Slowly bring the pure spring water to a boil in a deep silver or enameled kettle. First, add the sage leaves and dried chamomile flowers to create the spirit-warming base. Stir clockwise until the steam smells sweet. Now add the powdered angelica root, which binds the purifying properties. As soon as the liquid takes on a golden-yellow hue, the most difficult step follows: incorporating the finely ground silver, gold, and ruby dust. The cauldron must be removed from the direct flame; the dust (all three types) must be kept in suspension by constantly and evenly stirring with an ash wood spatula until the essence takes on its characteristic color. Filter the brew while hot through a triple layer of muslin into a glass phiole. If dust particles clump together or sink to the bottom, the cauldron was too hot—the potion then loses its magical protective effect and causes painful stomach cramps when consumed (Shocked 1 status).

Preparation time: 4 hours of active, highly concentrated brewing work. 8 hours of resting time in moonlight (any moon).

Yield: 2 doses (approx. 80 Oth of pure essence, total weight 80 Oth).

Effect: The user gains a Mental Shield for the next 4 hours. All Willpower checks and saving throws to resist mental influence, control, illusions, or fear effects receive a +2 bonus die. Against direct magical attacks and spell effects (such as energy bolts, curses, or necromantic shocks), the essence acts as a barrier: For each magical hit, the user may ignore 2 successes of the spell's effect or suffer 2 fewer wounds from the spell. The Shocked condition is immediately and completely removed upon ingestion, and the user becomes immune to the Shocked condition for the duration of the effect.

Ingredients

- Water (100 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Ruby Powder (Pulvis rubinus) (5 oth), Components. Finely ground fragments of the finest blood rubies, usually stored in polished wooden or horn containers. In the alchemical academies of Meridian and in the polished laboratories of the Duigoshz, this bright red powder is prized as a powerful arcane binder. The dust carries the unbridled heat of the earth and is used to weave defensive barriers against hostile magic, to bind thermal energy in fire oils, or to impart a fiery impulse to life essences.
- Goldnugget (5 oth), Components. A small piece of unprocessed gold, about 5 grams.
- silver shavings (5 oth), Components. In Tiraka, silver shavings are usually obtained as a by-product in forges or during the manufacture of jewelry. For alchemical purposes, they are often purified in fire to stabilize the magical currents in potions as purified silver. Silver shavings serve as an energetic anchor. They prevent the unstable components from "tearing apart" the potion during the brewing process.
- Angelica (Angelica archangelica) (15 oth), Components. The plant is used for indigestion, loss of appetite and digestive weakness, and is said to protect against the plague.
- Camomile (Matricaria recutita) (15 oth), Components. Chamomile is one of the oldest medicinal plants and was already used in the Middle Ages. The flowers have a healing and soothing effect. Externally, chamomile can be used for inflammation of the gums, skin or mucous membrane. Taken internally, it is effective for gastrointestinal disorders. Rinsing and inhalation are also widely used.

- Salvia (Salvia officinalis) (40 oth), Components. The leaves of salvia have an anti-inflammatory, antiperspirant and astringent effect. A tea or rinses are recommended for sore throats or even sweating.

Potion of Deep Calm

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: To brew this potion, first bring the water to a boil, then add the valerian and crushed moonthorn berries and boil for five minutes. Remove the mixture from the heat and let it steep for thirty minutes before bottling.

Preparation Time: 50 minutes, 6 hours resting time

Quantity: 2 Applications, 2x250 oth liquid, 2x250 oth weight

Effect: The essence causes the character to fall into a deep, ten-hour sleep within five minutes, during which time D6 wounds are regenerated. To awaken from this deep slumber, the character must make two successful rolls of Resistance in a row when disturbed or attempts are made to wake them. Only direct physical force (shaking/attack) or extremely loud noises will cause immediate awakening.

Ingredients

- Moonthorn Berry (5 Berries), Components. The moonthorn berry is a gift from the deepest night. It grows as a ground-covering shrub whose delicate tendrils and deep green leaves are protected by striking, short thorns. It is found exclusively in places that rarely see the light of the sun, usually deep in ancient forests or near damp grotto and cave entrances. It only reveals its true splendor under the light of the full moon, when its small, berry-like fruits glow in a mysterious, dull blue, almost as if they had swallowed the light of the celestial sphere itself.

The berry is notorious for its strong sedative effect. In small doses, it has a calming effect, but when concentrated in a potion, its essence can numb the mind and put the body into a state of deep, dreamless stillness. Gathering them is risky, as their thorns can cause temporary itching when touched.

- Valeriana (Valeriana officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. Valerian helps with insomnia and restlessness. Hops and lemon balm increase the effect of valerian and improve the taste.
- Water (500 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Grammis Elixir

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 3

Preparation: Bring the spring water to a boil in a small iron kettle. Add the wild berries, which have been thoroughly crushed in a mortar, until the liquid takes on a deep red, vibrant color. Now stir in the finely grated marshmallow root powder while stirring constantly. The starch in the root binds the essence and gives the brew its characteristic, slightly viscous consistency. Finally, melt in the beeswax to seal the magical vapors within the solution. Remove the pot from the heat and do not let it cool! Take a bulbous wooden spoon, stir slowly once to the left, then immediately once to the right. Now give the cauldron a firm tap. Done!

Preparation time: 2 hours of active preparation. 1 hour of resting time to cool.

Yield: 3 applications (approx. 30 Oth of pure liquid, total weight 30 Oth)

Effect: The user's muscles and joints become as elastic as rubber for 10 minutes. Jumping power literally explodes: the user can perform massive leaps from a standing position (up to 5 meters high and 8 meters wide). Additionally, speed increases by +3 for 1D6+2 rounds, and the "Run" action covers double the distance. The body cushions falls and landings like a rubber ball. Absolutely no fall damage is incurred.

Every landing after a jump or fall requires a successful Acrobatics check. If the check fails, the character cannot control their landing, bounces 1D6 meters further in a random direction, and crashes uncontrollably into the nearest obstacle (which can cause 1 minor wound from the impact and send them straight into the nearest mess).

Ingredients

- Marshmallow (Althaea officinalis) (5 oth), Components. The root of this medicinal plant is used. This is prepared cold and must infuse for about two hours. Only after infusion, the liquid is strained and then heated. The substances provide protection for the mucous membranes and have an anti-irritant effect. A helpful medicinal plant for gastrointestinal problems and a cough.
- Wild berries (23 oth), Food / Provisions. Wild berries are the sweet-and-tart, deep red to bluish fruits that thrive in the dense undergrowth of Tirakan's untamed forests. They are particularly common in shady forests or on the outskirts of the rugged wilderness. They grow in the moist humus beneath old ferns and in the shade of mighty oaks.
- Beeswax (Cera apis) (2 oth), Components. Extracted from the honeycombs of the Feldmärk honeybees or the aggressive giant marsh bees of O'Grut. The golden-yellow, firmly pressed wax exudes a warm, honey-sweet scent.

In Tirakan alchemy, it is rarely used as an active ingredient but serves primarily as an indispensable binding agent: it captures volatile, vaporizing, or flammable essences, holds them in the mixture, and seals vials and jars.

Magic potion (a full carafe)

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 3

Preparation: First, prepare the brew from elecampane, comfrey, and yarrow. When the steam begins to burn heavily and herbaceously in your nose, add the scales of a river dragonfly. Stir seven times against the sun's course while thinking of cold, deep water. The potion will not glow like a cheap fairground trick, but will take on a deep, earthy blue that shimmers at the right angle.

Preparation time: Active time: 30 minutes (scraping and cleaning the scales takes time) Resting time: 2 hours

Effect: Restores 2 Arcana per application.

Ingredients

- Inula (Inula helenium) (10 oth), Components. This medicinal plant from the Middle Ages is no longer widely used in modern times. Its application improves digestion, and it is believed to have a preventive effect against colon cancer.

- Comfrey (Symphytum officinale) (15 oth), Components. Comfrey stimulates blood circulation, bruises, hematomas and sprains disappear faster. Comfrey accelerates the regeneration of cells.

- Yarrows (Achillea millefolium) (5 oth), Components. Yarrow is used for its hemostatic effect. The flowers and the leaves contain tannins, bitter and mineral substances. The essential oil of the plant has anti-inflammatory and antispasmodic effect.

- Scale of a river nymph (1 Piece), Components. The river nymph is an extremely shy creature, which, according to rumors in alchemical circles, no mortal being in Tirakan has ever truly seen. The only tangible proof of its existence are its scales. They are occasionally found on muddy riverbanks, on rocks washed by spray, or in the darkness of underground lakes.

At dusk, these scales often appear simply greenish-brown, almost like ordinary horn or dried leaves. But as soon as the sun of Tirakan kisses the surface, they come to life and shimmer in all the colors of mother-of-pearl. They often reach the size of a proud palm and resemble the scales of a large fish in texture.

Fortunately, this magical ingredient is not a rare sight in the markets of the empire, especially on the trade routes between Toran and Yavon down to Meridian. Since they are found regularly, their value remains manageable, making them an honest ingredient. They are so common that it is hardly worthwhile for counterfeiters to produce inferior copies. But a word of warning from me: always look for the characteristic shimmer!

According to an old legend, on lonely nights, river nymphs sit enthroned on mossy rocks and comb their endless, water-colored hair with combs made of bone and old driftwood. Their faces are said to be marked by a peaceful melancholy as they hum quiet songs whose deeper meaning is known only to the flowing water.

- Water (500 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Viltmaars Hardness

Difficulty: difficult

Preparation: Grind the slate in a mortar together with the finely ground obsidian dust until a powder-fine, homogeneous mixture forms. The poppy seeds must first be gently roasted in a shallow ceramic bowl until their essential oils evaporate and only the dried, brittle husks remain. Add the poppy husks to the mortar and grind them while steadily pouring in triple-filtered vinegar. The acid breaks down the mineral bonds in the obsidian dust. The mixture must then be thickened over low heat in an iron cauldron until a dry, soot-black powder forms.

Preparation time: 4 hours of active, precision-demanding mortar and cooking work.

Quantity: 2 applications (50 Oth of pure powder total, approx. 25 Oth per application).

Effect: Applying this to a blade requires mixing it with a small amount of grease or oil and takes 2 actions in combat.

Grants a bladed weapon +1 damage potential, +1 penetration, and immunity to structural damage to the blade for 1 combat duration (or a maximum of 1 hour).

Ingredients

- Nightslate dust (10 oth), Components. Nightslate is no ordinary mineral, but the finely ground essence of ancient, jet-black rock veins.

This material is not mined, but must be extracted from the heart of mines that have not seen sunlight for eons, often accessible only through narrow tunnels in the coldest, most remote mountain ranges. It is found exclusively in deep, abandoned mines or underground crypts, where the rock has been compacted over millennia by the constant pressure and absolute cold of the earth's interior. The veins shimmer slightly when caught in the glow of a torch, a sign of their almost unnatural purity.

• Obsidian (Dust) (15 oth), Components. Obsidianstaub ist ein mundaner, mineralischer alchemistischer Grundstoff, der aus vulkanischem Glas gewonnen wird.

Er besitzt keinerlei innewohnende magische Kraft, ist jedoch aufgrund seiner extremen Härte, seiner scharfen Kanten im mikroskopischen Bereich und seiner enormen Hitzebeständigkeit ein unschätzbarer mechanischer Katalysator.

In der Alchemie wird er genutzt, um Unreinheiten und Bitterstoffe aus kochenden Suden zu binden und feine Pflanzenessenzen zu zwingen, sich abzusetzen.

Obsidian entsteht dort, wo feurige Magma rasch an der frischen Luft oder durch Wasser abkühlt. Man findet das vulkanische Glas in den tiefen, erstarrten Lavaseen der Unterwelt oder an den rauen, vulkanischen Bruchstellen des Hochlands. Er kann in schweren Mörsern zu einem mehlfeinen, grauen Staub zerstoßen werden.

Die unangefochtenen Hauptlieferanten für den besten Obsidianstaub in Tirakan sind die Zwerge der Xordai. Insbesondere die Kolonie Kor-Vamak, die direkt in einem erstarrten Lavasee errichtet wurde, hat sich auf den Abbau und die Verarbeitung dieses Materials spezialisiert.

Das dort ansässige Syndikat exportiert den Staub über ihre gut bewachten Handelskarawanen bis an die Oberfläche.

• Death Poppy (10 oth), Components. The poppy of the dead is cultivated exclusively on the asgoran island of Linya, the plant can be cultivated nowhere else. The plant is a poppy-like flower about twenty fingers high, which is partially colored black.

The poppy of the dead is used for all kinds of rituals and potions, which makes the plant a real export of Asgoran.

• Vinegar (base) (100 oth), Components. A sour liquid produced through double fermentation, which, due to its pungent acidity, serves as an excellent alchemical solvent and extractant.

It is used to dissolve mineral substances (such as lime or fine powders), emulsify fatty or oily components, and effectively preserve organic ingredients. It is available for very little money in every household, on farms, in taverns, and at markets throughout Tirakan.

Major healing potion

Difficulty: difficult

Yield: 3

Preparation: First, the pure spring water must be slowly brought to a boil over a fire made from dried oak wood. The dried sunblossom petals are finely ground in a mortar until they form a fine powder, which is then carefully stirred in. Next, the crushed bloodwort is added, which gives the potion its characteristic deep red color. The most critical moment is the addition of the tanium dust. The magical component must be added in a figure-eight motion while stirring constantly to bind the healing energies. Finally, the distillate is filtered through a fine silk cloth and poured into a vial.

Preparation time: Active time: 3 hours (constant stirring and temperature control).

Resting time: 12 hours in complete darkness.

Quantity: 3 applications (enough for 3 separate healings).

Liquid quantity: 15 oth per application (total 45 oth).

Weight: approx. 50 oth.

Effect: Healing: When applied, 1W3+3 wounds are healed.

Ingredients

• Common Bloodweed (10 oth), Components. Bloodweed is a ground-level plant that is particularly striking due to its fleshy, deep red leaves.

The fine veins on the leaf surface glow in a rich scarlet red, almost as if real blood were pulsing through them. When a leaf is crushed, a sticky, sweet-smelling sap emerges that stains the fingers for days. It is not a magical plant in the classic sense. It draws its power from the iron-rich soil and the pale light of the dense forests.

You will usually find bloodweed in shady, damp places. It prefers the foot of old oak trees or the immediate vicinity of rotting undergrowth in deep forests. An inattentive traveler often mistakes it for common purple sorrel, but a trained alchemist will notice the small, pearl-like dewdrops that always collect at the edges of the leaves.

It is best harvested in the early morning hours, before the sun breaks through the canopy. Only the outer leaves are cut to preserve the root.

- Taniumdust (1 oth), Components. Tanium is a dark, crystalline element of exceptional hardness. In its raw state, it is often found as deep black veins in ancient rock, mostly in areas with high concentrations of natural magic.

It is so hard that conventional mortars break when used on it; only tools made of hardened diamond or magically reinforced grinding mechanisms can grind it into fine dust.

Tanium acts as a perfect storage medium for arcane energy. But beware: it has no saturation point! If it becomes saturated with too much magic or unstable due to impure alchemy, it will discharge in a magical explosion.

- Sunblossom (5 oth), Components. The sunblossom is the epitome of constancy. With its strong, rough stem and proud, golden-yellow crown of petals, it tirelessly follows the course of the sun's chariot across the firmament of Tiraka.

Its core is filled with nutritious, oil-rich seeds, but for alchemists, it is the bright outer petals that are most valuable. They store the pure, gentle warmth of the day without carrying the dangerous heat of fire or the unpredictability of magic.

It can be found almost everywhere in the fertile plains of Tiraka, especially on the sun-drenched hills around Asgoran or in the gardens of farmers in the hinterland. It loves open spaces and deep, black soil. It is not a rare plant, no, but one that needs care. The wild varieties in the heaths are often smaller, but their essence is more concentrated than that of the cultivated specimens.

The leaves should be picked at midday, when the sun is at its highest and the flower is in full bloom. They should be dried flat on linen cloths in an airy place, never in direct oven heat!

- Water (45 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Gronar's Blessing

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 2

Preparation: Heat pure spring water in a copper kettle until it simmers gently. Crush the angelica roots with a mortar and pestle into a coarse paste and stir it into the water in a clockwise direction. Do not let the heat get too high, or the protective juices will boil away! Let the mixture rest until it takes on an earthy color. Then add the chamomile flowers, remove the pot from the heat, and cover it. After the resting period, strain the brew through a fine linen cloth to remove the bitter compounds.

Preparation time: 1 hour of active brewing and stirring. 4 hours of resting time over low heat to allow the chamomile to infuse.

Quantity: 2 doses (approx. 100 Oth of pure liquid, total weight 100 Oth; each dose weighs 50 Oth)

Effect: When consumed, the liquid cures minor to moderate illnesses and purifies the blood. For 24 hours, the character receives a bonus of +2 dice on any resistance checks related to pathogens, infected wounds, or fever. A blessing for every adventurer!

Ingredients

- Angelica (Angelica archangelica) (10 oth), Components. The plant is used for indigestion, loss of appetite and digestive weakness, and is said to protect against the plague.

- Camomile (Matricaria recutita) (5 oth), Components. Chamomile is one of the oldest medicinal plants and was already used in the Middle Ages.

The flowers have a healing and soothing effect. Externally, chamomile can be used for inflammation of the gums, skin or mucous membrane. Taken internally, it is effective for gastrointestinal disorders. Rinsing and inhalation are also widely used.

- Water (100 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Mist of Thenon

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 1

Preparation: Take a clean glass vial and drip the secretion from the Kinstarchel bone extract onto the bottom to ensure an explosive release upon impact.

Meanwhile, boil the dried ribwort plantain leaves in pure spring water until the liquid takes on a creamy, slimy consistency. While stirring constantly in a counterclockwise direction, add the ground amber. Add the resin; it will bind the vapors. Immediately seal the vial with liquid wax while the vapor is still hot.

Preparation time: 3 hours of active alchemy, followed by 1 hour of cooling in the dark.

Quantity: 1 use (vial holds approx. 50 Oth of liquid)

Effect: When broken, instantly creates a stationary cloud of mist within a 3-meter radius that lasts for 5 rounds. All creatures within it are afflicted with the Blind condition, and all vision is severely restricted (attacks and perception checks from outside to inside and vice versa are considered difficult checks with a +2 DC).

Ingredients

- Kinstarchel Secretion (10 oth), Components. A highly reactive liquid produced from the bones of the adorable Kinstarchel.
- Ribwort plantain (Plantago lanceolata) (1 Bunch), Components. The pointed, narrow leaves of ribwort plantain are used as a syrup or also as a tea for colds. Ribwort can also be crushed and ground and applied to wounds or insect bites, where it has a cooling effect. The plant is also used for diarrhea.

- Amber (20 oth), Components. A smooth, oval-shaped amber with a warm golden hue. Its polished surface is slightly transparent and reflects light in a fascinating way. The hand-sized stone looks like a natural talisman due to its curved shape.

- Pine Resin (10 oth), Components. The protective blood of the tree. When the rough bark of a pine tree is damaged, whether by the bite of a wild animal or the clumsy axe of a lumberjack, this tough, golden-yellow liquid oozes out.

It flows slowly, almost sluggishly, filling the air with its distinctive, tart scent.

It is used to seal brittle corks, give torches a strong flame, or thicken simple wound ointments.

Once it dries in the air, it becomes rock hard and closes the tree's wound like a natural plug.

Potion of Might

Difficulty: difficult

Yield: 1

Preparation: First, the bile of a mountain wyvern must be slowly heated in a crucible made of hardened steel until the corrosive vapors have evaporated and a golden-yellow base substance remains. The grated claw pieces of the rock troll are added to this base, which bind the raw physical power. While stirring constantly, the dried Tirakan moss must now be added, which serves as a catalytic conductor. As soon as the mixture begins to pulsate slightly, the silver shavings are sprinkled in. The potion must now simmer over a fire for exactly one hour until it becomes thick and takes on a metallic sheen. After resting for one hour, it is ready for use.

Quantity: 1 application, 200 Oth liquid, 250 Oth weight

Effect: After ingestion, the character feels their muscles harden and their senses sharpen. The number of dice rolled by the player is doubled. The potion lasts for 2D6 minutes. The user also ignores all penalties due to exhaustion or wounds and receives temporary armor protection of 2 against normal damage (2xR) physical damage (this is added to existing armor).

As soon as the effect wears off, the magic takes its toll: the character immediately suffers 2D6+6 rounds of exhaustion and is “dazed” during this period (+2 penalty on all minimum rolls).

Ingredients

- Mountain Wyvern Bile (200 oth), Components. Bile is a highly viscous, bright golden yellow to poison green liquid stored in the gallbladder of mountain wyverns.

It has a pungent, sulfurous odor with a hint of burnt copper. Even inhaling the pure vapors can burn the nasal mucous membranes.

In Tiraka, it is believed that bile contains the “essence of unquenched hunger.” In alchemy, it is used as a catalyst to forcibly fuse other ingredients that would normally repel each other.

Extracting bile is a difficult undertaking for an alchemist, as it requires the utmost precision under adverse conditions.

The bile must be extracted within 1D6 hours after the creature’s death. After that, the gallbladder begins to decompose and the liquid loses its alchemical potency.

Surgical instruments made of hardened steel or special ceramic knives are required. Simple iron would be corroded by the acid within seconds.

The procedure is as follows: The carcass must be secured on its back. A deep cut below the sternum exposes the liver. The gallbladder is a bulging, pulsating sac. It must be clamped at the top before being carefully cut out. A successful Dexterity (or Medicine) roll against DC 8 is required.

If the sac bursts, the harvester immediately suffers 1D6 damage from chemical burns, and the ingredient is irretrievably lost.

Wyvern bile cannot be stored in normal glass vials, as it will eventually “blind” the glass and cause it to become brittle. Experienced adventurers use lead-lined clay jugs or pure quartz vessels to safely transport the substance home.

- Rock Moss (2 Bunch), Components. Tirakan moss, often called “shadow flora” or “shadow velvet” by mountain peoples, usually grows near mountain wyvern colonies. It can be found in rock crevices and small caves. It is said that it may purify air in narrow caves.

The moss grows in dense, sponge-like cushions. Its color is a deep, almost unnatural dark purple that glows in a soft, pulsating indigo when touched or exposed to air currents (bioluminescence). When touched, it leaves a slightly sticky, metallic-smelling film on the skin.

Its main function in potions is grounding. It prevents energies or raw forces from dissipating.

When chewed raw, it has a strong pain-relieving and fever-reducing effect, but an overdose can lead to a dangerous slowing of the heartbeat.

The elders claim that the moss absorbs the whispers of the mountains. If you press your ear against a moss cushion long enough, you can hear the voices of your ancestors or the mountain growling with hunger.

- Rock troll claws (Lithocrinus tirakanis) (40 oth), Components. The claws of a rock troll are not claws in the biological sense, but mineralized growths made of hardened keratin and concentrated ores. They reflect the unbridled physical regenerative power of the trolls, whose skin has entered into a symbiosis with the rock of the Shadow Rocks.

A single, intact claw is about the size of a short sword. Their color ranges from deep gray to obsidian black, often with layers reminiscent of slate.

They are so hard that they spark when they hit metal. Ordinary blades usually dull immediately when used on them.

In alchemy, the entire claw is almost never used, but rather a processed form. The claw must be laboriously worked with diamond files or hardened steel chisels.

Finely grated shavings or dust are used as ingredients. This dust is heavy, ash-colored, and glitters when exposed to light. The dust must be extremely fine. Chips that are too coarse will not dissolve in the potion and can seriously injure the user’s esoph-agus when consumed. Alternatively, it is advisable to strain the liquid through a sieve after brewing.

- silver shavings (10 oth), Components. In Tiraka, silver shavings are usually obtained as a by-product in forges or during the manufacture of jewelry. For alchemical purposes, they are often purified in fire to stabilize the magical currents in potions as purified silver. Silver shavings serve as an energetic anchor. They prevent the unstable components from “tearing apart” the potion during the brewing process.

Simple wound tincture

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 1

Preparation: First, carefully clean the elecampane and comfrey. Finely slice the elecampane roots and crush them into a paste in a mortar, while the comfrey leaves should only be lightly rubbed between your fingers to release their juices. Place both in a ceramic bottle and fill it with clear spring water (or, if you want it to be particularly pure, with distilled spirit). Simmer the mixture over a gentle heat until the liquid takes on a deep green, almost oily consistency. Be careful! If you stoke the fire too hot, you will burn the healing spirits of the plants!

Preparation time: Active time: 30 minutes (chopping and simmering). Resting time: 2 hours in a cool, dark place so that the active ingredients can be transferred to the tincture.

Quantity: 1 application, approx. 10 Oth liquid in a bottle. Total weight: 10 Oth (including container).

Effect: When used successfully with First Aid and a bandage, the bandage heals an additional 1W3 wounds.

Ingredients

- Water (100 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Inula (Inula helenium) (10 oth), Components. This medicinal plant from the Middle Ages is no longer widely used in modern times. Its application improves digestion, and it is believed to have a preventive effect against colon cancer.

- Comfrey (Symphytum officinale) (10 oth), Components. Comfrey stimulates blood circulation, bruises, hematomas and sprains disappear faster. Comfrey accelerates the regeneration of cells.

Oak Bark Tincture

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: Crush the dried oak bark in a stone mortar until it forms a fine, brown powder. Pour the purest spring water into the cauldron and bring it to a gentle simmer. Add the spruce resin and stir slowly clockwise with an oak spatula until the resin has completely dissolved and the brew takes on a golden-yellow, sticky consistency. Only now should you add the bark flour along with the chopped yarrow. The brew must now simmer over low heat for exactly two hours, while the essential oils of the yarrow combine with the sticky resin. Be careful not to let the mixture burn—burnt resin makes the potion undrinkable and ineffective! Strain the thick liquid through a coarse linen cloth to remove any wood splinters, and pour it into clay or glass bottles while it's still warm.

Preparation time: 2 hours of active brewing time; 4 hours of cooling time in a shaded place.

Yield: 2 doses (approx. 200 Oth of pure tincture, total weight 200 Oth / 0.20 Stein).

Effect: Grants the user the protection pool N N K for 1W6+2 combat rounds. During this time, the user suffers from the stiffness of bark-like skin (+1 MW on Acrobatics).

Ingredients

- Oak bark (60 oth), Components. Oak bark is a time-tested ingredient that is particularly valued for its firming and protective properties. The bitter-smelling bark of old oak trees is easy to store and unfolds its effects in a crucible, especially when heated to high temperatures.

- Pine Resin (40 oth), Components. The protective blood of the tree. When the rough bark of a pine tree is damaged, whether by the bite of a wild animal or the clumsy axe of a lumberjack, this tough, golden-yellow liquid oozes out.

It flows slowly, almost sluggishly, filling the air with its distinctive, tart scent.

It is used to seal brittle corks, give torches a strong flame, or thicken simple wound ointments.

Once it dries in the air, it becomes rock hard and closes the tree's wound like a natural plug.

Once you get this stuff on your hands, the only way to get rid of the glue is with a lot of grease or a lot of patience.

- Yarrows (Achillea millefolium) (1 Bunch), Components. Yarrow is used for its hemostatic effect. The flowers and the leaves contain tannins, bitter and mineral substances. The essential oil of the plant has anti-inflammatory and antispasmodic effect.

- Water (100 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Meridian Clarity

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: First, the silver thistle must be boiled in pure water and strained through the finest charcoal powder to activate the active ingredients and retain only those that are needed.

Next, the moonberries are carefully stirred in. Caution: The moonberries must not be crushed; they should simply steep for 12 hours.

Preparation time: 4 hours of active distillation and filtration using the apparatus, after which the brew must rest for exactly 12 hours.

Quantity: 2 applications. 400 Oth of liquid, total weight 600 Oth (including thick-walled glass vial).

Effect: Neutralizes toxins in the bloodstream and sharpens the senses to protect the mind from hallucinations. Consuming one dose instantly neutralizes the "Poisoned" status. Additionally, the user gains a bonus of +1 die to any resistance checks against mind-altering effects or hallucinations for the next 1W6 hours.

Ingredients

- Charcoal (100 oth), Components. A substance of pure, deep black color, obtained through the controlled carbonization of hard wood in the absence of air. Charcoal.

In alchemy, it serves as a universal filtering medium. Whether incorporated into recipes or ground into the finest powder, it absorbs impurities, cloudiness, and unwanted bitter substances from boiling liquids like a sponge.

It is widely available throughout Tirakan from charcoal burners, blacksmiths, and ordinary shopkeepers in large quantities for just a few deut or guilders at the city markets.

- Silver Thistle (Carlina acaulis) (2 Bunch), Components. A hardy plant that grows close to the ground, with a silvery, shiny, spiky flower head that did not wither even in freezing temperatures. In alchemy, it is considered a purifying catalyst whose essence binds toxins in the blood, inhibits inflammation, and strengthens the body's natural defenses.

It thrives primarily in the barren, sun-drenched mountain meadows and rocky slopes of the Toran Highlands. However, it can also be found in more temperate regions throughout Tirakan.

- Moonthorn Berry (50 oth), Components. The moonthorn berry is a gift from the deepest night. It grows as a ground-covering shrub whose delicate tendrils and deep green leaves are protected by striking, short thorns.

It is found exclusively in places that rarely see the light of the sun, usually deep in ancient forests or near damp grotto and cave entrances. It only reveals its true splendor under the light of the full moon, when its small, berry-like fruits glow in a mysterious, dull blue, almost as if they had swallowed the light of the celestial sphere itself.

The berry is notorious for its strong sedative effect. In small doses, it has a calming effect, but when concentrated in a potion, its essence can numb the mind and put the body into a state of deep, dreamless stillness. Gathering them is risky, as their thorns can cause temporary itching when touched.

- Water (350 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Sud of shallow empowerment ♦

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 2

Preparation: The schnapps is mixed with the frost lichen until it takes on a bluish color. The blood of the flying lizard is only stirred in after the discoloration. The mixture must steep for at least 5 hours in a cool place (cellar, cave). Then pour it into the vial of flying lizard blood for the best effect!

Preparation time: 2 hours

Quantity: 2 applications, 2x200 Oth liquid, 2x200 Oth weight

Effect: The player adds a D6 to their dice pool for a duration of 1D6 minutes. This applies to all attribute, skill, combat, magic, knowledge rolls, etc. After the effect has expired, the player is easily irritable and prone to arguments.

Ingredients

- Vial of flying lizard blood (2 Vial), Components. Mostly extracted from the veins of flying lizards domesticated by the O'Gru. It is no different from the blood of specimens living in the wild.

One vial contains 50 units of flying lizard blood.

- Frost Lichen (100 oth), Components. A tough plant that thrives exclusively in the northern steppes and the coldest regions of the Tirakan Mountains.

It prefers to grow at the tree line and on barren, windswept rocky outcrops, where temperatures rarely rise above freezing even in summer. It is well known to dwarf prospectors from the north.

The lichen itself has no magic of its own, but it has an extreme cold-binding property. It absorbs the arctic cold of its surroundings and stores it for up to 3 days if the ambient temperature does not rise above 30°C. Within this period, the temperature of the plant remains that of its last location.

In alchemy, it therefore serves as a catalyst for stabilization, putting strong, volatile substances (such as blood or high-proof alcohol) into a state of “cold shock.”

Frost lichen appears as an inconspicuous, dense network in deep blue or white-gray. It lies like a crusted carpet on the stones and, at first glance, is hardly distinguishable from ice-covered rocks or frozen moss. It has no leaves and no flowers.

It is often traded in the southern kingdoms of men, as it does not grow there but is essential for simple healing and strengthening potions.

- Beet schnapps (400 oth), Food / Provisions. Beet schnapps is a typical product of human farmland in the more temperate zones of Tirakan, especially in the western and central kingdoms of the humans.

It is made from fermented and distilled sugar beets. It is a cheap but high-proof spirit. In alchemy, it is used solely as a solvent and heat source to extract the aggressive or volatile properties of other substances (such as the bile of the flying lizard). Due to its purity and lack of complex ingredients, it is ideal as a simple base for mass carriers.

Beet schnapps is usually clear or slightly yellowish-cloudy and has a pungent smell of ethanol and a subtle, earthy sweetness. It burns when drunk and leaves a strong, unpleasant aftertaste.

Beet schnapps symbolizes the endurance and pragmatism of the people of Tirakan. While the elves have their “living water” and the dwarves their deep salt, humans rely on simple, readily available solutions.

It is a mass-produced item and an important commodity in the border regions and mercenary camps. A large part of the price of simple potions is accounted for by distillation and transport, not the ingredient itself.

For the high-ranking alchemists in the academies, beet schnapps is a sign of amateurism; they prefer more refined, less aggressive solvents. Village alchemists, on the other hand, use it because of its efficiency and availability.

Beturia's eternal rest

Difficulty: medium
Yield: 1

Preparation: The brewing process begins by boiling water, valerian, and moonthorn berries. The mixture must first be boiled down to half its original volume. After removing it from the heat, the Nightslate dust is slowly stirred in until the potion turns a deep black color. The brew must then be left to mature in a sealed container for a full day (24 hours).

Preparation Time: 1 Stunde, 24 hours until ready

Quantity: 1 Application, 300 oth liquid, 320 oth weight

Effect: After ingestion, the character immediately falls into a 24-hour state of suspended animation, during which their bodily functions are drastically reduced and they heal 2d6 wounds. To awaken from this near-comatose sleep, the character needs four successful rolls on Resistance in a row. Since shaking, loud noises, or attacks do not wake them, they can only be identified as alive by two successful rolls on Investigate; otherwise, they are considered dead.

Ingredients

- Valeriana (Valeriana officinalis) (4 Bunch), Components. Valerian helps with insomnia and restlessness. Hops and lemon balm increase the effect of valerian and improve the taste.

- Nightslate dust (120 oth), Components. Nightslate is no ordinary mineral, but the finely ground essence of ancient, jet-black rock veins.

This material is not mined, but must be extracted from the heart of mines that have not seen sunlight for eons, often accessible only through narrow tunnels in the coldest, most remote mountain ranges. It is found exclusively in deep, abandoned mines or underground crypts, where the rock has been compacted over millennia by the constant pressure and absolute cold of the earth's interior. The veins shimmer slightly when caught in the glow of a torch, a sign of their almost unnatural purity.

- Water (500 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Whispers of the Forest

Difficulty: simple
Yield: 3

Preparation: Grab your trusty mortar and pestle. First, add the fresh ribwort plantain leaves and the gildenkraut, and crush them thoroughly until a juicy, green paste forms.

Ribwort plantain opens the skin's fine pores. Now add the chamomile blossoms, which calm the mind and clear the way for the plants' whispers. Grind everything carefully while gradually adding pure water drop by drop to release the plant juices. Finally, stir the melted animal fat (or plant wax) into the mixture in the small cauldron, stirring constantly and gently, until a smooth, creamy ointment forms. Transfer the ointment to a small crucible or pot to cool.

Preparation time: 1 hour (crushing, mixing the ointment base), resting time: 2 hours

Quantity: 3 doses (enough ointment for one application each), liquid approx. 50 Oth, total weight 0.05 Stein

Effect: As soon as a dose of the ointment is applied to the temples, the user feels a slight tingling sensation and a gentle, woody aroma in the nose. For 1 hour, the user is able to understand and perceive the subtle stirrings, moods, and simplified thoughts of the plant world (especially trees and shrubs). It allows for simple communication with the flora (at the game master's discretion for Perception or Natural History checks regarding the surroundings).

- Ribwort plantain (Plantago lanceolata) (1 Bunch), Components. The pointed, narrow leaves of ribwort plantain are used as a syrup or also as a tea for colds. Ribwort can also be crushed and ground and applied to wounds or insect bites, where it has a cooling effect. The plant is also used for diarrhea.

- Camomile (Matricaria recutita) (1 Bunch), Components. Chamomile is one of the oldest medicinal plants and was already used in the Middle Ages. The flowers have a healing and soothing effect. Externally, chamomile can be used for inflammation of the gums, skin or mucous membrane. Taken internally, it is effective for gastrointestinal disorders. Rinsing and inhalation are also widely used.
- Water (10 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.
- Lard (30 oth), Components. It is fat. Of plant or animal origin. It is used for frying, refining food, or lubricating.

Gorben's Cough

Difficulty: medium

Yield: 2

Preparation: A distillation flask and a fine mortar are essential. First, gently crush the fresh mugwort in the mortar until the plant's essential oils are released. At the same time, add the two ounces of fine gold dust granules along with the alcohol to the still and boil over constant heat. The liquid gold combines with the alcohol to form a watery (almost alcohol-free) liquid.

Now the herbal mixture is added while the temperature is slowly lowered. Finally, the Kinstarchel secretion is carefully dripped in drop by drop. This requires the utmost precision, as the secretion instantly increases the reactivity. The finished brew evaporates slightly and, as it cools, forms a golden, shimmering liquid that must be sealed immediately.

Preparation Time: 3 hours of active brewing time | 12 hours of resting and aging time

Yield: 2 uses (total of 400 Oth of liquid substance)

Effect: If the brew is thrown, the vessel shatters upon impact and releases a barely visible cloud within a 2-meter radius.

All living creatures within the area of effect immediately suffer the Shocked condition and must pass a Resistance check (DC 8+). If the check fails, they fall into a violent coughing fit for 1D3 rounds, are considered incapacitated, and lose all cover.

Ingredients

- Mugwort (Artemisia vulgaris) (1 Bunch), Components. A mugwort plant. The tops of the sprout are used to revive the digestion.
- Herbal blend (50 oth), Components. A delicious blend of herbs to flavour food.
- Kinstarchel Secret (50 oth), Potions and Poisons. This secretion is extracted from the bones of dead Kinstarchel. When mixed with a potion, it is capable of causing the potion to explode when thrown. A vial or carafe of the potion thrown has the effect of ingesting the potion within a radius of 1D3 metres. The same applies to poisons.
- Goldnugget (150 oth), Components. A small piece of unprocessed gold, about 5 grams.
- Alcohol (400 oth), Components. In the laboratories of alchemists and the huts of herbalists, alcohol is rarely stored for pleasure. It is considered a solvent capable of unleashing the essence of plants and minerals.

It is obtained from fermented grain or fruit through multiple distillations. It is a distillate with a pungent, sharp smell that is so strong that it tickles the nose when inhaled and evaporates immediately on the skin, leaving a cooling sensation.

Elixir of sweet slumber

Difficulty: simple

Yield: 2

Preparation: First, heat the water in a suitable container and bring it to a boil. Once it is boiling vigorously, add the valerian and allow the mixture to boil for five minutes so that the active ingredients can be released. Then remove the container from the heat and allow the mixture to steep for another thirty minutes. Finally, strain the finished liquid and pour it into a clean container. Add honey for taste.

Quantity: 2 applications, 2x250 Oth liquid, 2x250

Oth weight

Effect: After consumption, the character falls into a deep sleep within ten minutes, which lasts at least five hours. If the character is disturbed during this time or if someone tries to wake them up, they must make a resistance roll. If successful, the character wakes up immediately. If the roll fails, the character remains asleep, and the roll can be repeated the next time they are disturbed or someone tries to wake them again. However, it is important to note that if the character is shaken, attacked, or exposed to very loud noises, they will wake up immediately.

Ingredients

- Valeriana (Valeriana officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. Valerian helps with insomnia and restlessness. Hops and lemon balm increase the effect of valerian and improve the taste.
- Water (500 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Poisons and Drugs

Venom of a flying snake

Difficulty: simple

Preparation: First, carefully heat the raw venom of the flying snake in a small bowl. But beware of boiling heat! When it begins to steam, the volatile paralyzing substances evaporate. Add the crushed celandine to stimulate blood circulation at the bite site on the victim, allowing the poison to enter the body's fluids more quickly. Stir in the dried sage until the liquid takes on a cloudy, amber color. Finally, press the mixture through a fine linen cloth or a filter made of charcoal dust to remove the coarse residues. What remains is a clear, slightly viscous liquid.

Preparation time: 30 minutes of active work, followed by about 1 hour of resting time to cool and settle.

Quantity: 1 application (approx. 5 Oth of liquid), total weight approx. 5 Oth.

Effect: The victim feels an immediate coldness at the wound, which spreads like lead into the limbs. It is not fatal, but leads to severe dizziness and slowed reflexes. The victim must pass a resistance check against MW 8. If they fail, their movement range is reduced by 2 points for 1D6 combat rounds. The victim also suffers 1D3 points of exhaustion.

Ingredients

- Salvia (Salvia officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. The leaves of salvia have an anti-inflammatory, antiperspirant and astringent effect. A tea or rinses are recommended for sore throats or even sweating.
- Greater celandine (Chelidonium majus) (1 Bunch), Components. In the Middle Ages, celandine was used for skin rashes, impaired vision or jaundice. The alkaloids of the plant have an antispasmodic effect. They help with digestive problems and stimulate the flow of bile.
- Flying Snake Venom Vial (1 Vial), Potions and Poisons. A vial filled with the venom of a flying snake.

Linya's Deep Sleep

Difficulty: difficult

Yield: 1

Preparation: Grind the dried black poppy seeds together with the valerian roots in a stone mortar into a uniform, black powder. Dissolve this in 150 Oth of pure spring water and let it steep undisturbed for two hours.

Strain the plant residue through a fine linen cloth into the small iron kettle. Add the lemon balm leaves to stabilize the organic ether.

Heat the kettle (preferably on the brewer's table) while stirring constantly until the vapors take on a bluish sheen. Collect the condensate in a vial.

Preparation time: 2 hours of active resting time (steeping), 3 hours of active boiling and distillation.

Quantity: 1 dose (approx. 50 Oth of liquid)

Effect: If the essence is ingested or injected into the bloodstream via a weapon with a poison channel, the victim instantly falls into a state of unconsciousness.

The victim must roll for Willpower at the start of each of its combat rounds. Only when the number of successes (rolls of 5+; exploding 6s allowed) reaches or exceeds exactly 5 does the creature awaken. External stimuli such as shaking or noise have no effect; only actual damage suffered grants an immediate bonus of +2 dice to the saving throw.

Ingredients

- Death Poppy (2 Bunch), Components. The poppy of the dead is cultivated exclusively on the asgoran island of Linya, the plant can be cultivated nowhere else. The plant is a poppy-like flower about twenty fingers high, which is partially colored black.

The poppy of the dead is used for all kinds of rituals and potions, which makes the plant a real export of Asgoran.

- Valeriana (Valeriana officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. Valerian helps with insomnia and restlessness. Hops and lemon balm increase the effect of valerian and improve the taste.

- Lemon balm (Melissa officinalis) (1 Bunch), Components. Lemon balm has always been used as a medicinal herb in medicine. It is effective against headaches, nervousness, insomnia and gastrointestinal complaints. In addition, an infusion with lemon balm brings relaxation.

- Water (150 oth), Components. Cold, clear water.

Bite 5 Bleeding 1

Scorpion

Hidden beneath sand, stone, or shadow, the scorpion waits with unnerving stillness. It reacts in an instant when disturbed, its stinger striking with precise, practiced speed. The venom does not need brute force—it weakens, paralyzes, or ends the fight outright. It does not chase; it punishes intrusion. In harsher interpretations, it feels ancient and indifferent, perfectly suited to a world where hesitation means death.

Hadidim-Lizard

Hadidim lizards are large flying lizards with a wingspan of up to 2 steps. They feed mainly on fish, but are not averse to the odd seabird. Hadidim lizards are only found on the narrow coastal strip and at the lakes and oases of Al Bah JiRa. They rarely pose a threat to Humans, unless someone is foolish enough to try to steal the eggs of a hadidim mother from her nest.

Drifting through the water with quiet grace, the jellyfish appears almost harmless—until contact is made. Its translucent body conceals trailing tentacles armed with potent venom, reacting instantly to touch. It does not pursue or hunt in the traditional sense; instead, it turns its surroundings into a passive hazard, where movement itself becomes dangerous. In numbers, they form near-invisible barriers that are difficult to detect until it is too late. In darker interpretations, they feel like living traps of the sea—silent, indifferent, and unavoidable.

Pecking [6] Bleeding 1

Sand viper

These nasty snakes inhabit the great desert of Al Bah JiRa. Mostly they lie hidden in the sand, where they lie in waiting for passing animals or even people. If an unfortunate person should come within reach of a lurking sand viper, he will see a scaly, horned abomination with a length of 2 steps and a thickness of 1 foot spring up seemingly out of nowhere and bite at him. The highly effective poison will kill him within four hours if he does not manage to get an antidote by then.

Kinstarchel are the name given to wild dwarf cattle in Hadewald. The largest specimens of this species rarely reach a shoulder height of more than 2 ells. The small, sturdy animals are silver-grey to pitch-black in colour and roam in herds through woods remote from people. Kinstarchels are always popular hunting targets. Because they are becoming increasingly rare, efforts have recently been made to domesticate kinstarchel. However, this has so far proved difficult, as the captured specimens often die of a strange disease after a few months.

Swamp lizard

A massive and resilient ambush hunter native to dense forests and damp swamp areas. When fully grown, it can reach a length of 2–3 paces. It lives in small social groups of 1–3 individuals, consisting of one male and several females.

The lizard relies on its thick, bark-like scaly armor and the sharp spines on its back to protect itself from attackers. It usually remains completely motionless on moss-covered tree trunks, camouflaged by its mottled coloring. However, when cornered or when prey comes within reach, it acts with unexpected brutality. With its powerful jaws and sharp claws, it tears its enemies apart. It is not a nimble hunter, but it compensates for this with sheer physical strength and absolute tenacity.

The Klamm goat is an extremely sure-footed ungulate of the steep rock massifs and muddy mountain passes in the Klamm Mountains. It has a short, extremely dense, oily coat ranging in color from gray to reddish-brown, which withstands even the most relentless, continuous rain. Its horseshoe-shaped hooves, soft at the edges, dig into even wet, slippery rock, allowing it to climb nearly vertical slopes with ease. Although it is not considered naturally aggressive, it can be stubborn and headstrong in its mountainous territory. When threatened or cornered, it lowers its massive skull with its backward-curving horns and charges forward resolutely to drive the intruder off the path. For hikers and dwarf caravans, it is an indispensable pack and climbing animal.

Shimmer whale (leviatan)

The Shimmer whale resembles an earthly blue whale in shape, but is slimmer and has longer, almost wing-like side fins. What makes it special is its skin: it is not gray, but has a pearlescent, semi-transparent surface.

Depending on the incidence of light and the magical saturation of the environment, its skin refracts light into all colors of the spectrum. Hence the name. When an iridescent whale breaks the surface, it looks like a living rainbow rising out of the water. Scholars believe that these whales not only feed on krill, but also absorb the light of the moon and stars when they come to the surface at night.

Shimmer whales avoid shallow coastal waters. They travel through the deep oceans, far away from the routes of merchant ships.

They are most often sighted in the Southern Ocean, in the cold currents far from the heat of the jungle, or in the mystical waters around abandoned island archives.

They travel in small family groups (pods). It is said that their song can calm storms or drive those who listen to it for too long mad.

Since hunting them is extremely dangerous (shimmer whales rarely defend themselves, but are often protected by sea elementals or mermaids) and the animals are rare, the price is enormous.

The Ancatir consider hunting shimmer whales a sacrilege. They only use oil that comes from naturally stranded whales ("gift of the tides"). Alchemists who use "bloody oil" are often expelled from the city in elven enclaves.

The Shimmer Whale is one of the most fascinating and peaceful giants of the seas around Tirakan. It is not just an animal, but a living anomaly closely connected to the magical currents of the oceans.

Shimmer whales never attack first. If killed, all involved suffer a curse of the sea (+2 exhaustion per day at sea).

We saw it at new moon. It glowed beneath the keel like a sunken city. When we threw the harpoons, the beast did not scream. It began to sing. A sound so deep that the wood of my ship splintered and two of my men simply jumped into the water, smiles on their faces. We killed it, yes. But the oil... it burns in the lamps of my cabin, and

I swear I see the faces of those who jumped in the shadows. From the logbook of the whaler 'Haken-Ulf'

Sonar pulse 16 The whale emits an extremely loud, directional sound pulse.

Targets must pass a Resistance check (WI). If they fail, they are stunned for 1D6 rounds and suffer a -4 penalty to all checks.

3d6+16 damage. Hits all targets within a 5-meter radius behind the whale.

Iridescent glow 14 The whale flashes its skin in a dazzling spectrum of colors.

All attackers in close range must pass a Perception check. If they fail, they are blinded for the next round and cannot attack.

Deep dive 12 The whale retreats into the depths.

Increases the RS by an additional +4 shields for one round while it leaves the combat area.

Phantomwarrior

A phantom warrior is the undead spirit of a soldier or other skilled person-at-arms (i.e. a professional killer) who has died in violent conflict or before completing an assigned task. Although incorporeal, a phantom warrior carries ghostly armour, shield and weapon. A phantom warrior's memory of the days before his death is hazy at best.
